An eastbound Rock Island train collided with a water truck at a Calhan railroad crossing Wednesday, completely demolishing the truck and causing an estimated half million dollars damage to the train and tracks. Amazingly, there were no fatalities and only two injuries in the collision which occurred at 12:50 p.m.

The truck driver, Tim Trujillo, 42, of Pueblo, was taken to St. Francis Hospital with multiple fractures of his arms and legs and a severed tendon in his right hand. Hospital officials this morning termed his condition "fair."

Only one of the 30 passengers on the train was known to have been injured. Anders Lund, 80, of Chicago, Ill., complained of chest pains and was taken to St. Francis Hospital for observation. Hospital officials said he was apparently "just shaken up."

The train, a Rocket, driven by Lee C. Haberthier, 62, of Limon, was reported to have been going 50 miles per hour when it hit the southbound semi-trailer truck which was loaded with 3,000 gallons of water. The State Patrol said Haberthier was uninjured.

The truck, which is owned by the Pioneer Construction Co., was going to a nearby construction site when it was hit. The State Patrol said the truck failed to stop for the crossing.

The train struck the water tank of the truck, flattening it out and carrying it for 575 feet down the tracks after the impact.

The locomotive of the train was pulling a second power unit, a mail car and three passenger cars. All the cars of the train were derailed in the wreck. The tracks were torn up for the length of the train. Wreckage was strewn along the side of the tracks and the cab of the truck was torn in two.

The State Patrol was on the scene minutes after the collision, along with El Paso County sheriff's deputies and the Calhan Fire Department.

Passengers on the train were taken to Limon in chartered buses after the accident where another train was waiting for them. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Lovelace, 917 N. Nevada Ave., who were on the next to last car of the train, said that the passengers remained calm when the train left the tracks. Mrs. Lovelace said, "We hardly knew when we hit the truck. There was just a little bump." Her husband said, "We knew we hit a water truck alright because water was splattering everywhere as we passed the crossing."

Andrew Youhanaie, a vacationing civil engineer for the Rock Island Railroad said, "First we saw dust outside the window and then pieces of the truck flying in the air. A tire passed right by our window."

Workmen were busy clearing the wreckage Wednesday afternoon and railroad officials said the line was cleared and ready for use at 10:30 last night.

Third Negro Will Enroll in Alabama School

By HUGH SCHUTTE

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — A third Negro enrolls today in the University of Alabama system under protection of state police after Gov. George C. Wallace decided against a second doorway stand for segregation.

Authorities said they expected no trouble at the University Extension Center where the Negro, Dave Mack McGlathery, was to register.

Ironically, state troopers who helped city police seal off the campus here Friday will, in effect be helping enforce federal court orders which Wallace unsuccessfully challenged Tuesday at the main university campus in Tuscaloosa.

"They'll be in Huntsville to see that it's orderly," said Wallace's press secretary, Bill Jones, in Montgomery. Jones said the governor again "urges Alabama citizens to restrain themselves . . . We are going to have law and order."

Buildings Afire In Maryland Racial Dispute

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (AP)—Fires flared in three buildings and a brief fight broke out Wednesday night—the third consecutive night of integration demonstrations in this small Tidewater community.

State police said at least two of the fires had been set deliberately. They broke out shortly after a Negro rally at a church.

In one incident, police said, a burning oil pot was thrown from a car through a window of a grocery in the Negro section of town. The fire was put out before it caused major damage.

Only minutes before, a fire destroyed a shed behind the home of Mrs. Helen Waters, the only Negro member of the Dorchester County School Board. She voted with the majority Monday in turning down an appeal for stepped-up school integration.

A flaming kerosene-soaked mop was shoved through the window of a bakery in the white section of town but only minor damage was reported.

Mrs. Waters said she received an anonymous telephone threat Tuesday night that: "You and and Mr. Cornish will be next." Charles Cornish is the only Negro member of the Cambridge City Council.

Mrs. Waters said a brick was thrown through her window after the telephone call.

Several white bystanders attacked two white integrationist demonstrators Wednesday night as they marched with some 120 Negroes. City police quickly broke up the fight.

Racial Strife At a Glance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JACKSON, Miss. — Widow of slain integration leader calls on Negroes to continue their fight against racial discrimination. Police and federal agents push massive search for assassin of Medgar W. Evers and say they have some good leads. Demonstrations broken up Wednesday and 146 Negroes jailed. Some fear fresh racial strife as result of slaying.

CAMBRIDGE, Md. — Third straight night of integration demonstrations sees fires flare in three buildings and a brief fight.

WASHINGTON—About 200 labor leaders to meet with President Kennedy today to discuss civil rights. Former President Eisenhower discussed with Kennedy on Wednesday the administration's forthcoming civil rights message to Congress. Southern senators rallying to fight Kennedy proposals. Close associate of slain Negro leader Evers to tell House Judiciary subcommittee of racial violence in Jackson, Miss.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala.—Third Negro enrolls this afternoon in white University of Alabama system. Gov. George C. Wallace, who failed to prevent two other Negroes from entering main campus at Tuscaloosa on Tuesday, says he will not appear at Huntsville. All quiet at Tuscaloosa as Negro students attend classes.

HONOLULU—Nation's mayors adopt civil rights program outlined by President Kennedy for improving racial harmony.

LEXINGTON, N.C. — Murder charge filed against 19-year-old Negro accused of firing shots that killed one white man and wounded another in race riot Thursday night.

NEW YORK — Acting Mayor Paul R. Screvane says city will halt construction on a city hospital project unless AFL-CIO trade unions end immediately any discriminatory practices there.

SAVANNAH, Ga.—Tense situation developed when Negro policeman arrested white man accused of hitting or pushing Negro demonstrator. Police reinforcements head off trouble. Chamber of Commerce offers to mediate racial dispute—principally over segregated hotels and restaurants—but Negro leader says demonstrations will continue.

JERSEY CITY, N.J. — Mayor Thomas Gangemi announces a civil rights program he says will "end racial tension and make Jersey City the showcase of the nation."

TEXARKANA, Tex. — Texarkana Junior College admits two Negro women under federal court orders with no incidents on campus during the day. But about 200 youths burned a cross on the campus Wednesday night, then staged an anti-integration march in the downtown area.

Another Raid Is Claimed by Cuban Exiles

MIAMI (UPI) — U. S. authorities today questioned a small band of Cuban commandoes who claimed they badly damaged Cuba's biggest distillery, killed many soldiers and sank a patrol boat during a raid this week.

The 10 raiders were detained Wednesday when they pulled into the Florida Keys in a white-sailed fishing schooner with two prisoners and an anti-Communist seaman who sought asylum in the United States. They said they commandeered the boat after their own cannon-loaded converted PT boat sank during a sea battle after midnight Tuesday.

U.S. Is Heading To Dictatorship, Hunter Warns

The present Washington administration, thru "tremendous blackmailing pressures" against members of Congress and thru the unwarranted assumption of power by the President, is rapidly taking this country toward dictatorship, a leading ultra-conservative told the Gazette Telegraph today.

Edward Hunter, a former newspaperman and noted author of books on brainwashing techniques, said this is coming about thru the "biggest lobby I have ever seen."

He referred to "White House pressures" which he said are using every device in the book to eliminate the checks against such an assumption of power which are contained in the Constitution.

"The most important issue in the nation's capital today," Hunter said, "is the question whether the United States shall retain its present form of government, or become in all respects, a dictatorship."

Hunter is here to lecture at several sessions of Billy James Hargis Anti-Communist Youth University at the Summit in Manitou Springs.

In charging that the administration is leaning toward dictatorship, Hunter pointed not only to unwarranted presidential assumption of power, but to elements in Congress and recent Supreme Court decisions which he says are

No Criminal Cases Found By Grand Jury

In the Grand Jury's report filed in the district attorney's office Tuesday, the jury concluded "the sessions were rather non-profitable, inasmuch as there seemed to be no matters presented or discovered constituting criminal offenses or irregularities in the operations of municipal or county offices."

It was added however that "the effect of having an annual Grand Jury, plus the advantage to the citizens of the county in being afforded the opportunity to appear and discuss freely any matters concerning which they wish to complain, in keeping with the over-all democratic system of government, justified the nominal ex-

School District Boundary Change Plan Is Tabled

A proposal to change the boundary line in the Skyway Park — County Home area was tabled Wednesday by District 11 board of school directors.

The request for the boundary line change was made by residents of the area and by county commissioners. District 11 officials said.

It calls for turning over a portion of the district to School District 12.

Officials here said that property valuation of homes in the area is placed at $118,920 with unimproved property valued at more than $12,000. County property involved has no valuation at the moment.

However one of the reasons the county is supporting the boundary line change is to sell some of its

Massive Hunt Launched For Assassin of Negro

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — As tension mounted in this troubled Southern city, police and federal agents continued a massive search today for the assassin of Negro leader Medgar W. Evers.

"We have some good leads," said Chief of Detectives M.B. Pierce.

Meanwhile, the widow of the slain man — her voice trembling with emotion — called on Negroes to continue their battle against racial discrimination.

Evers was gunned down in his driveway early Wednesday.

There were fears that the ambush slaying would touch off fresh racial strife in this Mississippi capital city of 145,000.

Two Youngsters Found After Nine-Hour Search

A nine-hour search for two missing 8-year old youngsters ended successfully Wednesday afternoon when a Civil Air Patrol plane spotted the children hiking toward Woodland Park.

The youngsters, Michael Mitchell and Judy Franco, were missed by their mothers about 9 a.m. Wednesday from their homes at the Buffalo Lodge, 2 El Paso Blvd.

Mrs. Dan Mitchell, aided by a neighbor, Mrs. Charles Carter, searched for the missing pair for an hour and a half before notifying the motel manager, Arvid Temple.

Temple joined the search by auto and Carter was enlisted to search on horseback.

Shortly before noon, the Manitou Springs and Colorado Springs police departments and the El Paso County sheriff's office were called for assistance. Temple also requested the assistance of the CAP.

Maj. Earl Cole, Manitou Springs acting Group III commander, assigned Maj. Laurel Bonurant and Owner-Pilot Specialist Ray Newbill to the search. The men flew a Cessna 172 Sky Lane over the area and sighted the children at 4:30 p.m.

They were picked up by Carter, Mrs. Carter and the Rev. Don Cummings by auto.

The children told searchers they had decided to hike to Woodland Park to a church camp where a trailer they had used as an occasional playhouse had been taken a few days before.

The children were in good physical condition but did suffer severe sunburn after removing their outer clothing to keep cool under the hot sun. Judy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Franco.

Kennedy Renews $450 Million Plan For 'Distress'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy said today he will give Congress "another opportunity to support" a $450-million distressed areas appropriation.

Kennedy, in a statement, called it "tragic" that the House rejected the legislation Wednesday on a 209-204 vote.

"This program must not be allowed to die," he said, "and it is my intention to give the Congress another opportunity to support it."

Kennedy said scores of hard-hit communities in seven states were counting on the appropriation.

He listed the states most affected as Pennsylvania, Michigan, West Virginia, eastern Kentucky, upstate New York, upstate Minnesota and Southern Illinois.

"The people of these and other affected states need more than speeches to help their depressed communities and jobless workers," the President said.

The bill would have authorized $450 million more in grants and loans to encourage creation and expansion of job-making industries in areas of high unemployment.

Similar legislation is pending in the Senate and Kennedy's legislative leaders would have a second try in the House if the Senate passed its bi[illegible]

South Suburban PUC Hearing Slated Friday

A citizens committee has urged all users of the South Suburban Water Co. to attend a Public Utilities Commission hearing Friday into customers' request for an investigation of the company.

The hearing is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. in the auditorium at the County Office Building.

Residents of Ivywild, Cheyenne Canon and Broadmoor, who are customers of the company, are asking the PUC to enjoin the water company from maintaining its strict restriction of water.

South Suburban placed the restrictions last May 1. No irrigation of lawns is permitted in the area.

Residents are complaining of burned-up lawns and dying trees and shrubbery.

It was pointed out that the Consumer's Committee is entirely voluntary and that the two attorneys representing the users are both serving without pay. They are David H. Morris and William F. Rhodes.

Hugh J. Ross Enters Race For Congress

By RAY HERST
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Hugh J. Ross, by-passing the traditional political announcement boundaries, today leaped into the race for the 1964 Democratic nomination for U. S. Representative in the Third Congressional District.

He leaped in with both feet and announced his intention of remaining in the thick of the race right up until the primary elections in September of 1964, 15 months away.

By announcing his intention to run for the nomination, Ross bore out rumors that he would run which have persisted since before the last congressional race.

The former county commissioner said he has informed District Democratic Chairman Frank Evans of his intention.

Ross said persistently strong requests that he run from all over the district prompted his early announcement.

Federal Aid Not Needed In Drought, Governor Says

LAMAR (AP) — Gov. John Love said Wednesday that he believes farmers and ranchers in southeastern Colorado can handle the drought situation without federal aid.

He said that had he conferred with local residents several weeks ago he would never have approved disaster designations for 15 Colorado counties.

"While it is dry, the word disaster overstates the case tremendously," Love said.

The governor spoke during a visit to southeastern Colorado in fulfillment of a campaign promise he made to return government to the people.

The disaster designation makes farmers and ranchers eligible to buy feed grain at lower prices and permits them to graze cattle on Soil Bank land.

Representatives of six southeastern Colorado counties requested the appointment of a commission to attract industry to rural areas.

They also asked the governor to consider administrative changes which would place more control over state programs in the hands of county commissioners.

John Lefferdink, Kiowa County attorney, said the state should encourage the construction of nursing homes in counties outside the large cities. He said this would supply more economic support to the counties.

Educators See End of Grading In High Schools

ESTES PARK (UPI)— A four-day meeting of Colorado School Administrators ended Wednesday on a note of predicted change from "old fashioned and medieval [illegible] of high school operations.

Dr. Frank Brown, a noted Florida educator, said high schools soon would abolish graded classrooms—probably within the next five years.

Brown said the present system of grouping students in grades and forcing them to study at the same level as other youngsters was "old fashioned and medieval and has no place in our current technological age."

He said non-graded systems would aid both exceptional and slow students. Brown said in some cases, the time required for teaching courses could be cut in half.

Venezuela Chief Orders Arrest of 400,000 Reds

By PAUL FINCH

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — President Romulo Betancourt ordered the arrest of Venezuela's estimated 400,000 Communists and pro-Castro extremists Wednesday night following his escape from another assassin attempt.

Betancourt said three Communist terrorists plotted to assassinate him Wednesday with a time bomb at the Roman Catholic archbishop's palace in Puerto Cabello, a river port 275 miles south east of Caracas.

Petitions of Zone Changes Opposed At Public Hearing

Two zone change petitions presented to the El Paso County Planning Commission met vigorous opposition at a public hearing Wednesday.

A team of vocal protesters, reinforced with a written petition, from the Broadmoor area were successful in quashing a request that four tracts of land in the vicinity of Mount Washington Avenue be changed from an R-1 to an R-2 residence zone.

The zone change petition was submitted by Blakemore McCarty and Ray Frost who had planned to develop the land for an estimated 60 multiple-housing units. McCarty had presented the petition to the commission last month and it was tabled for further study.

Racial Strife At a Glance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JACKSON, Miss. — Widow of slain integration leader calls on Negroes to continue their fight against racial discrimination. Police and federal agents push massive search for assassin of Medgar W. Evers and say they have some good leads. Demonstrations broken up Wednesday and 146 Negroes jailed. Some fear fresh racial strife as result of slaying.

CAMBRIDGE, Md. — Third straight night of integration demonstrations sees fires flare in three buildings and a brief fight.

WASHINGTON—About 200 labor leaders to meet with President Kennedy today to discuss civil rights. Former President Eisenhower discussed with Kennedy on Wednesday the administration's forthcoming civil rights message to Congress. Southern senators rallying to fight Kennedy proposals. Close associate of slain Negro leader Evers to tell House Judiciary subcommittee of racial violence in Jackson, Miss.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala.—Third Negro enrolls this afternoon in white University of Alabama system. Gov. George C. Wallace, who failed to prevent two other Negroes from entering main campus at Tuscaloosa on Tuesday, says he will not appear at Huntsville. All quiet at Tuscaloosa as Negro students attend classes.

HONOLULU—Nation's mayors adopt civil rights program outlined by President Kennedy for improving racial harmony.

LEXINGTON, N.C. — Murder charge filed against 19-year-old Negro accused of firing shots that killed one white man and wounded another in race riot Thursday night.

NEW YORK — Acting Mayor Paul R. Screvane says city will halt construction on a city hospital project unless AFL-CIO trade unions end immediately any discriminatory practices there.

SAVANNAH, Ga.—Tense situation developed when Negro policeman arrested white man accused of hitting or pushing Negro demonstrator. Police reinforcements head off trouble. Chamber of Commerce offers to mediate racial dispute—principally over segregated hotels and restaurants—but Negro leader says demonstrations will continue.

JERSEY CITY, N.J. — Mayor Thomas Gangemi announces a civil rights program he says will "end racial tension and make Jersey City the showcase of the nation."

TEXARKANA, Tex. — Texarkana Junior College admits two Negro women under federal court orders with no incidents on campus during the day. But about 200 youths burned a cross on the campus Wednesday night, then staged an anti-integration march in the downtown area.

Another Raid Is Claimed by Cuban Exiles

MIAMI (UPI) — U. S. authorities today questioned a small band of Cuban commandoes who claimed they badly damaged Cuba's biggest distillery, killed many soldiers and sank a patrol boat during a raid this week.

The 10 raiders were detained Wednesday when they pulled into the Florida Keys in a white-sailed fishing schooner with two prisoners and an anti-Communist seaman who sought asylum in the United States. They said they commandeered the boat after their own cannon-loaded converted PT boat sank during a sea battle after midnight Tuesday.

U.S. Is Heading To Dictatorship, Hunter Warns

The present Washington administration, thru "tremendous blackmailing pressures" against members of Congress and thru the unwarranted assumption of power by the President, is rapidly taking this country toward dictatorship, a leading ultra-conservative told the Gazette Telegraph today.

Edward Hunter, a former newspaperman and noted author of books on brainwashing techniques, said this is coming about thru the "biggest lobby I have ever seen."

He referred to "White House pressures" which he said are using "every device in the book" to eliminate the checks against such an assumption of power which are contained in the Constitution.

"The most important issue in the nation's capital today," Hunter said, "is the question whether the United States shall retain its present form of government, or become in all respects, a dictatorship."

Hunter is here to lecture at several sessions of Billy James Hargis Anti-Communist Youth University at the Summit in Manitou Springs.

In charging that the administration is leaning toward dictatorship, Hunter pointed not only to unwarranted presidential assumption of power, but to elements in Congress and recent Supreme Court decisions which he says are

No Criminal Cases Found By Grand Jury

In the Grand Jury's report filed in the district attorney's office Tuesday, the jury concluded "the sessions were rather non-profitable, inasmuch as there seemed to be no matters presented or discovered constituting criminal offenses or irregularities in the operations of municipal or county offices."

It was added however that "the effect of having an annual Grand Jury, plus the advantage to the citizens of the county in being afforded the opportunity to appear and discuss freely any matters concerning which they wish to complain, in keeping with the over-all democratic system of government, justified the nominal ex-

School District Boundary Change Plan Is Tabled

A proposal to change the boundary line in the Skyway Park — County Home area was tabled Wednesday by District 11 board of school directors.

The request for the boundary line change was made by residents of the area and by county commissioners, District 11 officials said.

It calls for turning over a portion of the district to School District 12.

Officials here said that property valuation of homes in the area is placed at $118,920 with unimproved property valued at more than $12,000. County property involved has no valuation at the moment.

However one of the reasons the county is supporting the boundary line change is to sell some of its

Massive Hunt Launched For Assassin of Negro

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — As tension mounted in this troubled Southern city, police and federal agents continued a massive search today for the assassin of Negro leader Medgar W. Evers.

"We have some good leads," said Chief of Detectives M.B. Pierce.

Meanwhile, the widow of the slain man — her voice trembling with emotion — called on Negroes to continue their battle against racial discrimination.

Evers was gunned down in his driveway early Wednesday.

There were fears that the ambush slaying would touch off fresh racial strife in this Mississippi capital city of 145,000.

The Rev. A. Charles Jones, dean of Campbell College for Negroes here and one of the leaders in the integration movement, telegraphed President Kennedy that the "tragedy may provoke a violent explosion in this community which will bring additional disgrace and tarnish the American image before the people of the world."

Evers, 37, had been Mississippi field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People for the last nine years.

Thirteen ministers and a church layman who gathered downtown for a "mourning march" Wednesday were arrested by police. They were later released without charge.

Later, 146 other Negroes were jailed when police broke up another attempted demonstration.

Late Wednesday night, a police car was hit by several soft drink bottles as it drove through the campus of Jackson State (Negro) College. Police Capt. Cecil Hathaway said the bottles had apparently been hurled from the top of a five-story men's dormitory.

Aided by the discovery of the murder weapon—a 30.06 Enfield

Two Youngsters Found After Nine-Hour Search

A nine-hour search for two missing 8-year old youngsters ended successfully Wednesday afternoon when a Civil Air Patrol plane spotted the children hiking toward Woodland Park.

The youngsters, Michael Mitchell and Judy Franco, were missed by their mothers about 9 a.m. Wednesday from their homes at the Buffalo Lodge, 2 El Paso Blvd.

Mrs. Dan Mitchell, aided by a neighbor, Mrs. Charles Carter, searched for the missing pair for an hour and a half before notifying the motel manager, Arvid Temple.

Temple joined the search by auto and Carter was enlisted to search on horseback.

Shortly before noon, the Manitou Springs and Colorado Springs police departments and the El Paso County sheriff's office were called for assistance. Temple also requested the assistance of the CAP.

Maj. Earl Cole, Manitou Springs acting Group III commander, assigned Maj. Laurel Bonurant and Owner-Pilot Specialist Ray Newbill to the search. The men flew a Cessna 172 Sky Lane over the area and sighted the children at 4:30 p.m.

They were picked up by Carter, Mrs. Carter and the Rev. Don Cummings by auto.

The children told searchers they had decided to hike to Woodland Park to a church camp where a trailer they had used as an occasional playhouse had been taken a few days before.

The children were in good physical condition but did suffer severe sunburn after removing their outer clothing to keep cool under the hot sun. Judy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Franco.

South Suburban PUC Hearing Slated Friday

A citizens committee has urged all users of the South Suburban Water Co. to attend a Public Utilities Commission hearing Friday into customers' request for an investigation of the company.

The hearing is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. in the auditorium at the County Office Building.

Residents of Ivywild, Cheyenne Canon and Broadmoor, who are customers of the company, are asking the PUC to enjoin the water company from maintaining its strict restriction of water.

South Suburban placed the restrictions last May 1. No irrigation of lawns is permitted in the area.

Residents are complaining of "burned-up" lawns and dying trees and shrubbery.

It was pointed out that the "Consumer's Committee" is entirely voluntary and that the two attorneys representing the users are both serving without pay. They are David H. Morris and William E. Rhodes.

"It is the hope of the committee that plans might be developed by the company to prevent any future occurrence of the extreme water shortage that is now endangering the lawns and beautiful trees of the area served by the company," the committee said in a statement urging attendance at the hearing.

Kennedy Renews $450 Million Plan For 'Distress'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy said today he will give Congress "another opportunity to support" a $450-million distressed areas appropriation.

Kennedy, in a statement, called it "tragic" that the House rejected the legislation Wednesday on a 209-204 vote.

"This program must not be allowed to die," he said, "and it is my intention to give the Congress another opportunity to support it."

Kennedy said scores of hard-hit communities in seven states were counting on the appropriation.

He listed the states most affected as Pennsylvania, Michigan, West Virginia, eastern Kentucky, upstate New York, upstate Minnesota and Southern Illinois.

"The people of these and other affected states need more than speeches to help their depressed communities and jobless workers," the President said.

The bill would have authorized $450 million more in grants and loans to encourage creation and expansion of job-making industries in areas of high unemployment.

Similar legislation is pending in the Senate, and Kennedy's legislative leaders would have a second try in the House if the Senate passed its bill.

Mystery Light Reported in Boulder Area

BOULDER (AP) — A mysterious light moving across the sky was seen in Boulder again Wednesday night. Several persons reported the object, first noted Tuesday night.

At that time it was described as bright and fluctuating.

The light was reported shortly before 10 p.m. Wednesday night, then about midnight.

Officials had no ready explanation for the light.

Man Leaves $10,000 to Pet Parrot

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A man who had no survivors has left a $10,000 trust fund for his parrot.

In his will, Bart Gerard, a retired sales executive asked that friends care for the parrot, according to surrogate's court. The trust fund was left for care and custody of the bird.

Gerard left the bulk of his $147,800 estate to charity.

HUGH J. ROSS

Hugh J. Ross Enters Race For Congress

By RAY HERST
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Hugh J. Ross, by-passing the traditional political announcement boundaries, today leaped into the race for the 1964 Democratic nomination for U. S. Representative in the Third Congressional District.

He leaped in with both feet and announced his intention of remaining in the thick of the race right up until the primary elections in September of 1964, 15 months away.

By announcing his intention to run for the nomination, Ross bore out rumors that he would run which have persisted since before the last congressional race.

The former county commissioner said he has informed District Democratic Chairman Frank Evans of his intention.

Ross said "persistantly strong requests" that he run "from all over the district" prompted his early announcement.

He said the requests have come from "Democrats, Republicans and Independents" in the 19-county third district.

The Colorado Springs Attorney, who in 1958 became the first Democrat to be elected an El Paso County commissioner in 16 years, described himself as "an outspoken

Federal Aid Not Needed In Drought, Governor Says

LAMAR (AP) — Gov. John Love said Wednesday that he believes farmers and ranchers in southeastern Colorado can handle the drought situation without federal aid.

He said that had he conferred with local residents several weeks ago he would never have approved disaster designations for 15 Colorado counties.

"While it is dry, the word disaster overstates the case tremendously," Love said.

The governor spoke during a visit to southeastern Colorado in fulfillment of a campaign promise he made to return government to the people.

The disaster designation makes farmers and ranchers eligible to buy feed grain at lower prices and permits them to graze cattle on Soil Bank land.

Representatives of six southeastern Colorado counties requested the appointment of a commission to attract industry to rural areas.

They also asked the governor to consider administrative changes which would place more control over state programs in the hands of county commissioners.

John Lefferdink, Kiowa County attorney, said the state should encourage the construction of nursing homes in counties outside the large cities. He said this would supply more economic support to the counties.

16 U.S. Solons Go to Paris For Air Show

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. J Edgar Chenoweth, R-Colo., was among 16 House and Senate members who left Wednesday night to visit the Paris Air Show, traveling as guests of Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert.

The group flew aboard a VC-137 jet transport of the Special Air Mission Fleet.

A spokesman said the congressmen "were invited due to their official assignments or interests in aviation-space matters."

Educators See End of Grading In High Schools

ESTES PARK (UPI)— A four-day meeting of Colorado School Administrators ended Wednesday on a note of predicted change from "old fashioned and medieval techniques of high school operations."

Dr. Frank Brown, a noted Florida educator, said high schools soon would abolish graded classrooms—probably within the next five years.

Brown said the present system of grouping students in grades and forcing them to study at the same level as other youngsters was "old fashioned and medieval and has no place in our current technological age."

He said non-graded systems would aid both exceptional and slow students. Brown said in some cases, the time required for teaching courses could be cut in half.

Venezuela Chief Orders Arrest of 400,000 Reds

By PAUL FINCH

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — President Romulo Betancourt ordered the arrest of Venezuela's estimated 400,000 Communists and pro-Castro extremists Wednesday night following his escape from another assassin attempt.

Betancourt said three Communist terrorists plotted to assassinate him Wednesday with a time bomb at the Roman Catholic archbishop's palace in Ciudad Bolivar, a river port 275 miles southeast of Caracas.

The president told a national radio audience that police nabbed two of the terrorists as they entered the palace with three sticks of dynamite and a timing device. The third plotter got away.

"Society cannot be subject to continued risk to property and life by a group of pyromaniacs and terrorists," Betancourt said in ordering Interior Minister Carlos Andres Perez, to start an intensified nationwide rounding of members of the already-banned Communist and MIR parties. The MIR, or Movement of the Revolutionary Left, is a pro-Castro revolutionary movement.

The order was the toughest Betancourt has issued against subversives who began moving against him shortly after he took office in 1959. The next election is scheduled for November. The president has banned Communists from the election.

He has survived three previous known plots against his life and two revolts against his government. It is believed there were several other assassination attempts that never were announced.

Betancourt, noting that the government cannot hold anyone without charges for more than 30 days vowed that every Communist will be jailed again as soon as released. Such 30-day periods of detention could go on indefinitely.

The president, a moderate leftist, said he ordered the arrests because the legislature was taking too much time to enact an anti-terrorist emergency measure he proposed last week. The bill

Petitions of Zone Changes Opposed At Public Hearing

Two zone change petitions presented to the El Paso County Planning Commission met vigorous opposition at a public hearing Wednesday.

A team of vocal protesters, reinforced with a written petition, from the Broadmoor area were successful in quashing a request that four tracts of land in the vicinity of Mount Washington Avenue be changed from an R-1 to an R-2 residence zone.

The zone change petition was submitted by Blakemore McCarty and Ray Frost who had planned to develop the land for an estimated 60 multiple-housing units. McCarty had presented the petition to the commission last month and it was tabled for further study.

Residents of the neighborhood voiced a strong protest on the general grounds that an apartment development would eventually decrease their property value, increase traffic, obstruct their respective panoramic views and drain their already diminishing water supply.

One property owner said he objected to such a commercial de-

Nikita Claims 'Victory' in Cuban Defeat

By LEON DENNEN

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Kennedy seemingly won a diplomatic victory in the Cuban crisis when he quarantined Cuba in October and forced the Russians to remove their offensive missiles.

Red China's Mao Tse-tung, Nikita Khrushchev's bitter foe in the Communist world, denounced Moscow's Cuban retreat as a "Soviet Munich." There is little doubt that in a world where "face" is important the Soviet premier suffered a loss in prestige.

Yet in six months while United States diplomacy was paralyzed by partisan quarrels, Khrushchev was able to snatch victory out of defeat. He even had the effrontery to announce that he had accepted Castro's invitation to visit Moscow's Cuban satellite 90 miles from Florida.

As seen by specialists on communism, Khrushchev was able to turn defeat into victory because the Russians never conceded that it was the U.S. quarantine that forced them to remove their missiles from Cuba.

Moscow's Pravda and Izvestia write to this day that the Soviet premier's "sacrifice to peace" was due solely to President Kennedy's alleged pledge not to invade Cuba and to prevent anti-Communist Cubans from overthrowing Castro's dictatorship.

This has also been repeated with deadly monotony by Moscow's global propaganda organ Novoye Vremia (New Time) ever since the United States failed to press Khrushchev for the agreed, on-site inspection of missile bases. Such inspection was the main condition for lifting the quarantine President Kennedy said last fall.

The State Department was obviously reluctant to engage in a public debate with the Red press. Thus, the United States Castro resume was the price paid Khrushchev for removing his missiles from Cuba.

However, it was the Soviet premier himself—and not anonymous Red journalists — who recently warned that Russia will aid Cuba if the United States failed "to carry out" the agreement Khrushchev says he reached with President Kennedy in October.

The Soviet Premier spoke at Moscow's mammoth rally for Fidel Castro. Here, as reported by Pravda, is what he said:

"A breach of obligations by the United States could not be regarded otherwise than as perfidy." . . .

"If the United States does not strictly observe the agreement reached and aggravates the situation, the world might find itself in an even more dangerous situation than during last year's Caribbean crisis."

Truth, of course, is not a tenet of Marxist-Leninist double talk. Nor is Khrushchev known for his veracity. But he is the leader of one of the world's most powerful nations. His words about an agreement with President Kennedy, spoken in public, were clear. They can no longer be ignored or dismissed with vague denials by the United States.

Should Moscow's statements stand unchallenged, the belief that President Kennedy pledged to bar force against Castro under any conditions will bolster Red prestige in Latin America. It will play havoc with the Alliance for Progress. It will sow confusion in the United States.

No phase of the Kennedy administration's policy baffles the ordinary American more than the policy on Cuba, as this writer has found on trips around the United States.

Surely Americans are entitled to know if there are pledges of the kind Khrushchev is talking about. It is not enough to say that the foreign policy of a free nation is the business of the government. Policies pursued by democracies are credible and can be effective only if the whole people share the conviction that their aims are right.

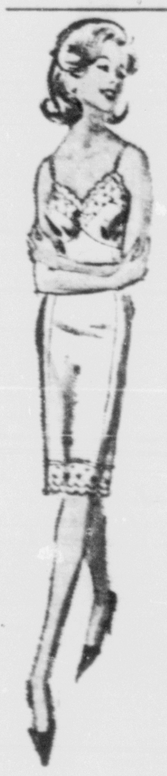

Are the Reds indulging as usual in reckless propaganda? If so, no time should be lost by the State Department in contradicting officially and without ambiguity Khrushchev's claims.

The oldest piece of music extant with English words is "Sumer is Icumen In," composed at Reading Abbey in the 13th century.

Buddhism Defends New South Viet Nam Trends

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The saffron robes of the Buddhist monks and the gleaming Buddhist temples are as much a part of Southeast Asia as the monsoons and the rice paddies.

Buddhism is the state religion of Thailand [illegible] South Vietnam [illegible] that 70 per cent of the population is Buddhist.

Which helps explain the mounting United States concern over the harsh repressive measures of South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem's government against the Buddhist majority there.

As a religious dispute between the Catholic president and the Buddhists, it is an internal matter and one thing. Its effect upon a war in which the United States is deeply committed and upon the feelings of millions of Southeast Asians toward the United States is still another.

For, like it or not, and many Americans in South Vietnam do not, the United States is committed to win the anti-Communist struggle in South Vietnam on a slogan "Win with Diem."

The United States is doing its best to disassociate itself from the present dispute.

UPI Correspondent Neil Sheehan reported on the basis of reliable sources in Saigon that, privately, U.S. Deputy Chief of Mission William Trueheart has urged Diem to settle the quarrel and get on with the war.

U.S. military commander Gen. Paul D. Harkins has ordered all American military advisers not to accompany Vietnamese units suppressing Buddhist demonstrations.

But this counts for little when the Vietnamese use easily identifiable airplanes and equipment obtained through American aid in their repressive actions and indelibly link the United States with them.

Once more from Saigon sources Sheehan reports that the United States so far has refrained from publicly rebuking Diem out of fear of losing what little influence it now has with his government.

But U.S. representatives are finding it more and more difficult to maintain a position that Diem is leading a broad, popular movement, when at the same time it is obvious he is in deep political trouble with a majority of his own population.

This is far from the first time that Diem has ignored U.S. advice.

U.S. military forces in South Vietnam are there to advise and not to command.

Diem himself assumes direction of all military operations.

As a result, a large portion of the South Vietnamese Army is held immobile against a supposed threat of mass Communist attack across the 17th parallel from North Vietnam.

"Clear and hold" operations against Communist-held villages usually result in the immediate return of the Reds once government forces depart. Enemy casualties are exaggerated and some operations fail simply because of faulty intelligence.

U.S. aid has helped to stem the Communist advance in South Vietnam.

But if events continue to follow their present course the fat will be in the fire.

GOOD FROM EVIL

NEW YORK (AP) — "Does God 'create' or at least 'cause' evil?" No, says a French Catholic theologian, the Rev. Charles Journet.

Military Chiefs Not Happy About Atom Test Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U. S. military leaders have misgivings about President Kennedy's qualified new ban on testing nuclear weapons in the atmosphere. Some believe America should be developing a 100-megaton bomb such as the Russians claim to have.

Armed forces chiefs were described today as believing national security requires continued testing of a variety of nuclear devices under present world conditions.

A 100-megaton bomb, advocated by some military men, would have more political and psychological than purely military significance. America's present 25-megaton bombs are more than adequate militarily. But it is argued America can ill afford not to have a weapon of such force as the Russians claim to have.

To bring home this argument, the specter is raised of Russia someday putting a 100-megaton bomb in orbit about the earth. America could not do that today, but would be able to with the Titan III space booster now under development. Kennedy has said Russian missiles could not yet carry such a heavy warhead.

Military leaders' views seemed likely to get an early airing in Congress, where the President's newly announced policy received a mixed reaction — from cautious Democratic support to Republican. Sen. Barry Goldwater's claim he made a "dreadful mistake."

The President made the new policy known in a two-part announcement Monday in a commencement address at American University here. He said high level talks would start soon in Moscow among America, Britain and Russia on a test ban treaty.

To show U. S. good faith, he said, this country will not conduct tests in the atmosphere "so long as other states do not do so. We will not be the first to resume."

Electricity Production Increased in Nation

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. electricity production spurted last week Edison Electric Institute reported today.

The institute, a trade organization, said output totaled 17,368,000,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 16,105,000,000 the previous week and was 9.4 per cent ahead of the 15,876,000,000 a year ago.

Among geographical areas posting percentage increases were Rocky Mountain 9.7, Pacific Northwest 4.7.

During World War II Kaiser shipyards produced 1,490 ships, nearly one-third of the entire production of wartime merchant ships.

Formula for American Oil Imports Changed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy issued a proclamation Tuesday changing the formula for allocating petroleum imports into the area east of the Rocky Mountains, beginning July 1.

An Interior Department spokesman said, however, that the formula would mean little or no change in the amount of oil imported. Had it not been changed, he added, there would have been a small decrease in the amount of licensed imports.

Under the current formula, permissible imports are computed on the basis of 12.2 per cent of actual domestic production in the period ending six months before the beginning of a new allocation period.

The new formula will eliminate this time lag. Beginning July 1, imports will be allocated on the basis of 12.2 per cent of the crude oil and natural gas liquids that the secretary of interior estimates will be produced in the area during the period for which the allocation is made.

The allocation under the new formula, as under the old, will take into consideration exempt overland imports from Canada and Mexico.

The department spokesman said the change — from using actual production six months old to estimates of current production — "was more realistic in that importers would have something to work on."

The estimate will now be based on anticipated increased production which the spokesman said would be about 3 per cent in the next six months. He said the formula would permit imports of about 938,100 barrels daily during the last half of 1963, compared with 917,486 barrels [illegible] first six months.

VALUE

And the VALUE of many brands is often hard to find in today's supermarket.

Watch Our Heroine, the American Housewife, as she enters.

The modern grocery outlet is a thing of modernistic splendor. Broad aisles invite her, departmentalized shelves beckon. In the surgery-white glare of fluorescents, thousands of items seek her attention. Order seems to prevail.

But the Goddess of the market place knows differently. She's a veteran propeller of a shopping cart and, therefore, a realist.

She is at once suspicious and vulnerable; coldly calculating and yet ready to be enchanted. Above all, she knows that order does not always prevail, and that price and value of some manufacturers' products at times are hard to determine.

OFF WHAT?

Our girl is in the Wonderful World of Off. Two Cents Off, Three Cents Off, Six Cents Off, Send in The Label With One Dollar and Get, Enter This Contest and Win A, The Greatest Prizes of All, Free Bonus Offer, Complete This Jingle . . .

This is why a strange change comes over a woman in a store. The soft glow in the eye is replaced by a steely financial glint; the graceful walk becomes a panther's stride among the bargains.

A woman in a store is a mechanism, a prowling computer. Mentally she is a memory-bank, calculating the variables, thousands of little lights flicking over the great questions of her life—last week that package was 43 cents, now it's only 39; and right beside it is this new brand—slightly larger—for 41 cents.

This is why she pinches and prods and shakes things, listens to cans and boxes. She is mentally X-raying the interior of the package. The American Housewife is her own final Bureau of Standards.

THE WIZARDS OF OFF

At first the whole epic struggle seems no contest. On one side we have this frail creature. On the other side we have her surrounded by some 20,000 square feet of branded canned goods, branded dry groceries, non-foods, dairy products and hosts of other items. In the background are the unseen masses of manufacturers trying to bewitch and bedazzle her into buying.

But when Our Girl starts down the aisle, her defenses are massive. Jungle-trained, her bargain-hunter's senses razor-sharp for the sound of a dropping price, Our Girl is the easy winner almost every time. She is accustomed to the merchandising circus.

The losers are those Wizards of Off—those manufacturers who seek her trade by decorating their packages with overprinted banners and stickers proclaiming six cents off, or one extra for a penny more—by in-pack premiums, or send-in-for premiums, or coupon inside good for ten cents toward your next purchase —or by dozens of other devices. They may get a one-time trial purchase; they don't get her loyalty for any brand.

What happens is that those little numbers on the edge of the shelf often do not reflect the real price or the true value of the product on display. Lost somewhere is that old simple equation: Value = Quality + Price. And the store, be it a giant supermarket or a small neighborhood store, can do little about it.

THE SCOTT PHILOSOPHY OF VALUE

Where does Scott Paper Company come in?

Scott itself has even played a part though briefly, in the marketing mix up the cents off coupon contest route – for the temptation to fight fire with fire is irresistible

But last year we took stock of the results; the cost of the deals and the potential damage they might do to the Scott image we had spent so many years in creating in the eyes of the consumer.

Our business had been built for three generations on the philosophy of value—the finest quality at the lowest possible price. This reputation apparently could not be enhanced by three cents off, free paring-knives, or two packages for a penny more.

So in January of 1962 Scott decided to reaffirm our faith in a basic precept; if we offer our products to the homemaker at a fair price, and of uncompromising quality, she will recognize their honest value and buy them. And retailers everywhere, from the giants to the little ones, applauded.

THE SCOTT PLEDGE

We announced a positive policy. It began with a pledge.

The pledge is that we at Scott will maintain the highest possible quality in our products and offer them at the lowest possible price. We will forego all cents-off label promotions, consumer contests, coupons, and premiums unrelated to the use or dispensing of our products.

There will be one simple and clear-cut exception to the "no-dealing" promise—the introduction of a new product or a significantly improved product. At such times it becomes necessary to induce as many consumers as possible to sample the new product immediately. To accomplish this quickly, temporary sales inducements are often required. And we shall use them. But once a new product is established in the marketplace such sales stimulants will end.

Prizes and premiums do not create loyal customers. Scott Paper Company knows there is no substitute for quality.

THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING

Reception of the new Scott policy has been gratifying. Sales have shown most encouraging results. We hope this proves unmistakably that Scott products don't need free balloons or other stimuli. Without premiums, promotions, or cents-off gimmicks, Scott products are successes in the stores, and our customers approve wholeheartedly.

Inevitably we tend to feel a fine, warm sense of security. This success means that the American Housewife, goddess of the market, buys our products for quality and value, not for premiums.

To some other manufacturers our policy may have seemed idealistic, or unworkable. We want to reassure them that this merchandising attitude actually brings specific, positive benefits far beyond those we originally anticipated.

By her own response, in the form of increased Scott sales, we believe the American Housewife appreciates the fact that Scott gives her first-rate quality and first-rate value—with no cents off the label. She can be confident always that, for the top-quality products of Scott Paper Company, those little numbers on the shelf strip represent real VALUE.

Sabbaticals Top Union Goal for Steelworkers

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Sabbaticals for industrial workers as well as professors is becoming a top union goal.

The United Steelworkers of America union is expected to reveal next week whether it has won such extended vacations from the major steel companies.

This union got sabbaticals accepted by American Can and Continental Can companies last fall for their 32,000 union members.

The steelworkers have been pushing hard to extend this to the basic steel companies in the negotiations that have been going on for weeks and which are set to reach a climax in the next few days.

The sabbatical leave, as set forth in the can company contracts, calls for 13 weeks of paid vacations every five years for employes with 15 years or more seniority. This is an additional to the usual vacations in other years.

If the steel industry agrees, other unions may be expected to try to reach like contracts in many fields.

The sabbatical idea is put forth as one of several labor programs for combatting unemployment. It's a spread-the-work plan, like shorter work weeks, earlier retirements, longer annual vacations, and various schemes for ironing out the ups and downs of employment in industries with strong cyclical patterns.

Management's chief objection has been the cost. Someone else has to be paid while the older employe—also being paid—is enjoying his 13 weeks off. The extra expense is added to a long list of rising costs that push production charges higher and squeeze profits or boost prices, or both.

Another factor is that the increased number of employes on the payroll because of sabbaticals, or longer annual vacations, or shorter work weeks, means that many more in line for fringe benefits. These range from pensions to health insurance, to unemployment payment charges, to paid vacations.

And fringe benefits have been getting more emphasis than straight wage scale increases in labor negotiations in recent years.

But the unions see the sabbatical as one of their best schemes for combatting the unemployment they lay to increased automation. Job security is a big thing this year.

Some experts figure that the sabbatical leave plan of the can companies will cost about 7½ cents an hour when it goes into effect next January—it was delayed while plant schedules were rearranged.

Steel company executives have insisted that in their companies the costs would run 12 to 15 cents an hour. And they complain that costs already are too high.

Proxmire's Student Aide Quits Job

MADISON, Wis. (AP) —Frank Campenni, 33, who held a $14,596-a-year job as chief aide to Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., while a full-time graduate student at the University of Wisconsin, resigned today.

In a letter to Wisconsin's senior senator, Campenni said that although he felt the arrangement was perfectly proper, the resulting unfavorable publicity convinced him that the situation may be used in an attempt to damage Proxmire politically.

Campenni was hired by the senator last August. After criticism at home became open, even within party ranks, Proxmire took him off the public payroll in April, returned to the Treasury the salary paid Campenni and announced he would continue to pay Campenni's salary out of his own funds until his aide completed work at the university this month and joined him in Washington.

After the resulting publicity, the university ordered Campenni to repay a $500 student loan.

Campenni said that he plans to return to teaching English at the university's Milwaukee campus.

Liberalized School Law Sought in State

ESTES PARK (UPI)—A liberalization of the Colorado school law was considered Tuesday at a workshop of the Colorado Association of School Administrators here.

Dr. Elbie Gann, deputy state education commissioner, submitted the proposed change of school laws to the workshop, and suggested the changes would be "the most important thing for Colorado schools since statehood."

Gann said the proposal included recommendations to put state credit up to back local district's building bonds, allow school districts to issue bonds for construction of housing for teachers, allow districts to provide free textbooks without community vote and eliminate the [illegible] pay rent fee which presently goes to county treasurer for collecting school taxes.

Sabbaticals Top Union Goal for Steelworkers

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Sabbaticals for industrial workers as well as professors is becoming a top union goal.

The United Steelworkers of America union is expected to reveal next week whether it has won such extended vacations from the major steel companies.

This union got sabbaticals accepted by American Can and Continental Can companies last fall for their 32,000 union members.

The steelworkers have been pushing hard to extend this to the basic steel companies in the negotiations that have been going on for weeks and which are set to reach a climax in the next few days.

being based "not on law but on social conditions."

"Every effort is being made both openly and secretly by leading figures in Washington to remove the checks from our check and balance system which is the foundation of our freedoms as a nation," Hunter said.

He accused these forces of attempting to "water down our Constitution by using social conditions instead of legal precedent as a basis for decisions." He said they are attempting to circumvent Congress in this respect and reduce it to "a mere sounding board for the President without its Congress historic right of initiating law."

"A whole set of devices are being used to do this including presidential executive order, administrative decrees and the establishment of treaties without using the word treaty but calling them merely agreements," Hunter said.

EDWARD HUNTER

He said that if these checks, as outlined in the Constitution and which separate the functions of the three branches of government, are eliminated "we will have lost our free society."

He charged that the White House lobby is "the biggest and most ruthless I have ever seen."

Hunter, a militant anti-communist, explained that this movement is completely divorced from any communist influence. He said their aim is to "convert the U.S. into a dictatorship without the public realizing it" and that unless "definite action" is taken by the public to counteract this, "this conspiracy will succeed."

"Many of the actions in Congress which seem inexplicable today," he charged, "are really based on the maneuvering for or against this subtle capture of our governing processes."

He charged that Sen. J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee "is one of the leaders in the fight to make this radical change."

But the former foreign editor for the New York Post said, there are forces now active in Congress trying to counteract these "tremendous blackmailing pressures put on them by the White House."

He pointed out that if any American business or industry attempted to use the same tactics now being used by the administration, "they would be thrown into a federal prison."

Concerning foreign relations, Hunter charged that the U. S. has completely "subordinated its foreign policy to the United Nations" and is allowing the U.N. "to determine American foreign policy."

He warned that if the U.S. continues its "appeasement policies" in regards to Cuba and other Red strongholds, "the result can only lead to World War III."

Hunter paralleled the present "appeasement" policies with those used by France "under pressure from England" when the French failed to move to counteract Hitler's move into the Rhineland.

"As a result, World War II was made inevitable and possible World War III," he said.

"The result of this the present appeasement, under the same pressures and influence from England, can only be World War III," he declared. "It is either this or the surrender of the United States to communism and Soviet Russia, glossed over by double-talk. I see steps in this direction already being taken by the present administration."

Other statements made by Hunter, include:

—"I believe there are still important communists in the government. We are solving the communist problem in government by simply forbidding any entry or security investigation into this matter. The only communists revealed are those who reveal themselves, like those two young men in our topmost coding office who went on a honeymoon to Moscow."

—"There are no more reporters in Washington. They are prostitutes who would sell their mother for an invitation to the White House."

—"The United Nations is fine as a means for nations to deal with each other on technological matters such as airplane routes and narcotics distribution. . .but the U.N. has gotten in the field of a super government in the political sphere. This should be eliminated if the U.S. is to continue to be a free nation."

—"You need only one communist agent in a key position in the American government to literally destroy the U.S."

—"The communist base in Cuba must be eliminated thru the use of the tactics of psychological warfare that President Kennedy is using so ruthlessly against members of Congress and political opponents in his own country."

Hunter will speak at 7:30 p.m. today at the Summit. The meeting is open to the public. He will speak Sunday at 2 p.m. in Denver at East High School and will present a series of lectures to students at the Summit twice daily until Wednesday when he will return to his Washington home.

Park Department Changes Watering Hours in Parks

The City Park and Recreation Department is now irrigating at different hours than other users of Colorado Springs water, according to James Taylor, department director.

Even tho the irrigating is being done at different hours, the department is actually watering less than other water users. The department irrigates on Mondays, Wednesday and Fridays, whereas other users water on alternate days.

Reason for the change in watering hours is to help equalize pressure, especially during the hours of 6 to 8 a.m. and 6 to 8 p.m. when residential customers water lawns.

Taylor said the change in watering hours was requested by the Colorado Springs Department of Public Utilities.

Watering is now being done by the Park and Recreation Department at Fairview Cemetery, Bott Park and in the Prospect Lake vicinity from 2 a.m. to 6 a.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

In all the rest of the park areas, Taylor said, irrigating is being done from 8 a.m. until noon on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Non-potable water from the sewage disposal plant is used to irrigate some of the center parkings in the north end of town. This water is flooded onto the center parkings; irrigating of this type can be done at any time since potable water is not involved.

Non-potable water is also sold by the city to Colorado College and the Kissing Camels Golf Club for irrigation purposes.

The Blue Birds are the young eventual Camp Fire Girls. Many of them will attend the summer camp to be held in Austin Bluffs.

The Girl Scout Court of Awards was held June 4, at Longfellow Elementary School. Mrs. John McCanus, leader, and her co-leaders, Mmes. Will Perkins and Robert Payne helped their group in the presenting of a candlelight ceremony and in the song leading. Their group is Troop 406. The award they received was the Second Class badge.

Portable Radio Reported Stolen

A GE portable radio, value unknown, was stolen from the Security Body Shop, Security, the sheriff's office reported Wednesday.

Clark Alexander, an employee of the shop, told Deputy Sheriff Jack Ames that the radio disappeared sometime between Sunday and Monday.

The cost of developing some new aircraft engines is about $[illegible] million, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara has disclosed.

Woman Gives Police Bad Time Wednesday

Three city policemen had their hands full Wednesday night when they tried to bring in a drunken woman. She bit one of them on the ear and kicked out the partition between the front and rear seats of a bubble car that had been sent to pick her up, Chief of Police Cecil McKissick reported today.

The chief said that at about 10:20 last night, Police Sgt. Wayne Anderson spotted Molly Lee Cataldo 24, 505 N. Nevada Ave., in the 100 block of east Colorado Avenue. She was yelling and screaming and trying to pull away from two men who were restraining her.

She finally tore loose and Anderson placed her under arrest for drunkeness. A bubble car was sent to pick her up, since the paddy wagon was not available.

Police officers Robert Hapke and Donald Bowling were sent to the scene in the car and after they had gotten Miss Cataldo into the rear seat, she kicked out the right rear window and the bubble partition.

McKissick said the officers then had to stop the car and take her shoes away from her. It was at this time that she bit Anderson on the left ear.

Finally, Anderson took the wheel and drove to the County Jail with Hapke and bowling holding Miss Cataldo in the rear seat.

She was booked for drunkeness, resisting arrest, injury to city property and for a parole violation, McKissick said.

Man Jailed For Disturbance

A Ft. Carson man, Kenneth M. Ishizaka, 20, went to county jail Wednesday night for investigation of disutrbance, the sheriff's department reported.

According to Deputy Sheriff Jack Ames, Ishizaka approached Orville Duskey of the Security Water Department when he was seated in his truck and demanded a lift to Ft. Carson. Duskey explained he was working and the defendant then became abusive, Ames said, doubled up his fist and shoved it into the truck.

Duskey promptly grabbed a nearby tool and warned the soldier to be on his way. Ishizaka then went across to the fire station where Ames and Duskey saw him. He started being abusive again and cursed everyone. After being warned he continued using foul language and Ames took him to county jail having to handcuff him first as he was so belligerent.

The deputy sheriff said he would sign a complaint against Ishizaka this morning.

Chapel Draws 18,744 During June Week

One of the top visitor attractions at the Air Force Academy during June Week proved to be the Cadet Chapel.

A total of 18,744 people made their way through both levels of the structure during the five days it was open to the public.

A daily count showed that 5,229 visitors toured on Sunday, June 2, for the biggest single day.

Nearly 4 million different types of items are carried in the Defense Department's supply inventory.

Committee To Meet With David Hamil

A committee of five representing El Paso County will meet with David Hamil, state director of institutions, at 10:30 a.m. Friday to file a request for state funds for a pilot project to increase professional services for the mentally retarded.

Under House Bill 121, funds for two pilot projects have been established and the department of institutions will designate this month two communities in the state to carry out the program.

According to Keith McBurney, county commissioner, Boulder, Greeley and Durango have also applied for the project center.

McBurney said the El Paso County request is being made because a survey of private and public agencies providing services for the mentally retarded has shown significant gaps and that state financial assistance would help to achieve an effective mental retardation program.

"We believe that neighboring counties, namely Cheyenne, Teller, Lake, Park, Douglas, Lincoln, Kit Carson and Elbert would also benefit from the state-supported program in Colorado Springs," said McBurney.

In addition to McBurney, the committee members who will meet with Hamil Friday are Vard V. Gray, director of El Paso County Public Welfare; the Rev. Conard Pyle, representing the El Paso County Chapter for Retarded Children; Mrs. Harry Bunker, and Dr. M. F. Schafer, director of City-County Health Dept.

He won two trophies as runner-up in Class AA Singles, "singles" meaning shooting from 16 yards. He is president of one of the city's year-round sports group, ENT Rod and Gun Club. The club meets every weekend at Peterson Field. Saturday, 8th, was the beginning of the Registered Trap Shootings in which out of town and state shooters compete for awards. While in Boise they visited with Col. Copsey's brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Copsey, and children, Doug, Dick and Dee Anne. The Copsey's son and daughter are, Jimmy and Jackie. He is with the Air Force, working at Peterson Field.

Local residents who traveled to New York to attend an international toy exhibition for distributors were the George Brosius, Jrs., of Monteagle Street. Mr. Brosius is a purchaser of supplies for military installations. On the way home they visited friends and relatives at Midlan, Lubbock and Amarillo, Tex., and at Albuquerque, N. M. Daughter Joan Renee is a recent graduate of St. Mary's High School.

Lt. Col. Donald Morris has returned from Henderson, Tex., where he went to be with his sick father, J. L. Morris. His father is improving. His wife Sally is having a short stay at Air Academy Hospital.

The Humming Blue Birds, group 38, celebrated the season's end with a refreshment party at Michelle's ice cream parlor. Those attending were: Linda Bram, Bridget Cleary, Gretchen Gahm, Dorothy Hanson, Holly Lowery, Myrna Morris, Debra Reeves, Mary Beth Stephenson, Jenifer Ward, Susan Wendt, Leslee Whigham, Pam Whitney, Kathryn Zenthoefer, and their leader, Mrs. George Gahm, and their co-leader, Mrs. David Bram. The Blue Birds are the young eventual Camp Fire Girls. Many of them will attend the summer camp to be held in Austin Bluffs.

The Girl Scout Court of Awards was held June 4, at Longfellow Elementary School. Mrs. John McCanus, leader, and her co-leaders, Mmes. Will Perkins and Robert Payne helped their group in the presenting of a candlelight ceremony and in the song leading. Their group is Troop 406. The award they received was the Second Class badge.

Portable Radio Reported Stolen

A GE portable radio, value unknown, was stolen from the Security Body Shop, Security, the sheriff's office reported Wednesday.

Clark Alexander, an employee of the shop, told Deputy Sheriff Jack Ames that the radio disappeared sometime between Sunday and Monday.

The cost of developing some new aircraft engines is about $150 million, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara has disclosed.

Woman Gives Police Bad Time Wednesday

Three city policemen had their hands full Wednesday night when they tried to bring in a drunken woman. She bit one of them on the ear and kicked out the partition between the front and rear seats of a bubble car that had been sent to pick her up, Chief of Police Cecil McKissick reported today.

The chief said that at about 10:20 last night, Police Sgt. Wayne Anderson spotted Molly Lee Cataldo 24, 505 N. Nevada Ave., in the 100 block of east Colorado Avenue. She was yelling and screaming and trying to pull away from two men who were restraining her.

She finally tore loose and Anderson placed her under arrest for drunkeness. A bubble car was sent to pick her up, since the paddy wagon was not available.

Police officers Robert Hapke and Donald Bowling were sent to the scene in the car and after they had gotten Miss Cataldo into the rear seat, she kicked out the right rear window and the bubble partition.

McKissick said the officers then had to stop the car and take her shoes away from her. It was at this time that she bit Anderson on the left ear.

Finally, Anderson took the wheel and drove to the County Jail with Hapke and bowling holding Miss Cataldo in the rear seat.

She was booked for drunkeness, resisting arrest, injury to city property and for a parole violation, McKissick said.

Man Jailed For Disturbance

A Ft. Carson man, Kenneth M. Ishizaka, 20, went to county jail Wednesday night for investigation of disutrbance, the sheriff's department reported.

According to Deputy Sheriff Jack Ames, Ishizaka approached Orville Duskey of the Security Water Department when he was seated in his truck and demanded a lift to Ft. Carson. Duskey explained he was working and the defendant then became abusive, Ames said, doubled up his fist and shoved it into the truck.

Duskey promptly grabbed a nearby tool and warned the soldier to be on his way. Ishizaka then went across to the fire station where Ames and Duskey saw him. He started being abusive again and cursed everyone. After being warned he continued using foul language and Ames took him to county jail having to handcuff him first as he was so beligerent.

The deputy sheriff said he would sign a complaint against Ishizaka this morning.

Chapel Draws 18,744 During June Week

One of the top visitor attractions at the Air Force Academy during June Week proved to be the Cadet Chapel.

A total of 18,744 people made their way through both levels of the structure during the five days it was open to the public.

A daily count showed that 5,229 visitors toured on Sunday, June 2, for the biggest single day.

Nearly 4 million different types of items are carried in the Defense Department's supply inventory.

Committee To Meet With David Hamil

A committee of five representing El Paso County will meet with David Hamil, state director of institutions, at 10:30 a.m. Friday to file a request for state funds for a pilot project to increase professional services for the mentally retarded.

Under House Bill 121, funds for two pilot projects have been established and the department of institutions will designate this month two communities in the state to carry out the program.

According to Keith McBurney, county commissioner, Boulder, Greeley and Durango have also applied for the project center.

McBurney said the El Paso County request is being made because a survey of private and public agencies providing services for the mentally retarded has shown significant gaps and that state financial assistance would help to achieve an effective mental retardation program.

"We believe that neighboring counties, namely Cheyenne, Teller, Lake, Park, Douglas, Lincoln, Kit Carson and Elbert would also benefit from the state-supported program in Colorado Springs," said McBurney.

In addition to McBurney, the committee members who will meet with Hamil Friday are Vard V. Gray, director of El Paso County Public Welfare; the Rev. Conard Pyle, representing the El Paso County Chapter for Retarded Children; Mrs. Harry Bunker; and Dr. M. F. Schafer, director of City-County Health Dept.

Hugh J. Ross Enters Race For Congress

en critic of unreasonable governmental controls."

When asked why he wanted to go to Congress, Ross said:

"There are a lot of things I want to raise cane about in Congress. I mean to be constructive but I don't intend to go along with a great many things that have done and are being done."

He promised voters in the district that "you will hear my side on many issues during the campaign."

Ross, a vigorous campaigner, declined to list any of the issues which might be brought up in the campaign and said he did not wish to elaborate on the above statement.

"They'll be brought out later," he said.

He said he has no immediate plans for the campaign, commenting that "it is too early for that part of it."

A resident of 2034 N. Wahsatch Ave., Ross served as county commissioner from 1959 to January of 1963. While a commissioner, the former El Paso County Democratic chairman was elected president of the southeastern Colorado Commissioners Association and served for four years on the state association relief and welfare committee.

He also served as a member of various national association committees.

Long an advocate of what he terms "grass-roots government," Ross recently appeared before the state welfare board to protest handling of the state welfare fund which is in danger of faltering in the next year and running some $4 million over its budget.

He is currently general counsel for the state Clubs for Social Security — one of the largest organizations for senior citizens in Colorado.

Long active in the Democratic party, Ross, in addition to his law degree, holds a bachelor of science degree in economics from the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Finance and Economics.

He is married and the father of two daughters, Lynn Ann and Rita Carol, both at home.

If he receives the Democratic nomination in the 1964 primaries, he will probably face incumbent Republican J. Edgar Chenoweth in the November general elections that year.

Officials Inspect Radio Equipment Atop Mountain

Several city and county officials made an inspection Wednesday of the recently completed emergency radio transmitter station on top of Cheyenne Mountain.

This installation will be tied in with communications equipment in the civil defense emergency operations center in the basement of the new Colorado Springs police building "to form one of the best and surest nets in the United States for emergency operations," according to Charles W. Willoughby, city-county civil defense director.

The building houses radio transmitting equipment for the El Paso County sheriff, county road department, the El Paso County Fire Fighting Association and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Willoughby said the sheriff's radio net is used to activate the civil defense warning sirens.

"For this reason," the civil defense director said," the federal government contributed one half of the installation cost of $22,000, or about $11,000."

The station consists of a 14 by 34 foot concrete block building to house the transmitting equipment, a 10 KW generator which starts automatically in case commercial power goes off and a 200-foot high radio tower.

Making the inspection trip were County Commissioners Keith McBurney, chairman, Fred C. Monk and Charles Smith; Sheriff Earl L. Sullivan, Deputy Clerk Norman C. Foote, City Councilmen William Becker and Harold Hawks, Walter C. Gowans, of Mobile Radio Engineers and representative of Motorola Radio Corp., and Willoughby.

rifle — police pressed their hunt for the ambush slayer.

Mrs. Evers told a mourning crowd of 700 Negroes Wednesday she was determined the death of her husband would not be in vain.

Men wept unashamedly. Teenagers bit their lips and stared ahead with unblinking eyes.

"I come here tonight with a broken heart," said the 30-year-old widow, "but I come because I feel it is my duty."

"I come to make a plea. No one knows like I know how my husband gave his life for this cause before he was killed. He lived with it 24 hours a day."

She said he talked of death the day before his assassination "and said if he had to go he would rather it would be this way."

When she finished, the audience silently rose. There were no "freedom songs," no cheers, none of the exuberance that marks other mass integration rallies.

Instead, their voices pealed "My Country 'Tis of Thee, Sweet Land of Liberty."

Funeral arrangements were incomplete for Evers, who left three children—the oldest 10.

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., speaking at a New York meeting, called the slaying "an inexpressable tragedy and an unspeakable outrage."

Later, King said he will attend the funeral.

Rewards totaling $24,350 were posted for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Evers' slayer. The NAACP started the reward fund with $10,000. The city of Jackson and the United Steelworkers of America, AFL-CIO, each chipped in $5,000. The city's two newspapers added $1,000 to the fund.

The assassination came only a few hours after President Kennedy had appealed to the nation for an end to racial discrimination in the face of growing Negro discontent.

A White House statement on Evers' death said, "The President was appalled by the barbarity of this act."

Fire Department Answers Six Calls Wednesday

The Colorado Springs fire department had six alarms and resuscitator calls, in quick succession, Wednesday afternoon and night.

At 12:50 p.m. Company 6 went to Van Buren Street and Patrician Way where a truck driven by John Yahlick had caught on fire from backfiring. It was damaged to some extent.

At 2:30 p.m. Company 3 was called to the Chambon Sales warehouse, 1929 Manitou Blvd., where a trash fire had got out of control.

Company 4 at 3:54 p.m. put out a car fire in the 1200 block on E. Platte Ave. The driver, C. E. Guy, 805 S. 3rd St., Lamar, Colo., had left the emergency brake on and the heat generated set fire to the front seat of the vehicle.

The Company 3 resuscitator crew at 5:28 p.m. went to the residence of Mrs. Tekla Chonka, 805 S. 3rd St. She had suffered a believed heart attack, which resulted in her death.

At 6:18 p.m. Companies 1 and 4 went to 122 S. El Paso St., where Ray Newgill had been burning trash in a barrel. It got away from him and spread to a truck parked beside a garage. The truck was damaged.

At 8:11 p.m. Company 6 went to 3400 Templeton Gap Rd., the Garden Ranch. A barbecue was being held and the fire spread to grass and brush.

Police Hold Man For Investigation

Police are holding a man for investigation of an indecent exposure charge.

He was arrested Wednesday after he exposed himself to two women in Bunney Park. Police reports said the man was lying on the grass in the park near the intersection of Jackson Street and Uintah Avenue when the incident occurred.

Boy Scouts Urge Display of Flag Friday

Col. Howard H. Cloud, Jr., president of the Pikes Peak Council, Boy Scouts of America and Ray M. Ryerson, scout executive, today issued a reminder to the 7000 Scouts and adult members of the Pikes Peak Council, that the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America has urged all Scouts to display the American Flag on June 14, Flag Day.

Scout officials also urge all citizens to observe Flag Day by displaying the American Flag.

Col. Cloud said, "a resolution passed by the Continental Congress in Philadelphia on June 14, 1777 established the original Flag Day. We in Scouting urge our Scouts and all other citizens to fly the flag on this particular day in remembrance of our American Heritage."

Col. Cloud stated that the flag is far more than Red, White and Blue cloth of which it is made. It is the symbol of our America. It stands for the past and the present and the future of our Country. It stands for our people, our land and our way of life.

President George Washington said, "We will take the stars and blue union from heaven; red from our Mother country, separating it by white stripes, thus showing that we have separated from her and the white stripes shall go down to posterity representing liberty."

Col. Cloud stated that every Scout accepts the Scout Oath as a vital part of his Scouting obligation. Every Scout pledges "that he will do his best to do his duty to God and his Country."

One way to do your duty to country is by properly displaying our American Flag on officially disignated days. These include Lincoln's birthday; Washington's birthday; Armed Forces Day; Memorial Day; Flag Day; Independence Day; Veteran's Day; Labor Day and the birthday of States.

A special Flag Day celebration will be held in connection with the Colorado Springs Roatary Club luncheon June 14. A special silk American Flag will be presented to the Rotary Club by Eugene Lyons, former Assistant Postmaster General. The Flag that he will present is one that was presented to Lyons by Postmaster General Arthur Sommerfield, the flag was flown over the Nation's Capitol and the Post Office Department Building in Washington, D.C.

A Flag ceremony will be presented by four Eagle Scouts of Troop 14 who received the coveted rank at a special ceremony Tuesday.

City Officials Praised By Ent Commander

Col. H. H. Cloud Jr., commander of Ent Air Force Base, has complimented city officials and personnel for their action during President John Kennedy's recent visit.

The colonel, in a letter to Mayor Harry Heth, noted the new entrance signs to Peterson Field which were constructed before the President's visit, and thanked the Colorado Springs Police Department for its cooperation.

Mayor Heth also sent a letter of commendation to the police department and other agencies who assisted during the President's [illegible]

Petitions of Zone Changes Opposed At Public Hearing

velopment in the neighborhood. McCarty reminded the commission that there are at least two businesses in the immediate vicinity at the present time, a greenhouse and a veterinary hospital, to which no one seems to object.

Both businesses were established prior to the R-1 zoning of the area and therefore are operating legally under the county's nonconforming use resolution.

The area in question is surrounded by R and R-1 zones and the petition was denied by the planning Commission on the basis that the zone change would constitute spot zoning which is illegal.

The second petition which met opposition during the long hearing was that of Earl R. Boyd who requested that an R-2 residence district located south of Vermijo Avenue and east of Center Street be changed to an M-industrial zone.

Boyd, represented by Attorney Bernard Trott, was granted the request in spite of neighborhood opposition. Final approval must come from the Board of County Commissioners.

Trott told the commission that the request for the zone change had been made so that Boyd could extend his auto parts business some 150 feet beyond it's present boundary. Adjacent land, which is in Colorado Springs, is designated as an industrial zone.

The neighbors opposing the change were represented at the hearing by Attorney Albert S. Nelson, who said the case would be appealed.

Mrs. Blanche Pennington's petition to change an R-2 residence to a C-2 suburban business district was recommended for approval to the Board of County Commissioners by the Planning Commission. The area is east of Union Boulevard and north of Pikes Peak Avenue.

A fourth petitioner, William J. D'Agosto, did not appear before the commission at Wednesdays' hearing. His request, which was tabled, is that an area north of Brookside Street and west of Avenue A be changed from an R-1 residence to a C-2 suburban business district.

State Grazing Plans to Be Discussed Here

A member of the Colorado State Land Board will discuss administration of state grazing plans Friday at a dinner meeting of the Colorado Section, American Society of Range Management.

The dinner will begin at 6:30 p.m. at the Alamo Hotel, and reservations must be made to attend. Members and guests should call Carl Fonte, 632-7639, for reservations.

On Saturday the group will leave the hotel at 8 a.m. to tour the Kiowa watershed and inspect flood control dams, seeding of the dams, range livestock and ranch operations. They will also observe how the drouth has affected these features. The tour will be by car, and will be completed about 2 p.m.

All ranchers in the area are invited to join the group for the Friday night dinner and Saturday tour.

Third Negro Will Enroll in Alabama School

loosa campus Wednesday as two Negroes, Vivian Malone of Mobile and James A. Hood of Gadsden, attended their first classes.

They enrolled Tuesday behind federalized Alabama National Guardsmen after the governor briefly stood off federal officials seeking to get the students registered.

Wallace informed the university president, Dr. Frank A. Rose, by telegram Wednesday night that he would not be present at Huntsville today.

"President Kennedy, with the use of armed federal troops, assumed control of the campus of the University of Alabama, which includes the campus at Huntsville," Wallace wired Rose.

"Due to this illegal and unwarranted military occupation, I will not be present on the Huntsville campus . . . However, we will continue relentlessly our fight against forced integration of the University of Alabama."

With about 1,200 Alabama guardsmen on duty at Tuscaloosa, the segregationist governor wired Kennedy that state police were being withdrawn.

Peace and order were maintained, Wallace said, by his own men.

But since the federal government "assumed full responsibility for the presence of Negro students and for preserving peace and order," all state forces will withdraw, Wallace said.

The governor said 528 state officers left Wednesday and the remaining 162 troopers will pull out Sunday. City and campus police continued to patrol the Tuscaloosa campus.

Miss Malone and Hood went peacefully to classes and found friendly acceptance from many white students and indifference from others.

"I feel that I have been accepted here," Hood said, praising the university. "I think the University of Alabama should be a model to the nation."

"I have been treated courteously by everyone," said Miss Malone.

Leland Chauncey Hazen Burial in Kansas

Leland Chauncey Hazen, 1214 N. Custer, will be buried Friday at Goodland Kansas. Mr. Hazen, 68, died Tuesday at his home.

The Sage Funeral Home in Goodland is in charge of the funeral services and Law Mortuary is in charge of local arrangements.

Mr. Hazen was born Sept. 16, 1894, in Brewster, Kans. He had lived here for 18 years and was a farmer by occupation.

He was a member of the Methodist faith and was affiliated with the Eagles Lodge.

Mr. Hazen is survived by his widow Mrs. Harriett Hazen; four daughters, Mrs. June Philbrick and Mrs. Freda Deeds of Goodland, and Mrs. Irene Robison and Mrs. Betty Wicks of Brewster; nine grandchildren, and a sister, Mrs. George Sherman, Towson, Md.

Denver Man Injured in Two-Car Crash

A 22-year old Denver man sustained minor injuries Wednesday in a two-car accident on U.S. 85-87 about three miles south of Monument.

Melvin W. Sanders was taken to Penrose Hospital for treatment of abrasions to the shoulder.

State Patrolman Paul Cornell said Sanders slowed his car down as he approached a construction site. A car driven by Norman E. Westergreen, 19, also of Denver, was unable to stop and the cars collided.

The impact forced the Sanders car into a skid for 68 feet on the median strip. Cornell said the car then skidded 62 feet sideways and rolled over on its side.

A total of seven sessions were held at a cost of $977.02.

In the course of these sessions five witnesses appeared before the jury, some on more than one occasion, offering testimony, petitions and documents in support of their testimony for the jury's consideration.

Among complaints investigated were those of an individual citizen regarding his confinement in the state hospital and the handling of his financial affairs by legally appointed conservator during his period of incompetency; the adjudication of a damage suit heard in two of the county's courts and the dissatisfaction with the result; the sanity findings of a defendant involved in a criminal charge in District Court; an alleged violation of constitutional rights upon determination of the guilt of a citizen in a traffic violation and a question regarding the handling of funds in connection with a fund-raising drive.

A thoro examination of documents and other data together with subpoenaing of witnesses by the jury failed to reveal any criminal activities or irregularities in these matters.

In addition the audit committee made a formal investigation into the affairs of the county treasurer's office and found everything in order. "We feel," the committee reported, "the auditing system is efficient and adequate and that all the affairs in connection are in order."

The building committee checked into the condition of various public buildings. Among other things it examined the public schools at Monument, Falcon and Fountain. It was recommended that the fire escape on the second floor of the Monument School, the floor is not in use at present, be repaired and that the panic hardware on the exit floor door from the gymnasium at Falcon also undergo repair. The committee also reported that the exit door from the auditorium of the junior high school at Fountain required repairs and that there were no fire extinguishers in the chemistry room.

The county superintendent of Schools was informed of these deficiencies.

$10,000 Bond Set In Robbery Case

A charge of aggravated robbert was filed in District Court Wednesday against David Thomas Harris Jr. and Judge William M. Calvert set a $10,000 bond.

Harris, 20 of P.O. Box 2736, Colorado Springs, is alleged to have robbed an employee of the North Corona Grocery, Janice Mae Lebeaux, and escaped with $10, Jan. 29.

Miss Anna Schellenberg Died Here Wednesday

Miss Anna F. Schellenberg, a retired practical nurse and nursery school teacher, died Wednesday at a local hospital at the age of 72.

Foreign Students Need Weekend Rides

Anybody headed north, south, east or west this Saturday or Sunday or soon thereafter? If so, there is an opportunity for him to practice his French, German, Dutch, Chinese, Japanese, Hindi and goodness knows what other language if he has room to accommodate a foreign student who is in Colorado Springs this week for the seventh annual Summer Crossroads program.

Several of the students would like to see as much of the West as they can before returning to their home country and have to stretch the travel money to the utmost. Others must head east and would appreciate the offer of a ride. If you have a ride to offer call Mrs. Robert H. Smith at 634-4138 or Douglas Freed at 636-[illegible] for further information.

No-Account Check Charges Filed Wednesday

Two charges of no-account check were filed in District Court Wednesday against two out-of-town men.

The first is Herbert Godfrey Thiel Jr., 22, of New York, N.Y. Information stated the defendant gave a $40 check to Sears Roebuck and Co. March 30.

Bond has been set at $2,000 by Judge William M. Calvert.

The second case involves James W. Sweet Sr., 30, of Costa Mesa, Calif. It is alleged he gave a $20 no account check to Millers Super Markets Jan. 15.

Judge Calvert set bond at $1,500.

Col. Johnson Attends Meeting at Ft. Monroe

Lt. Col. Andrew L. Johnson, assistant Fort Carson chaplain, is among 43 Army chaplains meeting June this week at Continental Army Command Headquarters, Ft. Monroe, Va.

They will discuss programming and budgeting for CONARC's 2.5 million active Army and Reserve Component personnel with special attention to mobilization chapels. These chapels are not in use now but must be ready for possible mobilization.

Religious services, education, counseling, character guidance, community relations hospital visitation and stockade visits are specialties to be considered at Ft. Monroe's Chapel Center.

School District Boundary Change Plan Is Tabled

property. District 11 officials said commissioners felt they could get more money for the property if it was included in District 12.

It was brought out that several years ago, residents of the area wanted officials to make the boundary line change. According to local officials, a number of persons bought homes in the area believing it to be in District 12 and were "upset" when they found it was in District 11.

No action was taken at that time because the law required a boundary line change to be followed by a reorganization of the school board and new elections. This was too costly.

However, the law has been changed and the boundary line can now be altered with consent of both districts and a two-thirds majority vote of residents of the area involved.

District 11 officials said they would study the proposal before reaching a decision, probably at their next meeting.

Directors Wednesday paid tribute to Phil More who is retiring as building consultant for the district after eight and a half years.

A resolution, citing More for his outstanding accomplishment and an unusually high level of devotion to duty," was passed unanimously at the meeting.

More, who was given a surprise testimonial dinner by area architects early this week, was visibly moved by the action and said he wanted to thank the board for the "friendship, the confidence in me and the cooperation you have given me in the past eight years."

The consultant, who has spent more than 50 years in the construction business, presented a list of statistics covering his work during his time in office.

He said that between Dec. 31, 1954 and Dec. 31, 1962, 17 new buildings have been constructed in the district. This includes administration and other buildings in additions to schools.

There were additions to 21 buildings in that period and other construction including a football stadium, he said. The number of pupils entering the district schools increased by 9,730 in that period and additional space was provided for a total of 10,040 pupils.

More said that a total of $14,400,000 has been spent for schools. This figure includes everything from land acquisition to books for the students. Of this total $11,100,000 was actual construction cost.

He pointed with pride to the fact that changes in plans increased the overall cost by just .8 of 1 per cent. A minimum of 5 per cent additional cost is usually estimated for each job.

More pointed out that the average cost for school buildings is the same as it was in 1947 despite increases in the costs of supplies and labor.

"We have school buildings here which will last for many years with a minimum of maintenance, but more important we have buildings which are excellent teaching tools," More said.

He will be replaced by Walter Keunning who has worked closely with More for the past six months.

In other action the board said it would refund premiums from the district's group life insurance plan to all persons concerned. The refund comes from the 1961-62 school year during which period there were no deaths among the district's employes on the plan.

The refund will be made out to each individual and paid in October.

Directors awarded seven master teaching certificates and accepted three teacher resignations.

A total of 59 new teachers were appointed, the largest single group so far this year. Officials said that 158 new teachers have been hired so far. This includes 75 secondary teachers and 83 elementary teachers and leaves just five vacancies for elementary teachers.

A report from the building consultant's office showed that work was 65 per cent complete on the new John Adams School and is on schedule; the multi-purpose rooms at Garfield and Lowell School are ahead of schedule and should be completed by July 30; work on converting the Lowell School gymnasium into two classrooms has just started; the Helen Hunt School addition is on schedule and should be completed on time.

The Howbert School Addition is behind schedule and the contractor has gone to a nine-hour day in an effort to make up time lost by delay in shipment of the steel roof deck. However, window wall-units have not been received as yet and this will put the project further behind schedule. Other work is on or ahead of schedule.

Directors formally approved the list of 1963 graduates from Palmer and Wasson High Schools.

They also gave permission to the Pikes Peak Chapter of the National Ski Patrol to use the Palmer High School gymnasium for special classes eight nights during the next school term.

Hugh J. Ross Enters Race For Congress

en critic of unreasonable governmental controls."

When asked why he wanted to go to Congress, Ross said:

"There are a lot of things I want to raise cane about in Congress. I mean to be constructive but I don't intend to go along with a great many things that have done and are being done."

He promised voters in the district that "you will hear my side on many issues during the campaign."

Ross, a vigorous campaigner, declined to list any of the issues which might be brought up in the campaign and said he did not wish to elaborate on the above statement.

"They'll be brought out later," he said.

He said he has no immediate plans for the campaign, commenting that "it is too early for that part of it."

A resident of 2034 N. Wahsatch Ave., Ross served as county commissioner from 1959 to January of 1963. While a commissioner, the former El Paso County Democratic chairman was elected president of the southeastern Colorado Commissioners Association and served for four years on the state association relief and welfare committee.

He also served as a member of various national association committees.

Long an advocate of what he terms "grass-roots government," Ross recently appeared before the state welfare board to protest handling of the state welfare fund which is in danger of faltering in the next year and running some $4 million over its budget.

He is currently general counsel for the state Clubs for Social Security — one of the largest organizations for senior citizens in Colorado.

Long active in the Democratic party, Ross, in addition to his law degree, holds a bachelor of science degree in economics from the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Finance and Economics.

He is married and the father of two daughters, Lynn Ann and Rita Carol, both at home.

If he receives the Democratic nomination in the 1964 primaries, he will probably face incumbent Republican J. Edgar Chenoweth in the November general elections that year.

Officials Inspect Radio Equipment Atop Mountain

Several city and county officials made an inspection Wednesday of the recently completed emergency radio transmitter station on top of Cheyenne Mountain.

This installation will be tied in with communications equipment in the civil defense emergency operations center in the basement of the new Colorado Springs police building "to form one of the best and surest nets in the United States for emergency operations," according to Charles W. Willoughby, city-county civil defense director.

The building houses radio transmitting equipment for the El Paso County sheriff, county road department, the El Paso County Fire Fighting Association and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Willoughby said the sheriff's radio net is used to activate the civil defense warning sirens.

"For this reason," the civil defense director said," the federal government contributed one half of the installation cost of $22,000, or about $11,000."

The station consists of a 14 by 34 foot concrete block building to house the transmitting equipment, a 10 KW generator which starts automatically in case commercial power goes off and a 200-foot high radio tower.

Making the inspection trip were County Commissioners Keith McBurney, chairman, Fred C. Monk and Charles Smith; Sheriff Earl L. Sullivan, Deputy Clerk Norman C. Foote, City Councilmen William Becker and Harold Hawks, Walter C. Gowans, of Mobile Radio Engineers and representative of Motorola Radio Corp., and Willoughby.

Short Check Brings Man Jail Term

H. D. Crawford, 30, of Del City, Okla. was given 30 days in county jail and ordered to pay costs of $7 by Justice of the Peace James F. Quine Wednesday for short check.

Crawford was accused of giving a $25 check Saturday to Jay T. Marley, assistant manager of the Antlers Hotel. The check was drawn on the Del City Bank, Del City, Okla.

Massive Hunt Launched For Assassin of Negro

rifle — police pressed their hunt for the ambush slayer.

Mrs. Evers told a mourning crowd of 700 Negroes Wednesday she was determined the death of her husband would not be in vain.

Men wept unashamedly. Teenagers bit their lips and stared ahead with unblinking eyes.

"I come here tonight with a broken heart," said the 30-year-old widow, "but I come because I feel it is my duty."

"I come to make a plea. No one knows like I know how my husband gave his life for this cause before he was killed. He lived with it 24 hours a day."

She said he talked of death the day before his assassination "and said if he had to go he would rather it would be this way."

When she finished, the audience silently rose. There were no "freedom songs," no cheers, none of the exuberance that marks other mass integration rallies.

Instead, their voices pealed "My Country 'Tis of Thee, Sweet Land of Liberty."

Funeral arrangements were incomplete for Evers, who left three children—the oldest 10.

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., speaking at a New York meeting, called the slaying "an inexpressable tragedy and an unspeakable outrage."

Later, King said he will attend the funeral.

Rewards totaling $24,350 were posted for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Evers' slayer. The NAACP started the reward fund with $10,000. The city of Jackson and the United Steelworkers of America, AFL-CIO, each chipped in $5,000. The city's two newspapers added $1,000 to the fund.

The assassination came only a few hours after President Kennedy had appealed to the nation for an end to racial discrimination in the face of growing Negro discontent.

A White House statement on Evers' death said, "The President was appalled by the barbarity of this act."

Fire Department Answers Six Calls Wednesday

The Colorado Springs fire department had six alarms and resuscitator calls, in quick succession, Wednesday afternoon and night.

At 12:50 p.m. Company 6 went to Van Buren Street and Patrician Way where a truck driven by John Yahlick had caught on fire from backfiring. It was damaged to some extent.

At 2:30 p.m. Company 3 was called to the Chambon Sales warehouse, 1929 Manitou Blvd., where a trash fire had got out of control.

Company 4 at 3:54 p.m. put out a car fire in the 1200 block on E. Platte Ave. The driver, C. E. Guy, 805 S. 3rd St., Lamar, Colo., had left the emergency brake on and the heat generated set fire to the front seat of the vehicle.

The Company 3 resuscitator crew at 5:28 p.m. went to the residence of Mrs. Tekla Chonka, 805 S. 3rd St. She had suffered a believed heart attack, which resulted in her death.

At 6:18 p.m. Companies 1 and 4 went to 122 S. El Paso St., where Ray Newgill had been burning trash in a barrel. It got away from him and spread to a truck parked beside a garage. The truck was damaged.

A 8:11 p.m. Company 6 went to 3400 Templeton Gap Rd., the Garden Ranch. A barbecue was being held and the fire spread to grass and brush.

Police Hold Man For Investigation

Police are holding a man for investigation of an indecent exposure charge.

He was arrested Wednesday after he exposed himself to two women in Bonney Park. Police reports said the man was lying on the grass in the park near the intersection of Jackson Street and Wahsatch Avenue when the incident occurred.

Boy Scouts Urge Display of Flag Friday

Col. Howard H. Cloud, Jr., president of the Pikes Peak Council, Boy Scouts of America and Ray M. Ryerson, scout executive, today issued a reminder to the 7000 Scouts and adult members of the Pikes Peak Council, that the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America has urged all Scouts to display the American Flag on June 14, Flag Day.

Scout officials also urge all citizens to observe Flag Day by displaying the American Flag.

Col. Cloud said, "a resolution passed by the Continental Congress in Philadelphia on June 14, 1777 established the original Flag Day. We in Scouting urge our Scouts and all other citizens to fly the flag on this particular day in remembrance of our American Heritage."

Col. Cloud stated that the flag is far more than Red, White and Blue cloth of which it is made. It is the symbol of our America. It stands for the past and the present and the future of our Country. It stands for our people, our land and our way of life.

President George Washington said, "We will take the stars and blue union from heaven; red from our Mother country, separating it by white stripes, thus showing that we have separated from her and the white stripes shall go down to posterity representing liberty."

Col. Cloud stated that every Scout accepts the Scout Oath as a vital part of his Scouting obligation. Every Scout pledges "that he will do his best to do his duty to God and his Country." One way to do your duty to country is by properly displaying our American Flag on officially disignated days. These include Lincoln's birthday; Washington's birthday; Armed Forces Day; Memorial Day; Flag Day; Independence Day; Veteran's Day; Labor Day and the birthday of States.

A special Flag Day celebration will be held in connection with the Colorado Springs Roatary Club luncheon June 14. A special silk American Flag will be presented to the Rotary Club by Eugene Lyons, former Assistant Postmaster General. The Flag that he will present is one that was presented to Lyons by Postmaster General Arthur Sommerfield, the flag was flown over the Nation's Capitol and the Post Office Department Building in Washington, D.C.

A Flag ceremony will be presented by four Eagle Scouts of Troop 14 who received the coveted rank at a special ceremony Tuesday.

City Officials Praised By Ent Commander

Col. H. H. Cloud Jr., commander of Ent Air Force Base, has complimented city officials and personnel for their action during President John Kennedy's recent visit.

The colonel, in a letter to Mayor Harry Hoth, noted the new entrance signs to Peterson Field which were constructed before the President's visit, and thanked the Colorado Springs Police Department for its cooperation.

Mayor Hoth also sent a letter of commendation to the police department and other agencies who assisted during the President's trip thru Colorado Springs.

Petitions of Zone Changes Opposed At Public Hearing

velopment in the neighborhood. McCarty reminded the commission that there are at least two businesses in the immediate vicinity at the present time, a greenhouse and a veterinary hospital, to which no one seems to object.

Both businesses were established prior to the R-1 zoning of the area and therefore are operating legally under the county's nonconforming use resolution.

The area in question is surrounded by R and R-1 zones and the petition was denied by the planning Commission on the basis that the zone change would constitute spot zoning which is illegal.

The second petition which met opposition during the long hearing was that of Earl R. Boyd who requested that an R-2 residence district located south of Vermijo Avenue and east of Center Street be changed to an M-industrial zone.

Boyd, represented by Attorney Bernard Trott, was granted the request in spite of neighborhood opposition. Final approval must come from the Board of County Commissioners.

Trott told the commission that the request for the zone change had been made so that Boyd could extend his auto parts business some 150 feet beyond it's present boundary. Adjacent land, which is in Colorado Springs, is designated as an industrial zone.

The neighbors opposing the change were represented at the hearing by Attorney Albert S. Nelson, who said the case would be appealed.

Mrs. Blanche Pennington's petition to change an R-2 residence to a C-2 suburban business district was recommended for approval to the Board of County Commissioners by the Planning Commission. The area is east of Union Boulevard and north of Pikes Peak Avenue.

A fourth petitioner, William J. D'Agosto, did not appear before the commission at Wednesdays' hearing. His request, which was tabled, is that an area north of Brookside Street and west of Avenue A be changed from an R-1 residence to a C-2 suburban business district.

State Grazing Plans to Be Discussed Here

A member of the Colorado State Land Board will discuss administration of state grazing plans Friday at a dinner meeting of the Colorado Section, American Society of Range Management.

The dinner will begin at 6:30 p.m. at the Alamo Hotel, and reservations must be made to attend. Members and guests should call Carl Fonte, 632-7639, for reservations.

On Saturday the group will leave the hotel at 8 a.m. to tour the Kiowa watershed and inspect flood control dams, seeding of the dams, range livestock and ranch operations. They will also observe how the drouth has affected these features. The tour will be by car, and will be completed about 2 p.m.

All ranchers in the area are invited to join the group for the Friday night dinner and Saturday tour.

Third Negro Will Enroll in Alabama School

loosa campus Wednesday as two Negroes, Vivian Malone of Mobile and James A. Hood of Gadsden, attended their first classes.

They enrolled Tuesday behind federalized Alabama National Guardsmen after the governor briefly stood off federal officials seeking to get the students registered.

Wallace informed the university president, Dr. Frank A. Rose, by telegram Wednesday night that he would not be present at Huntsville today.

"President Kennedy, with the use of armed federal troops, assumed control of the campus of the University of Alabama, which includes the campus at Huntsville," Wallace wired Rose.

"Due to this illegal and unwarranted military occupation, I will not be present on the Huntsville campus . . . However, we will continue relentlessly our fight against forced integration of the University of Alabama."

With about 1,200 Alabama guardsmen on duty at Tuscaloosa, the segregationist governor wired Kennedy that state police were being withdrawn.

Peace and order were maintained, Wallace said, by his own men.

But since the federal government "assumed full responsibility for the presence of Negro students and for preserving peace and order," all state forces will withdraw, Wallace said.

The governor said 528 state officers left Wednesday and the remaining 162 troopers will pull out Sunday. City and campus police continued to patrol the Tuscaloosa campus.

Miss Malone and Hood went peacefully to classes and found friendly acceptance from many white students and indifference from others.

"I feel that I have been accepted here," Hood said, praising the university. "I think the University of Alabama should be a model to the nation."

"I have been treated courteously by everyone," said Miss Malone.

Leland Chauncey Hazen Burial in Kansas

Leland Chauncey Hazen, 1214 N. Custer, will be buried Friday at Goodland Kansas. Mr. Hazen, 68, died Tuesday at his home.

The Sage Funeral Home in Goodland is in charge of the funeral services and Law Mortuary is in charge of local arrangements.

Mr. Hazen was born Sept. 16, 1894, in Brewster, Kans. He had lived here for 18 years and was a farmer by occupation.

He was a member of the Methodist faith and was affiliated with the Eagles Lodge.

Mr. Hazen is survived by his widow Mrs. Harriett Hazen; four daughters, Mrs. June Philbrick and Mrs. Freda Deeds of Goodland, and Mrs. Irene Robison and Mrs. Betty Wicks of Brewster; nine grandchildren, and a sister, Mrs. George Sherman, Towson, Md.

Denver Man Injured in Two-Car Crash

A 22-year old Denver man sustained minor injuries Wednesday in a two-car accident on U.S. 85-87 about three miles south of Monument.

Melvin W. Sanders was taken to Penrose Hospital for treatment of abrasions to the shoulder.

State Patrolman Paul Cornell said Sanders slowed his car down as he approached a construction site. A car driven by Norman E. Westergreen, 19, also of Denver, was unable to stop and the cars collided.

The impact forced the Sanders car into a skid for 68 feet on the median strip. Cornell said the car then skidded 62 feet sideways and rolled over on its side.

pense in conducting the session."

A total of seven sessions were held at a cost of $977.02.

In the course of these sessions five witnesses appeared before the jury, some on more than one occasion, offering testimony, petitions and documents in support of their testimony for the jury's consideration.

Among complaints investigated were those of an individual citizen regarding his confinement in the state hospital and the handling of his financial affairs by legally appointed conservator during his period of incompetency; the adjudication of a damage suit heard in two of the county's courts and the dissatisfaction with the result; the sanity findings of a defendant involved in a criminal charge in District Court; an alleged violation of constitutional rights upon determination of the guilt of a citizen in a traffic violation and a question regarding the handling of funds in connection with a fund-raising drive.

A thoro examination of documents and other data together with subpoenaing of witnesses by the jury failed to reveal any criminal activities or irregularities in these matters.

In addition the audit committee made a formal investigation into the affairs of the county treasurer's office and found everything in order. "We feel," the committee reported, "the auditing system is efficient and adequate and that all the affairs in connection are in order."

The building committee checked into the condition of various public buildings. Among other things it examined the public schools at Monument, Falcon and Fountain. It was recommended that the fire escape on the second floor of the Monument School, the floor is not in use at present, be repaired and that the panic hardware on the exit floor door from the gymnasium at Falcon also undergo repair. The committee also reported that the exit door from the auditorium of the junior high school at Fountain required repairs and that there were no fire extinguishers in the chemistry room.

The county superintendent of Schools was informed of these deficiencies.

$10,000 Bond Set In Robbery Case

A charge of aggravated robbert was filed in District Court Wednesday against David Thomas Harris Jr. and Judge William M. Calvert set a $10,000 bond.

Harris, 20 of P.O. Box 2736, Colorado Springs, is alleged to have robbed an employee of the North Corona Grocery, Janice Mae Lebeaux, and escaped with $10, Jan. 29.

Miss Anna Schellenberg Died Here Wednesday

Miss Anna F. Schellenberg, a retired practical nurse and nursery school teacher, died Wednesday at a local hospital at the age of 72.

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at The Law Mortuary with Dr. Howard E. Hansen officiating. Miss Schellenberg will be buried in Evergreen Cemetery.

She was born Jan. 28, 1891, in Mound Ridge, Kans., and moved here from Kansas in 1928. Miss Schellenberg lived at 1938½ Ridgeway. She operated a nursery school for about 10 years in her home in Stratton Park and worked as a practical nurse at Sunny Rest Sanitarium for many years.

She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church.

Foreign Students Need Weekend Rides

Anybody headed north, south, east or west this Saturday or Sunday or soon thereafter? If so, there is an opportunity for him to practice his French, German, Dutch, Chinese, Japanese, Hindi and goodness knows what other language if he has room to accommodate a foreign student who is in Colorado Springs this week for the seventh annual Summer Crossroads program.

Several of the students would like to see as much of the West as they can before returning to their home country and have to stretch their travel money to the utmost. Others must head east. All would appreciate the offer of a ride. If you have a ride to offer call Mrs. Robert H. Smith at 634-6138 or Douglas Freed at 685-5391 for further information.

No-Account Check Charges Filed Wednesday

Two charges of no-account check were filed in District Court Wednesday against two out-of-town men.

The first is Herbert Godfrey Thiel Jr., 22, of New York, N.Y. Information stated the defendant gave a $40 check to Sears Roebuck and Co. March 30.

Bond has been set at $2,000 by Judge William M. Calvert.

The second case involves James W. Sweet Sr., 30, of Costa Mesa, Calif. It is alleged he gave a $20 no account check to Millers Super Markets Jan. 15.

Judge Calvert set bond at $1,500.

Funeral services will be held at 9 a.m. Friday at the Swan Drawing Room. Dr. W. G. Schaefer will officiate. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

Col. Johnson Attends Meeting at Ft. Monroe

Lt. Col. Andrew L. Johnson, assistant Fort Carson chaplain, is among 43 Army chaplains meeting June this week at Continental Army Command Headquarters, Ft. Monroe, Va.

They will discuss programming and budgeting for CONARC's 2.5 million active Army and Reserve Component personnel with special attention to mobilization chapels. These chapels are not in use now but must be ready for possible mobilization.

Religious services, education, counseling, character guidance, community relations, hospital visits and stockade visits are specific items to be considered at Ft. Monroe's Chapel Center.

School District Boundary Change Plan Is Tabled

property. District 11 officials said commissioners felt they could get more money for the property if it was included in District 12.

It was brought out that several years ago, residents of the area wanted officials to make the boundary line change. According to local officials, a number of persons bought homes in the area believing it to be in District 12 and were "upset" when they found it was in District 11.

No action was taken at that time because the law required a boundary line change to be followed by a reorganization of the school board and new elections. This was too costly.

However, the law has been changed and the boundary line can now be altered with consent of both districts and a two-thirds majority vote of residents of the area involved.

District 11 officials said they would study the proposal before reaching a decision, probably at their next meeting.

Directors Wednesday paid tribute to Phil More who is retiring as building consultant for the district after eight and a half years.

A resolution, citing More for his "outstanding accomplishment and an unusually high level of devotion to duty," was passed unanimously at the meeting.

More, who was given a surprise testimonial dinner by area architects early this week, was visibly moved by the action and said he wanted to thank the board for the "friendship, the confidence in me and the cooperation you have given me in the past eight years."

The consultant, who has spent more than 50 years in the construction business, presented a list of statistics covering his work during his time in office.

He said that between Dec. 31, 1954 and Dec. 31, 1962, 17 new buildings have been constructed in the district. This includes administration and other buildings in additions to schools.

There were additions to 21 buildings in that period and other construction including a football stadium, he said. The number of pupils entering the district schools increased by 9,730 in that period and additional space was provided for a total of 10,040 pupils.

More said that a total of $14,400,000 has been spent for schools. This figure includes everything from land acquisition to books for the students. Of this total $11,100,000 was actual construction cost.

He pointed with pride to the fact that changes in plans increased the overall cost by just .8 of 1 per cent. A minimum of 5 per cent additional cost is usually estimated for each job.

More pointed out that the average cost for school buildings is the same as it was in 1947 despite increases in the costs of supplies and labor.

"We have school buildings here which will last for many years with a minimum of maintenance, but more important we have buildings which are excellent teaching tools," More said.

He will be replaced by Walter Keunning who has worked closely with More for the past six months.

In other action the board said it would refund premiums from the district's group life insurance plan to all persons concerned. The refund comes from the 1961-62 school year during which period there were no deaths among the district's employes on the plan.

The refund will be made out to each individual and paid in October.

Directors awarded seven master teaching certificates and accepted three teacher resignations.

A total of 59 new teachers were appointed, the largest single group so far this year. Officials said that 158 new teachers have been hired so far. This includes 75 secondary teachers and 83 elementary teachers and leaves just five vacancies for elementary teachers.

A report from the building consultant's office showed that work was 65 per cent complete on the new John Adams School and is on schedule; the multi-purpose rooms at Garfield and Lowell School are ahead of schedule and should be completed by July 20; work on converting the Lowell School gymnasium into two classrooms has just started; the Helen Hunt School addition is on schedule and should be completed on time.

The Howbert School Addition is behind schedule and the contractor has gone to a nine-hour day in an effort to make up time lost by delay in shipment of the steel roof deck. However, window wall-units have not been received as yet and this will put the project further behind schedule. Other work is on or ahead of schedule.

Directors formally approved the list of 1963 graduates from Palmer and Wasson High Schools.

They also gave permission to the Pikes Peak Chapter of the National Ski Patrol to use the Palmer High School gymnasium for special classes eight nights during the next school term.

Ancient Prophesies Cast Shadow on Vatican Vote

By JERRY KLEIN

NEW YORK (NEA) — When the papal throne is vacated by death, the attention of the world is centered on the Cardinals of the Catholic Church as they gather solemnly in the Vatican to decide who among them will become Pope.

But across their conclave falls a strange shadow. This puzzling shadow is cast by a man who almost a thousand years ago seemingly foresaw all of the Popes until the end of time, and left a series of brief descriptions suggesting who they would be.

For centuries, each time a new Pope has been named, the College of Cardinals has made the choice. But their selections have had a relation to ancient prophecies that has been truly amazing —predictions by St. Malachy.

"Those who have followed the course of events in an intelligent manner cannot fail to be impressed" by these eerie predictions, says the Catholic Encyclopedia. "There is something more than coincidence in the designations given . . . so many hundreds of years before their time."

For example, the prophetic description of Pope John XXII was the Latin phrase, "De sutore osseo," meaning "from the bony shoemaker." As it happened, this Pope turned out to be the son of a shoemaker — whose family name was Ossa, meaning "bone."

Another of these prophetic phrases was "Ex rosa leonina" meaning "from a leonine rose." The Pope to whom this description applied was Honorious IV, whose family coat of arms was a rose held by two lions.

The prophet, St. Malachy, was a strange man who was elevated to sainthood. He was born in Ireland in 1094 to a noble family named O'Morgair.

A serious-minded youth, he did not care for the idle pastimes of the other boys in the village of Armagh. Perhaps influenced by a devout mother, young Malachy instead displayed an early interest in religion, joining the Church at the age of 17.

Ordained at 25, by the age of 30 he had become Bishop of Connor; and at 38, Archbishop of Armagh.

What St. Malachy foresaw, so many centuries ago, he set down in a list of 112 brief phrases. They have become "the most famous and best-known prophecies about the Popes."

These predictions do not foretell any actual names. They refer—in strict historical order—to birthplaces, coats of arms, titles or some identifying trait or activity. Still, they puzzle the imagination and defy natural explanation.

"Lilium et rosa" was, for instance, the phrase Malachy used to describe the Pope named in the year 1623. This turned out to be Urban VIII, whose family shield did indeed display—"lilies and roses."

"Anguinus vir," meaning snake man, was the prediction Malachy made about the Pope which would prove to be Gregory X. This Pontiff had a snake on his coat of arms.

"Piccolomini" was the saint's one-word forecast of Pius III. And this Pope was indeed noted for being a "piccolomini," meaning a man short in stature.

St. Malachy left the phrase "Pilgrim Pope" to describe the man who ascended the Throne of The Vatican in 1775. Pius VI fulfilled this prophecy with the unusual act for a Pope. He left Rome to visit Germany.

"A cross from a cross" are the saint's words about Pius IG, who became Pope in 1846. "The afflictions and crosses of Pius IX were more than fell to the lot of his predecessors," notes a religious historian, "and the more aggravating of these crosses were brought on by the House of Savoy whose emblem was a cross."

What of Pope No. 261, Angelo Giuseppi Roncalli—John XXIII? St. Malachy's prophetic phrase about him is especially interesting. "Pastor et nauta," meaning "shepherd and sailor."

Well, John XXIII came to The Vatican from that city of ships and sailors, Venice. There he was known as an especially good friend of the boatmen, knowing many of the mariners by their first names. He made his pastoral debut there, just ten years ago, a watery affair — moving along the Grand Canal by gondola. Later on he was often seen motorboating through the waters on Church business.

As for the rest of St. Malachy's "shepherd and sailor" prophecy, John XXIII proclaimed on the day of his coronation the desire to be, above all else, a "good shepherd." He made it clear that his Papal mission would be "essentially pastoral."

He repeated the words of St. John regarding the good shepherd who "goes before the flock" and and "lays down his life for his sheep."

Surely, declared a friend of the Irish archbishop who left predictions, St. Bernard of Clairvaux, "The gift of prophecy was not denied" to St. Malachy. Presented to Pope Innocent — and placed in the Vatican Archives, his 12 forecasts listed every Father of the Church from Celestine II to the as-yet-unknown Pontiff who will reign when the end of the world comes.

From St. Malachy's predictions, it would seem that this day is close at hand. In fact, only a handful of Popes apparently remain between now and the Last Judgment. The prophetic phrase left by St. Malachy to describe the next Pope is "Flos florum," meaning "a flower of flowers." Then, in order, are to come

De medietate lunae — from a half-moon

De labore solis — from the toil of the sun

Gloria olivae — the glory of the olive.

Romanus Petrus — Roman Peter

St. Malchy expanded his prediction on the last of the Holy Fathers. "There will reign Peter the Roman who will feed his flock among many tribulations," he wrote, "after which the seven-hilled city Rome will be destroyed, and the dreadful Judge will judge the people."

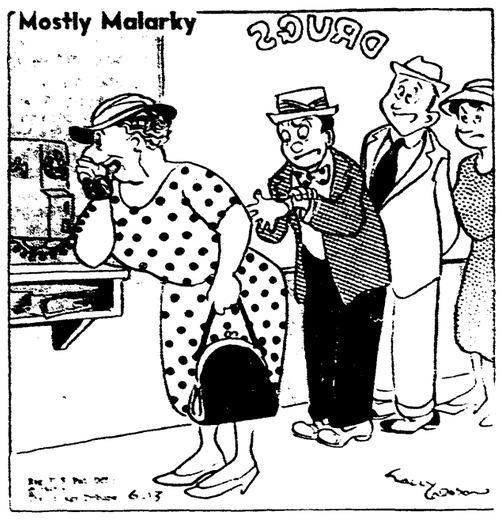

This prophecy of doom is lent support by still another strange phenomenon. You may see it for yourself in the famous and beautiful Basilica of St. Paul, outside the walls of Rome.

Visiting this church, thousands of tourists a year are struck by the beauty of the mosaic portraits of the Popes that circle the majestic interior. High up on the walls are 261 of these oval medallions portraying all of the Popes, from St. Peter to John XXIII.

The disturbing thing is that only a handful of empty spaces are left for mosaic portraits of the Popes who are yet to come —the same number prophesied by St. Malachy.

So in this basilica, founded in the year 386, just as in the eerie predictions made by St. Malachy centuries later, time seems to be running out for the world.

Links Claimed For Smoking, Heart Disease

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Heart Association says here that a scientific study conducted since 1960 "strongly suggests" there is a relationship between cigarette smoking and heart disease.

The association for the first time adopted a statement urging teen-agers and adults with high risk of coronary disease, as harmful to health.

The organization's board of directors adopted the report on smoking and cardiovascular diseases prepared by a committee of physicians and scientists.

The association's latest report reviews scientific evidence collected since 1960, when a previous study called attention to the statistical relationship between smoking and death or illness from coronary heart disease.

This statistical association does not prove that heavy cigarette smoking causes coronary heart disease," the report said. "But the data strongly suggest that heavy cigarette smoking may contribute to or accelerate the development of coronary heart disease or its complications."

The latest survey said that no information has become available which contradicts or invalidates the 1960 report. The committee also expresses the feeling that interval developments since the 1960 report not only confirm but supplement the 1960 report."

It was recommended that the association join with the agencies "in educational programs for teen-agers relative to cigarette smoking."

Favorable Action Seen on Silt Project

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy is expected to take favorable action on a request for funds to start the S. reclamation project in western Colorado, Reclamation Commissioner Floyd Dominy said Tuesday.

Dominy, speaking before the Senate Public Works Appropriations subcommittee, made it clear he anticipated favorable action by the President.

He told Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., a member of the subcommittee, that a request to include $500,000 for the project in fiscal 1964 appropriations had been submitted to the President.

The $6 million project in Garfield County was authorized five years ago by Congress as a participating unit of the Colorado River Storage Project, but funds to start it have long been delayed.

Rise and Fall Seen In Oil Production

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)— Oil production last week rose in Louisiana and Texas but not enough to offset a decline in Oklahoma, the Oil and Gas Journal reported Tuesday.

The nation's output of crude oil and lease condensate averaged 7,441,425 barrels daily during the week ended last Saturday, according to the weekly survey. The total is a drop of 25,450 barrels a day from the previous week.

Oklahoma production fell 32,375 barrels daily to 510,325. It was the third consecutive week of decline.

Oklahoma production fell 32,375 barrelsd ailyt o 510,325. It was the third consecutive week of decline in Oklahoma production.

Louisiana increased 14,275 barrels daily to 1,432,500 and Texas was up 10,650 to 2,613,000.

Besides Oklahoma decreases occurred in Wyoming, down 3,800 to 380,900; Illinois, down 3,275 to 201,925; Kansas, down 2,525 to 308,975; and New Mexico, down 1,900 to 302,400.

Completions of new wells also declined last week in the nation with 807 wells completed, a drop of 68 from the previous week.

Texas completed 241 wells, a drop of 43, and Louisiana declined 27 to 110. Oklahoma completed 91, an increase of 34.

Cardinal From Poland Arrives in Vatican

ROME (AP) — Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, the Roman Catholic primate of Poland, arrived today for the conclave that will elect a new Pope.

Hundreds cheered the 61-year-old cardinal as his train pulled in. But he reminded them of the death of Pope John XXIII.

"Do not applaud. Remember that this is a time of grief for . . ." he said.

New Structure Urged For Health Service

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Surgeon General Luther L. Terry told Congress Tuesday that the Public Health Service (PHS) needs a new organizational structure to keep up with rapidly changing health problems.

Terry said the PHS is still operating under the plan set up in 1943, which he indicated was inadequate to present-day requirements. He added further:

"If the next 20 years witness as many changes in the scope and emphasis of service functions and responsibilities as the past 20 years, this proposed reorganization may require future revisions to keep pace with our changing responsibilities."

Terry testified before a House commerce subcommittee considering legislation that would give the surgeon general, with the approval of the secretary of health, education and welfare, administrative authority to reorganize the service. At present Congress must approve every change.

Western Force Will Exercise in Thailand

By TONY ESCODA

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A 25,000-man force from eight nations will dramatize Western military readiness this week in a region where the Communist shadow has been lengthening.

The force, the largest ever assembled by the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, will be deployed along an imaginary battle line stretching through Thailand's northeast provinces — across the border from Red-threatened Laos.

Should the Communists succeed in their campaign to take over Laos, military experts consider northeast Thailand may become the new battleground in the heartland of Southeast Asia.

Communist subversion already has become a problem in that isolated and backward region.

Purpose of the massive SEATO effort is to test the ability of a joint army to fight under conditions that could exist in case of a Communist attack from the Mekong River frontier.

For centuries, each time a new Pope has been named, the College of Cardinals has made the choice. But their selections have had a relation to ancient prophecies that has been truly amazing —predictions by St. Malachy.

"Those who have followed the course of events in an intelligent manner cannot fail to be impressed" by these eerie predictions, says the Catholic Encyclopedia. "There is something more than coincidence in the designations given . . . so many hundreds of years before their time."

For example, the prophetic description of Pope John XXII was the Latin phrase, "De sutore osseo," meaning "from the bony shoemaker." As it happened, this Pope turned out to be the son of a shoemaker — whose family name was Ossa, meaning "bone."

Another of these prophetic phrases was "Ex rosa leonina," meaning "from a leonine rose." The Pope to whom this description applied was Honorious IV, whose family coat of arms was a rose held by two lions.

The prophet, St. Malachy, was a strange man who was elevated to sainthood. He was born in Ireland in 1094 to a noble family named O'Morgair.

A serious-minded youth, he did not care for the idle pastimes of the other boys in the village of Armagh. Perhaps influenced by a devout mother, young Malachy instead displayed an early interest in religion, joining the Church at the age of 17.

Ordained at 25, by the age of 30 he had become Bishop of Connor; and at 38, Archbishop of Armagh.

What St. Malachy foresaw, so many centuries ago, he set down in a list of 112 brief phrases. They have become "the most famous and best-known prophecies about the Popes."

These predictions do not foretell any actual names. They refer—in strict historical order—to birthplaces, coats of arms, titles or some identifying trait or activivity. Still, they puzzle the imagination and defy natural explanation.

"Lilium et rosa" was, for instance, the phrase Malachy used to describe the Pope named in the year 1623. This turned out to be Urban VIII, whose family shield did indeed display—"lilies and roses."

"Anguinus vir," meaning snake man, was the prediction Malachy made about the Pope which would prove to be Gregory X. This Pontiff had a snake on his coat of arms.

"Piccolimini" was the saint's one-word forecast of Pius III. And this Pope was indeed noted for being a "piccolomini," meaning a man short in stature.

St. Malachy left the phrase "Pilgrim Pope" to describe the man who ascended the Throne of The Vatican in 1775. Pius VI fulfilled this prophecy with the unusual act for a Pope. He left Rome to visit Germany.

"A cross from a cross" are the saint's words about Pius IG, who became Pope in 1846. "The afflictions and crosses of Pius IX were more than fell to the lot of his predecessors," notes a religious historian, "and the more aggravating of these crosses were brought on by the House of Savoy whose emblem was a cross."

What of Pope No. 261, Angelo Giuseppii Roncalli—John XXIII? St. Malachy's prophetic phrase about him is especially interesting: "Pastor et nauta," meaning "shepherd and sailor."

Well, John XXIII came to The Vatican from that city of ships and sailors, Venice. There he was known as an especially good friend of the boatmen, knowing many of the mariners by their first names. He made his pastoral debut there, just ten years ago, a watery affair — moving along the Grand Canal by gondola. Later on he was often seen motorboating through the waters on Church business.

As for the rest of St. Malachy's "shepherd and sailor" prophecy, John XXIII proclaimed on the day of his coronation the desire to be, above all else, a "good shepherd." He made it clear that his Papal mission would be "essentially pastorla."

He repeated the words of St. John regarding the good shepherd who "goes before the flock" and and "lays down his life for his sheep."

Surely, declared a friend of the Irish archbishop who left predictions, St. Bernard of Clarivaux, "The gift of prophecy was not denied" to St. Malachy. Presented to Pope Innocent — and placed in the Vatican Archives, his 12 forecasts listed every Father of the Church from Celestine II to the as-yet-unknown Pontiff who will reign when the end of the world comes.

From St. Malachy's predictions, it would seem that this day is close at hand. In fact, only a handful of Popes apparently remain between now and the Last Judgment. The prophetic phrase left by St. Malachy to describe the next Pope is "Flos florum," meaning "a flower of flowers." Then, in order, are to come:

De medietate lunae — from a half-moon.

De labore solis — from the toil of the sun.

Gloria olivae — the glory of the olive.

Romanus Petrus — Roman Peter.

St. Malchy expanded his prediction on the last of the Holy Fathers. "There will reign Peter the Roman who will feed his flock among many tribulations," he wrote, "after which the seven-hilled city (Rome) will be destroyed, and the dreadful Judge will judge the people."

This prohpecy of doom is lent support by still another strange phenomenon. You may see it for yourself in the famous and beautiful Basilica of St. Paul, outside the walls of Rome.

Visiting this church, thousands of tourists a year are struck by the beauty of the mosaic portraits of the Popes that circle the majestic interior. High up on the walls are 261 of these oval medallions portraying all of the Popes from St. Peter to John XXIII.

The disturbing thing is that only a handful of empty spaces are left for mosaic portraits of the Popes who are yet to come —the same number prophesied by St. Malachy.

So in this basilica, founded in the year 386, just as in the eerie predictions made by St. Malachy centuries later, time seems to be running out for the world.

Links Claimed For Smoking, Heart Disease

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Heart Association says here that a scientific study conducted since 1960 "strongly suggests" there is a relationship between cigarette smoking and heart disease.

The association for the first time adopted a stand to discourage smoking ,particularly among teen-agers and adults with a high risk of coronary disease, as harmful to health.

The organization's board of directors adopted the report on smoking and cardiovascular diseases prepared by a committee of physicians and scientists.

The association's latest report reviews scientific evidence collected since 1960, when a previous study called attention to the statistical relationship between smoking and death or illness from coronary heart disease.

"This statistical association does not prove that heavy cigarette smoking causes coronary heart disease," the report said, "but the data strongly suggests that heavy cigarette smoking may contribute to or accelerate the development of coronary heart disease or its complications."

The latest survey said that "no information has become available which contradicts or invalidates the 1960 report . . . (the) committee . . . expresses the feeling that interval developments since the 1960 report not only confirm but supplement the 1960 report."

It was recommended that the association join with the agencies "in educational programs for teen-agers relative to cigarette smoking."

Favorable Action Seen on Silt Project

WASHINGTON (UPI)— President Kennedy is expected to take favorable action on a request for funds to start the Silt reclamation project in western Colorado, Reclamation Commissioner Floyd Dominy said Tuesday.

Dominy, speaking before the Senate Public Works Appropriations subcommittee, made it clear he anticipated favorable action by the President.

He told Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., a member of the subcommittee, that a request to include $500,000 for the project in fiscal 1964 appropriations had been submitted to the President.

The $6 million project in Garfield County was authorized five years ago by Congress as a participating unit of the Colorado River Storage Project, but funds to start it have long been delayed.

Rise and Fall Seen In Oil Production

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)— Oil production last week rose in Louisiana and Texas but not enough to offset a decline in Oklahoma, the Oil and Gas Journal reported Tuesday.

The nation's output of crude and lease condensate averaged 7,441,425 barrels daily during the week ended last Saturday, according to the weekly survey. The total is a drop of 25,450 barrels a day from the previous week.

Oklahoma production fell 32,375 barrels daily to 510,325. It was the third consecutive week of decline.

Oklahoma production fell 32,375 barrelsd ailyt o 510,325. It was the third consecutive week of decline in Oklahoma production.

Louisiana increased 14,275 barrels daily to 1,432,700 and Texas was up 10,650 to 2,613,000.

Besides Oklahoma, decreases occurred in Wyoming, down 3,800 to 380,900; Illinois, down 3,275 to 201,925; Kansas, down 2,525 to 300,975, and New Mexico, down 1,900 to 302,400.

Completions of new wells also declined last week in the nation with 807 wells completed, a drop of 68 from the previous week.

Texas completed 241 wells, a drop of 43, and Louisiana declined 27 to 110. Oklahoma completed 91, an increase of 34.

Cardinal From Poland Arrives in Vatican

ROME (AP) — Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, the Roman Catholic primate of Poland, arrived today for the conclave that will elect a new Pope.

Hundreds cheered the 61-year-old cardinal as his train pulled in. But he reminded them of the death of Pope John XXIII.

"Do not applaud. Remember that this is a time of grief for us," he said.

New Structure Urged For Health Service

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Surgeon General Luther L. Terry told Congress Tuesday that the Public Health Service (PHS) needs a new organizational structure to keep up with rapidly changing health problems.

Terry said the PHS is still operating under the plan set up in 1943, which he indicated was inadequate to present-day requirements. He added further:

"If the next 20 years witness as many changes in the scope and emphasis of service functions and responsibilities as the past 20 years, this proposed reorganization may require future revisions to keep pace with our changing responsibilities."

Terry testified before a House commerce subcommittee considering legislation that would give the surgeon general, with the approval of the secretary of health, education and welfare, administrative authority to reorganize the service. At present Congress must approve every change.

Western Force Will Exercise in Thailand

By TONY ESCODA

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A 25,000-man force from eight nations will dramatize Western military readiness this week in a region where the Communist shadow has been lengthening.

The force, the largest ever assembled by the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, will be deployed along an imaginary battle line stretching through Thailand's northeast provinces — across the border from Red-threatened Laos.

Should the Communists succeed in their campaign to take over Laos, military experts consider northeast Thailand may become the next battleground in the heartland of Southeast Asia.

Communist subversion already has become a problem in that isolated and backward region.

Purpose of the massive SEATO effort is to test the ability of a joint army to fight under conditions most likely to exist in case of a Communist attack from across the Mekong River frontier.

Copter Pilot Gets Them in Bad Weather

By STEVE LOWELL

SEATTLE (AP) — Dave Gershowitz gingerly let his helicopter down toward the three Navy airmen bobbing in the chill water of the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

He had to be careful. The flying weather wasn't the best for 'copters, the tanks were heavy with fuel, and he was carrying an extra crewman.

The weight would make it difficult to hover over the airmen during their rescue and the engine would be strained to stay aloft once they were aboard.

Gershowitz eased into position about 25 feet from target, and his men Robert H. Wheeler and J. W. Gillihan, reeled out a cable with a looped end. Two of the men in the water fitted the loop under the arms of the third, and Wheeler and Gillihan started reeling him in.

To counter the added weight, Gershowitz poured on the power. The chore took almost all the engine could put out. Gershowitz realized that he couldn't rescue all at once, so he altered his plan.

He flew the airman to a beach about two miles away, left him and Wheeler, and returned for the other two. Gillihan hoisted them aboard, and Gershowitz headed for Ediz Hook Coast Guard Station at Port Angeles, a few miles away. He left them and flew back to the beach for Wheeler and the third ditched airman. In moments he was back at Port Angeles, and the trio was safely in a hospital.

From the time the distress call was heard, it took Gershowitz just 28 minutes to complete the rescue.

Gershowitz, one of the rescuing-est pilots in an outfit noted for rescue work, was filling out flight forms at Ediz Hook when he overheard the air traffic controller report the distress call. There was no other information. No location. Nothing. A few minutes before that, when he landed, a Navy chopper had taken off. Gershowitz recalled that. So he asked what radio frequency was used to give takeoff directions to the pilot and on what frequency the call for help was heard. They were the same.

When he learned the copter's destination was Oak Harbor Naval Station, across the wide waters where the strait joins Puget Sound, he was convinced the Ediz Hook and Oak Harbor.

He sprinted for his eggbeater, grabbing Wheeler and Gillihan on the way. He had hardly left the ground before he was on the radio asking the length of time between the Navy craft's takeoff and the instant the distress call was heard. It was seven minutes.

Gershowitz picked a speed he figured the Navy ship was traveling, and 6½ minutes later he spotted an oil slick and three bright orange crash helmets. There were the unlucky helicopter crewmen, A. K. Babbitt of Detroit Lakes, Minn., the pilot; Glen W. Huntley, McMinnville, Ore., and Robert Everly, of Bushnell, Ill.

Gershowitz, a husky 41-year-old commander in the Coast Guard, was awarded the Air Medal for that rescue and several others he made during his tour of duty at Port Angeles.

This blue-eyed curly-haired man with the ready grin feels he's done something worthwhile for mankind.

Dave Gershowitz has been interested in flying since he was a small boy on Long Island, N.Y. When World War II came, he flight training and was assigned to patrol bombers flying out of Floyd Bennett Field on Long Island on the search for Nazi subs. During that time he saw his first helicopter and asked for training in them.

All of Gershowitz' air-sea treks haven't been of the mercy type. One was his voyage to the Antarctic as a member of the late Adm. Richard Byrd's Operation Highjump in 1956-57. His principal duty aboard the icebreaker Northwind was flying ahead of the fleet, carrying an observer who looked for weak places in the ice pack through which the ships could move.

He also is a veteran of chopper flying in the Arctic. In 1955 he went with the Northwind to help deliver ship cargoes for construction of the DEW "distant early warning" radar line.

In the four years Gershowitz spent in the Pacific Northwest on his first tour of duty he made 71 assistance flights ranging from searches for overdue boats, delivering doctors to ships at sea and removing injured hikers from mountain ledges to rescuing the three Navy airmen. He's taken part in at least 10 mountain rescues in the area, and, as a result, he was made a member of the Mountain Rescue Council.

Probe of Sugar Dealings Conducted

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an effort to find out who is holding abnormally large supplies of sugar in the United States, the federal government has asked sugar companies to name all persons who received a carload or more of sugar between April 1 and May 31.

The reports were requested by the Department of Agriculture from cane sugar refiners, beet sugar processors and importers of refined cane sugar. They are due June 30.

Officials said congressional committees are looking into the sugar situation and asked for the information. So far, the officials said, no action is contemplated to ask holders to reduce stocks regardless of their size.

NEW DOUBLE DESK — Marge Berry, left, and Hazel Shoemaker, employes of the City Street Department, work at a new desk built by Walt C. Trevethan, city carpenter. The 600-pound desk is 13½ feet long, 38 inches wide, and is topped with solid birch stained a walnut color. A smaller desk was completed by Trevethan several months ago for Don Lawrie, city street superintendent. The City Council table, destined for City Manager John M. Bierry's conference room, was also built by Trevethan. The remodeled council chambers will have a semi-circular seating arrangement for Council members. Trevethan built all of the tables in between regular jobs.

Solons Expect Slow Going On Civil Rights

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's call for civil rights legislation swiftly received the backing of congressional leaders of both parties but they expect its progress to be slow and turbulent.

"I will devote my very best efforts" to seeking an effective program, said Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois after Kennedy's address to the nation Tuesday night.

Dirksen said he recognized "that Congress has a responsibility in this field and there should be some action in this session."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, assistant Senate Democratic leader, made it clear he too wants action and afford greater protection for Negroes' right to vote, but does not expect any final action until late summer or any of the Republican-backed civil rights proposals the President sent to the Senate against civil rights measures. Humphrey said the administration will have to get along as best it can without additional authority in its attempts to guard off filibuster.

"This is going to be a warm summer," he commented.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., said: "The threat I just heard tonight that the Negroes will be in the streets if there is a filibuster—which there will be—will mean a lot of bloodshed. I'm sorry this is in store—more violence, bloodshed without question."

"I will devote my very best efforts" to seeking an effective program, said Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois after Kennedy's address to the nation Tuesday night.

Dirksen said he recognized "that Congress has a responsibility in this field and there should be some action in this session."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, assistant Senate Democratic leader, made it clear he does not expect any final action until late summer on any of the civil rights proposals the President promised to send to Congress next week.

Humphrey had told a news conference Tuesday that administration leaders will press for action on other segments of his program—some form of aid to education, the long-delayed tax reduction bill, a youth employment measure and other legislation.

The civil rights program, Kennedy said in his address to the nation Tuesday night, will include measures to bar discrimination in stores, hotels, restaurants and theaters; allow the federal government to take a more active role in public school desegregation suits, and afford greater protection for Negroes' right to vote.

Forecasting a Southern filibuster in the Senate against civil rights measures, Humphrey said the administration will have to get along as best it can without additional legal authority in its attempts to ward off racial violence.

"This is going to be a warm summer," he commented.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., said "The threat I just heard tonight that the Negroes will lie in the streets if there is a filibuster—which there will be—will mean a lot of bloodshed. I'm sorry this is in store—more violence, bloodshed without question."

Historical Flags To Be Posted During Ceremony

Flags which have figured in American history from the days of the Revolution will be posted during the annual Flag Day ceremony sponsored by the Colorado Springs Elks Lodge No. 309 Friday at 8:30 p.m. in Acacia Park.

Col. Ralph H. Bowen, acting logistics officer of the Army Air Defense Command, will be the speaker.

James L. Sutherland, exalted ruler of the Elks Lodge, said the program is open to the public and he urged all persons who are interested in promoting patriotism to attend.

The program will begin with a half-hour band concert of martial music, which will be played by the 179th Army Field Band of Fort Carson, directed by CWO Andrew Stumpf.

The history of "Old Glory" will be narrated by Cecil Y. Wright, a past exalted ruler of the Elks Lodge, assisted by the Elks orchestra and Explorer Post No. 509 of the Boy Scouts of America. The troop uniquely carries the same numerical designation as its sponsor group, the Colorado Springs Elks.

James Oaks, Eagle Scout, will give the response, and Scouts Bob Coleman, Richard Kiefer, Jess Smith, Dick Sauer, Mike Walth and Garry Mallernee, in turn, will display and post the various flags to depict the history leading up to the present 50-star National Emblem. The first will be the "Don't Tread on Me" banner.

The troop's adult adviser is Eldon Coleman.

Other highlights will include singing of "America the Beautiful" by tenor George Garriques, who also will lead the spectators in singing "America," and a prayer by Roger W. Martwick, the Elks chaplain.

Exalted Ruler Sutherland said that in the event of bad weather the ceremony will be conducted at the Elks Home, 3400 North Nevada Ave. and that he public would be welcome there.

Lodges of the Benevolent and protective Order of the Elks (BPOE) throughout the nation sponsor ceremonies, which are mandatory for members, each Flag Day. The Elks Flag Day committee for this year includes coachairmen Noel A. Cummings, the immediate past exalted ruler and Mulford R. Link, and members John Godec Jr., Jim Boiger, and Eldon Coleman.

Sabin Vaccine To Be Distributed At Ft. Carson

The final immunization with Sabin oral polio vaccine, Type III, is scheduled from 9 to 11 a.m., Saturday, and June 29, at the Ft. Carson U. S. Army Hospital Room 124, the Well Baby Clinic.

All military dependants who have taken Types I and II of the oral vaccine are urged to complte the series.

Those who have not had the Sabin vaccine can begin their immunization series either date.

Salk vaccine shots are no longer being given by the Army and are not acceptable for overseas travel.

Children who have received measles immunization recently should wait at least three weeks from the date they were vaccinated for measles before they take the Sabin vaccine.

Carson clinics are arranged to allow this time interval.

Right Attitude Week Scheduled By SWAP Club

The SWAP Salesmen With A Purpose Club will sponsor Right Attitude Week June 16-22.

Right Attitude lapel buttons and membership cards may be obtained from club members, the Chamber of Commerce and business houses.

Banks of the Pikes Peak Region are offering their facilities to residents to choose their candidate for Right Attitude. Ballots and ballot boxes will be located in bank lobbies for those who wish to participate.

All residents are urged by the SWAP Club to vote for their favorite example of right attitude and the top 25 vote-getters will receive recognition and publicity.

Merchants are emphasizint the importance of a right attitude all year around and the Chamber of Commerce places parucular emphasis on local citizens exemplifying a right attitude for the benefit of summer visitors.

"Let's make Colorado Springs the best city in the U. S. A.," said Mayor Harry Hoth, in casting the first ballot.

SWAP Club officials believe this can be accomplished and offer services toward that end.

Greer Manning Signs Up for Peak Hill Climb

After 15 years of planning, Greer Manning of Colorado Springs — reportedly one of the area's hottest midget car drivers — has entered the 14th annual Pikes Peak Auto Hill Climb this July 4th for the first time.

Manning and other top entries including the Unsers, Bobby and Louie, will out to beat the clock up 14,110 Pikes Peak. Managing director of the Hill Climb, J. C. Agajanian has posted a purse of $12,550 plus $7,500 in accessory money in the race to the clouds.

The Colorado Springs resident Shaver are co-owners of the hot Special in the world's richest race per mile. Gene Podoli, also of this city, has entered the 327 cubic inch Chevrolet powered mount in the championship class.

Manning and his partner, Buck Shaver, are co-owners of the hot midget that Greer drives as well as the Shaver-Manning, Phillips Service Station at 1702 S. Nevada. The latest entry in the Hill Climb has been a steady winner in his Chevy II midget and has been regularly cleaning house over the Offenhausers at Denver's Lakeside Park. Greer is equally at home in a sprint or stock car.

The father of three children will have an opportunity to fulfill an ambition he has had since moving to Colorado in 1951 — competing in the Pikes Peak Auto Hill Climb.

In addition to cash prizes, world's championship hill climb points will be sanctioned thru the United States Auto Club and the Federation Internationale de L'Automobile FIA. Ford Grant Given Colorado Colleges

A $1,000 grant from the Ford Motor Company Fund to the Associated Colleges of Colorado has been announced by Benson Ford, president of the Fund.

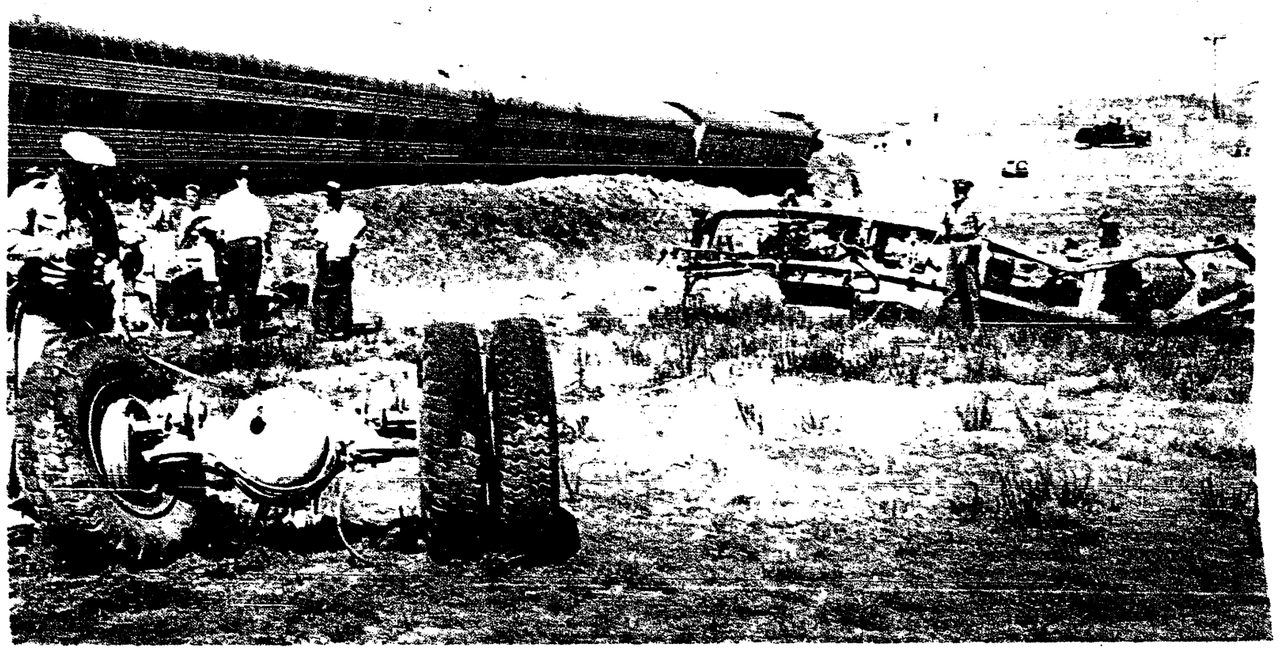

The Colorado group is composed of Colorado College, Colorado Springs; Colorado Woman's College, Denver; Loretto Heights College, Loretto; and Regis College, Denver. It is one of 40 educational associations, representing 494 member institutions, to which Ford Fund grants totaling $86,600 are being made at this time.

Formed in 1948 to seek financial aid to higher education, the state association movement now represents a majority of the privately supported liberal arts colleges in the United States.

The Ford Motor Company Fund is a non-profit corporation operated for educational, charitable and scientific purposes, and is supported by contributions from Ford Motor Company. The Fund is in no way related to the Ford Foundation.

Wide Appeal Made for Cyclone Relief

The International League of Red Cross Societies is making a world-wide appeal for aid to victims of the severe cyclone and tidal waves that occurred recently in East Pakistan.

No special fund drive is being conducted by the Pikes Peak Chapter American Red Cross an agency of the United Fund. However, gifts from residents wishing to assist the disaster victims of Pakistan will be forwarded to that country.

The American Red Cross cabled $15,000 to the Pakistan Society on June 3, and is now working to arrange for immediate shipment of approximately $25,000 worth of drugs and medical supplies already on hand. The League has notified its member societies thruout the world that the greatest need is for cash for the local purchase of essential articles and for drugs and disinfectants to check the spread of diseases from contaminated water.

Cash gifts received by the American Red Cross will be forwarded directly to the Pakistan Red Cross Society which is directing the assistance program to victims. Checks should be made payable to the American National Red Cross and sent to Midwestern Area office, 4050 Lindell Blvd., St. Louis 8, Mo. Checks should be designated for Pakistan Disaster Relief.

Right Attitude Week Scheduled By SWAP Club

The SWAP (Salesmen With A Purpose) Club will sponsor Right Attitude Week June 16-22.

Right Attitude lapel buttons and membership cards may be obtained from club members, the Chamber of Commerce and business houses.

Banks of the Pikes Peak Region are offering their facilities to residents to choose their candidate for Right Attitude. Ballots and ballot boxes will be located in bank lobbies for those who wish to participate.

All residents are urged by the SWAP Club to vote for their favorite example of right attitude and the top 25 vote-getters will receive recognition and publicity.

Merchants are emphasizint the importance of a right attitude all year around and the Chamber of Commerce places particular emphasis on local citizens exemplifying a right attitude for the benefit of summer visitors.

"Let's make Colorado Springs the best city in the U. S. A.," said Mayor Harry Hoth, in casting the first ballot.

SWAP Club officials believe this can be accomplished and offer services toward that end.

Mrs. Tekla M. Chonka Dies at Age of 81

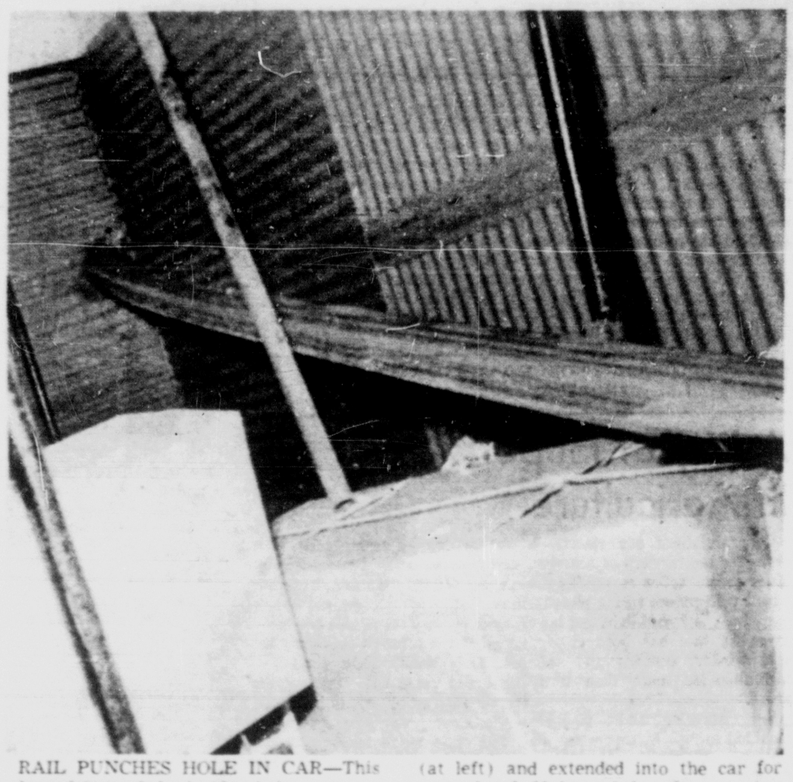

Mrs. Tekla M. Chonka, 115 N 14th St., died Wednesday at a local hospital after an extended illness. She was 81 and had been a resident of Colorado Springs since 1909. She made her home in Leadville before coming here. She was a member of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church and the National Slavcrit Society.

Mrs. Chonka was born in Czechoslovakia April 3, 1882. She came to the United States in 1901. Her husband died March 26, 1940. She is survived by four sons, Charles, Edward, Paul and Albert Chonka, all of Colorado Springs.

Funeral services will be held at the Sacred Heart Church with burial in Fairview Cemetery. The time has not been set. The Sullivan Funeral Home has charge of the arrangements.

Greer Manning Signs Up for Peak Hill Climb

After 13 years of planning, Greer Manning of Colorado Springs — reportedly one of the area's hottest midget car drivers — has entered the 14th annual Pikes Peak Auto Hill Climb this July 4th for the first time.

Manning and other top entries including the Unsers, Bobby and Louie, will out to beat the clock up 14,110 Pikes Peak. Managing director of the Hill Climb, J.C. Agajanian, has posted a purse of $12,550 plus $7,710 in accessory money in the "race to the clouds".

The Colorado Springs resident Shaver, are co-owners of the hot Special in the world's richest race per mile. Gene Podoll, also of this city, has entered the 327 cubic inch Chevrolet powered mount in the championship class.

Manning and his partner, Buck Shaver, are co-owners of thehot midget that Greer drives as well as the Shaver-Manning, Phillips Service Station at 1702 S. Nevada. The latest entry in the Hill Climb has been a steady winner in his Chevy II midget and has been regularly cleaning house over the Offenhausers at Denver's Lakeside Park. Greer is equally at home in a sprint or stock car.

The father of three children will have an opportunity to fullfill an ambition he has had since moving to Colorado in 1951 — competing in the Pikes Peak Auto Hill Climb.

In addition to cash prizes, world's championship hill climb points will be sanctioned thru the United States Auto Club and the Federation Internationale de L' Automobile (FIA). There are only six sanctioned hill climbs in the world. The other five are in France, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, and Austria.

Ford Grant Given Colorado Colleges

A $1,000 grant from the Ford Motor Company Fund to the Associated Colleges of Colorado has been announced by Benson Ford, president of the Fund.

The Colorado group is composed of Colorado College, Colorado Springs; Colorado Woman's College, Denver; Loretto Heights College, Loretto; and Regis College, Denver. It is one of 40 educational associations, representing 494 member institutions, to which Ford Fund grants totaling $86,600 are being made at this time.

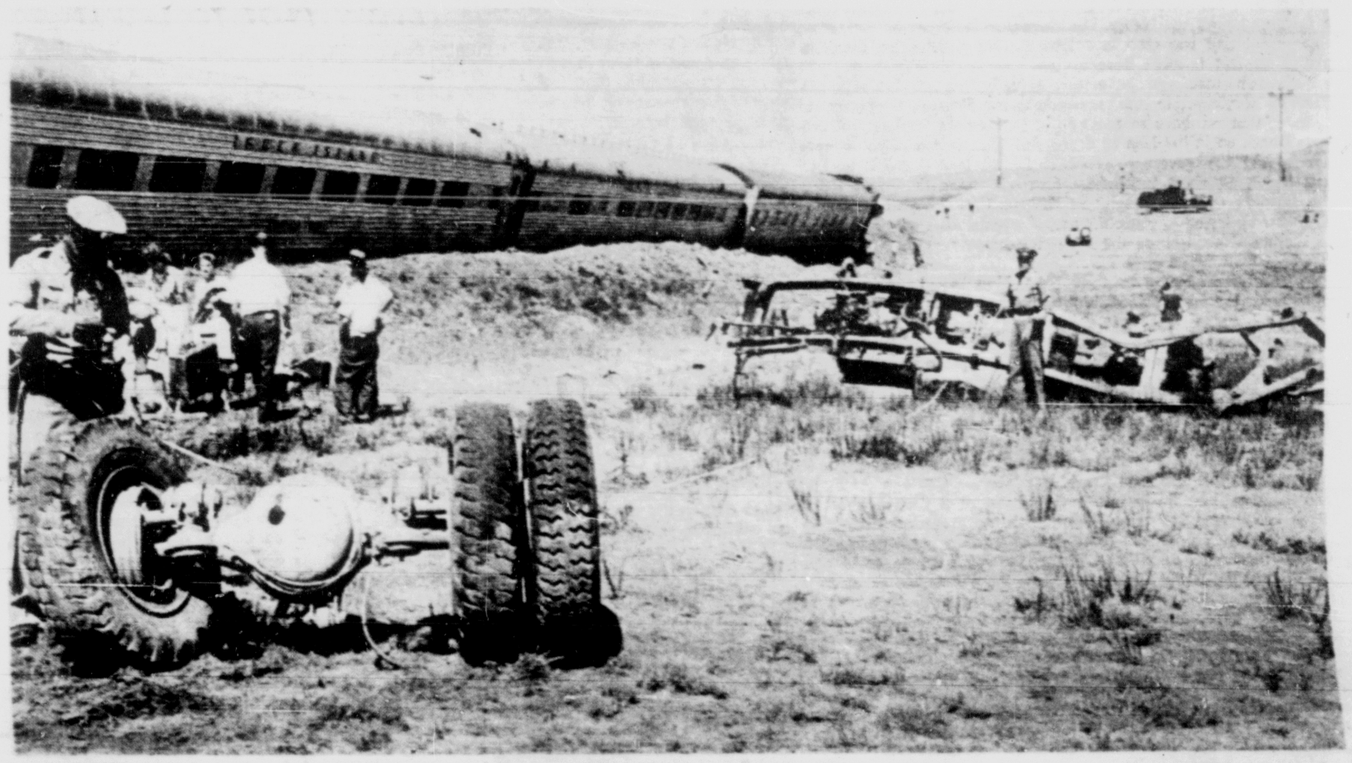

Formed in 1948 to seek financial aid to higher education, the state association movement now represents a majority of the privately supported liberal arts colleges in the United States.

The Ford Motor Company Fund is a non-profit corporation operated for educational, charitable and scientific purposes, and is supported by contributions from Ford Motor Company. The Fund is in no way related to the Ford Foundation.

Signal Light Violation Brings Youth Fine

A 16-year old boy, Richard Craig McBride of 1207 N. Farragut Ave. paid a $5 fine and costs in Justice of the Peace James F. Quine's court Wednesday for disregarding a red light signal. The violation happened Saturday on U.S. Highway 24 and the officer was State Patrolman J. D. Morrissey.

Morrissey also cited Toby Jack Watkins who was fined $10 and costs for speeding. Watkins, 18, of the Little Star Route was driving at 55 miles per hour May 11 on a 45 mile an hour zone on Colorado Highway 115.

MEASUREMENTS TAKEN—Two State Patrolmen are measuring the distances between parts of the wrecked truck. On the left is Patrolman J. E. McDaniel. On the right, holding the other end of a tape measure, is Sgt. Bill Stoker. Passengers carrying suitcases can be seen in the background. Wide Appeal Made for Cyclone Relief

The International League of Red Cross Societies is making a world-wide appeal for aid to victims of the severe cyclone and tidal waves that occurred recently in East Pakistan.

No special fund drive is being conducted by the Pikes Peak Chapter, American Red Cross, an agency of the United Fund. However, gifts from residents wishing to assist the disaster victims of Pakistan will be forwarded to that country.

The American Red Cross cabled $15,000 to the Pakistan Society on June 3, and is now working to arrange for immediate shipment of approximately $25,000 worth of drugs and medical supplies already on hand. The League has notified its member societies thruout the world that the greatest need is for cash, for the local purchase of essential articles and for drugs and disinfectants to check the spread of diseases from contaminated water.

Cash gifts received by the American Red Cross will be forwarded directly to the Pakistan Red Cross Society which is directing the assistance program to victims. Checks should be made payable to the American National Red Cross and sent to Midwestern Area office, 4050 Lindell Blvd., St. Louis 8, Mo. Checks should be designated for Pakistan Disaster Relief.

Annual Convention Held in Manitou

The annual convention of the Department of Colorado and Wyoming Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War was held Sunday thru Tuesday at the Cliff House Hotel in Manitou Springs.

A. G. Myers, who was unable to attend because of illness, was elected commander.

Other officers elected and installed were: W. L. Savage, senior vice commander; Carl Fischer, junior vice commander; Benjamin Adamson, first council; L. O. Kent, second council; Earl Wright, third council.

Frank Cullon, patriotic instructor; George Raines, chaplain and George Lee, secretary-treasurer. Earl Wright was installing officer.

Racial Strife Deplored By Conference Speaker

Racial strife in the American South is "unfortunate for this country," Mrs. Ira E. Slack of Denver, state president of the Colorado Association of Colored Women's Clubs said here Wednesday.

"The only way we're going to solve this problem is to live together as brethren and practice the Golden Rule," Mrs. Slack said.

Her organization has donated funds to the Christian Leadership Conference in Alabama to work out a solution to the racial problems there.

The association is holding its 55th annual state convention at the Payne Chapel A.M.E. Church. It is dedicated "to raising standards of the home and community," Mrs. Slack explained.

The state members also donate each year to an education fund which provides a college scholarship to a deserving boy or girl.

In Colorado Springs, some 65 members are attending the convention. The Colorado association has 250 adult members and a junior membership of 75, with chapters in Colorado Springs, Denver, Pueblo and La Junta.

A feature of the three-day meeting which began Tuesday is a display in the basement of Payne Chapel of needlework, handsewing, flower arrangement, displays of flowers, ladies hats, prize-winning canned food, and hobby works from the junior members.

Judges for the display are Mrs. Homer Schwartz, 2701 Tremont St., Mrs. Earl Squires, 1624 N. El Paso St.; and Mrs. Harold Strong, 1940 Alpine Dr.

Highlight of Tuesday night's meeting was an essay contest on the subject, "The Emancipation Proclamation—What it Means to Me." Winner was Miss Sydney Danforth of Denver.

A talent show was also staged at the church Tuesday night, with the winners being Miss Marilyn Bell of Colorado Springs.

Sessions Wednesday morning included a session on "Parliamentary Procedure," directed by Mrs. Ruth Howell of Denver, and a program on "Building and Recreation," led by Mrs. Estelle Pegues of Colorado Springs.

A special program Wednesday afternoon was a workshop on "Better Homes and Gardens," arranged by Ruth Appiethun, El Paso County Home Extension agent. Mrs. Odessa Banks of Pueblo was chairman of the workshop.

Mayor Harry Hoth delivered the welcoming address to the group Wednesday night at the annual banquet held at the Antlers Hotel. Theme of the convention is, "Democracy in Democracy," and "Today's World for Women and Youth."

Today's sessions will include election of a delegate to the regional convention to be held in January.

Divide Schedules Pancake Supper

Residents of Divide are sponsoring a pancake supper beginning at 6:30 p.m. Saturday at the Divide Community Hall.

Proceeds from the dinner will be designated for the new fire house fund.

Following the supper, games will be played. The public is invited to attend the benefit supper which is 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for children under 12 years of age.

A Ray of Hope In Agriculture

Congratulations are clearly in order for the farmers of America. Their recent action respecting the wheat referendum was a pleasant surprise . . . a ray of light and hope in a sky that has been clouded with subsidy, controls and regimentation for more than thirty years.

But surprise and pleasure mounted to new heights when the governor of Oklahoma, Henry Bellmon, refused to declare the dry-as-dust Oklahoma Panhandle as a disaster area.

Bellmon, a Republican and also a farmer, knows the score. He said that losing one crop is not a disaster and farmers have always known that you have to store up surpluses in the good years so that you have something to fall back on in the lean or dry years. And the governor added that he wasn't about to disabuse the farmers of the rightness of this view by trying to cause them to become dependent on the big daddy in Washington.

Bellmon, who joined with others in opposing the federal wheat program in his state, said that any farmer worthy of a harvest knows that one of the normal costs of doing business is preparation for drought, especially in a drought-prone place like the Oklahoma Panhandle.

The governor says he stores wheat himself in the good years and then has it on hand when the pinch comes. He has a farm in Noble County, which is in north-central Oklahoma, to the east of Enid. While not in the Panhandle, it has been in the path of what the federal government wants to call a "disaster area." Last winter the wheat froze and the crop was lost. And this year the lack of moisture has retarded the new wheat and cut down on feed crops and grass.

But Bellmon said that if the counties were declared a disaster area, then the door would be open for farmers to use soil bank land for grazing. And they could follow this up by planting on idle acres at the same time becoming eligible for the purchase of stored hay at government-supported prices. As he sees it, this is exactly what the farmers ought not to do. They should become self-reliant and depend on themselves rather than on big daddy in Washington.

So, while we're tendering our applause to the farmers generally, for having knocked the Kennedy formula for further controls on their production right in the teeth, we want to congratulate Governor Bellmon of Oklahoma for having gotten the message, too.

Actually, we are not anticipating a complete abandonment of the government agriculture program. That is too much to hope for in this land that has too few men who think the way Henry Bellmon thinks. But at least these two events, the wheat vote and the Bellmon rejection of the disaster designation, offer some comfort to those who yearn for national fiscal sanity.

There is no more reason for a given part of the nation to be declared a disaster area because of the vagaries of the weather, than there is reason to declare a particular business or firm a disaster area because of the vagaries of customer decisions in the market place.

The nature of this world is one of risk. As a matter of fact, the brains we have were designed in such a way that we could anticipate those risks and act so as to minimize them. If we are to be pampered by a fond and paternal federal state so that harm may not come to us no matter what, it won't be long before we will have lost our ability to think. We would even have lost our ability to want to think or to make effort against the exigencies of nature.

It's time the thinking of Bellmon and the negative voters in the wheat referendum became more general.

On the Wrong Side

Government rules tend to protect the private thief with "due process" and to endorse public theft by sanctioning taxation.

A Constitutional Convention

While the proponents of repeal of the 16th amendment have been successful in obtaining support from several state legislatures respecting their proposed "Liberty Amendment," another group, which came into existence a number of years ago, has moved ahead to a position where it now commands the field relating to the income tax.

The Western Tax Council, based in Chicago, has toiled tirelessly for a very long time to obtain the approval of the various state legislatures for a new amendment, to replace the 16th Amendment, which would provide for some limitation on the amount of money to be collected via the income tax route.

As everyone knows who has read it, the 16th Amendment, in full harmony with Article I, Section 8 of the Constitution itself, permits 100 per cent taxation from incomes. There is no limitation in the amendment nor in the Constitution.

Those in the Western Tax Council have labored to obtain the necessary approval from two thirds of the state legislatures, for the convening of a Constitutional Convention for the purpose of drafting just such an amendment. This year, the Colorado legislature in Denver became the 34th state to ratify. This means that Western Tax Council, Inc., has now secured the necessary two thirds approval from the various states to call for and secure the Constitutional Convention they require.

A recent letter from George Taft of the Council, brings this matter into focus. We quote from the letter:

"... this long sought for victory can bring about tremendous changes in the taxation picture. However, there is one important step still remaining that must be brought about to implement and complete this victory. That is to make sure the Constitutional Convention is called and the Amendment is finalized. Article Five of the Constitution clearly and emphatically defines this action and specifies it is the exact letter of which that is required ... [illegible] ... spenders and do-gooders to stall the calling of a Constitutional Convention to consider the proposed new Amendment. They will employ every known delaying action in the book. They will argue a Convention is ill-timed and unnecessary.

"Many salient factors insure our success. First and foremost is the Constitution itself, which spells out this method. The majority of newspapers, many organizations, economists, outstanding American businessmen, corporations and others have voiced their approbation of our movement. We stand upon a strong rampart to insure the Convention and the proposed Amendment. We are going to need help to consummate our objectives despite the fact that it is legal, constitutional and sorely needed to avoid bankruptcy or a more severe form of socialism.

"Last but not least of our allies are the states, themselves, and the growing revolt over the attrition and perceptible decline of states' rights. The states are posing the question—are we to become federal agencies and lose our entities? The states are greatly agitated at the recent rulings of the Supreme Court.

"Actually, the cauldron of states' rights is bubbling to a tremendous degree. Foremost in their minds is the question of federal taxation. If the present tax system continues, states' rights are doomed and we will be one big family under the benign (?) Washington umbrella.

"It has been our belief and conviction that once the state legislatures had a proposed amendment before them to place a limit on federal taxation they would ratify the Amendment with the same rapidity that they passed the president's tenure of two terms. The tremendous uneasiness apparent in the states today over governmental intrusion into states' rights justifies this opinion. Again, the states feel that the 16th Amendment permits the government to grab most of the tax dollar ... consequently our wasteful spending ... [illegible] ... the Constitutional Convention and we would ... [illegible] ... the Amendment ... [illegible] ... the Constitution ... [illegible] ... the Amendment ... [illegible] ... the Constitution ... [illegible] ... the Amendment ... [illegible] ... the Constitution

Consequently, our movement to get the Amendment launched becomes urgent and vital for the successful addition of this new Amendment to the Constitution.

"We now stand on the launching pad with superb equipment to take off. All that is needed is some booster shots from our friends and supporters. This is the count down."

Quite frankly, we do not view the proposal of Western Tax Council in as favorable a light as we view the "Liberty Amendment." And even in respect to the latter, we have reservations for we don't think that it goes far enough. However, a Constitutional Convention is a rather open affair insofar as the details are concerned and it now appears possible that something tangible may occur to curtail this monstrous program of iniquity, the graduated income tax itself. What can be done remains to be seen.

We believe we can predict considerable in the way of opposition at the Convention and we would, in greatest friendliness, warn the Western Tax people that some of the opposition they will face will come right from the states which have ratified their proposal.

These Days

The Escalator Is for Macy's

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Said Turvy to Topsy: "I think I begin to understand those politicians like Laborite Harold Wilson and Liberal Jo Grimond of Britain who want no part of a 'nuclear deterrent.' It's because they are actually in favor of having more power."

"That's like saying that if you are weaker, you are stronger," said Topsy. "It can't be true. Britannia never ruled the waves by refusing to have any part of battleships."

"But I assure you it is true," said Turvy. "I began to see the light the other night when I listened to Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina speak on the evolution of American power since 1947. We've been getting stronger all the time. Once we only had the A-bomb. Later on we got the H-bomb. We can now deliver these in manned airplanes, from Polaris submarines, and by automatic missiles. But the stronger we got, the weaker we got. And it wasn't because the Russians were catching up; actually, we're still way ahead of them in many ways. It's just that the more nuclear power you have, the more paralyzed you become."

"I still don't get it," said Topsy. "You could still knock Morro Castle over by letting an old-fashioned gunboat sidle up to it. Why should we let our having atomic power paralyze us?

UP THE SCALE

"Haven't you heard of escalation?" asked Turvy. "If we were to send a gunboat to deal with Castro, the war might escalate up the scale. A shell from the gunboat might hit a Russian in Havana. That would make Khrushchev mad. He'd order Castro to send some of his Soviet lease-loaned planes into action. The conventional bombs would do for the moment. But the old-fashioned war would make both Moscow and Washington edgy. Pretty soon they'd be pushing buttons that would send atomic missiles hurtling at each other while Kennedy and Khrushchev simultaneously yelled 'liar' over the hot telephone wire."

"So, because of this escalation," asked Topsy, "we can't even hit Fidel with a powder puff? and for this we spend $50 billion a year on our military establishment?"

"Well, we're going to cure that," said Turvy. "If Senator Thurmond is right, we're about to escalate things in the other direction. We're 'phasing out' our manned bombers, as the saying goes. We're dropping the idea of perfecting an anti-missile missile. We've given up the air-to-ground Skybolt. We're trying to make a fighter plane on the Detroit principle, with the same chassis for the Comet as for the Falcon — oops, I mean an identical fuselage for the Air Force and the Navy. The general idea is that when we've de-escalated to the position of a second-class power we can begin throwing our weight around again."

"I begin to see the light," said Topsy. "India can fight Portuguese Goa because only sticks are involved in that kind of war. But if we were to send a single Marine to Ruritania, it could knock over all the nine-pins including those that are weighted with Uranium 235."

"Exactly," said Turvy. "So the idea is to work backward until you have the armed might of Monaco or Andorra. Then you can afford to be tough and to fight for your rights."

DOCTRINE

"It still doesn't seem logical," said Topsy. "But I see where one pundit argues that the Monroe Doctrine is only workable when Europe helps the U.S. to enforce it. It is then a three-legged, not a two-legged, stool."

"Like when France helped us enforce the Doctrine by sending Maximilian and Carlotta to Mexico as king and queen of the Mexicans?" asked Turvy.

"You're out of order," said Topsy. "Now it's you who is asking the world to make sense."

"Well," said Turvy, "I own up to a sneaking desire to return to the days of old-fashioned logic. These escalation mongers actually get my goat. It never occurs to them that Khrushchev is just as afraid of escalating Fidel Castro into World War III — or World War Finis — as we are."

"So we could hit Morro Castle with a powder puff, after all," said Topsy.

"It could be easier than that," said Turvy. "Just take away Fidel Castro's oil."

AND THE DOVE FOUND NO REST — ON THE ARK

How Not to Do It

GEORGE BOARDMAN, PH.D.

I sneaked up on myself the other day and discovered how easy it is to avoid doing something which needs doing. It happened like this; I have been a member of the Royal Photographic Society for a good many years. During the past couple of years my annoyance with photographs published in the Society's Journal has been growing. From a purely technical point of view the photographs are always fine but too many of them have said too little, in my opinion. Naturally, I have tied this in with socialism and the socialistic urge for abysmal mediocrity and I believe my opinion to be valid. BUT—what have I been doing about it?

Late last year I made a series of photographs which were designed to tell a short story about this ghost town. I made the pictures at the express request of an old and trusted friend, Art Ahlers, who is also a photographer's agent. While I was shooting this series, in which I used my daughter and oldest granddaughter for models, I thought about ideas which might illustrate the philosophy of freedom to those who understand the meaning of the word. I thought about the photographs but I didn't make them.

I have an excuse. For more than two decades I made no pictures for my own enjoyment. Every shot had a price tag on it. Every shot was aimed at a market. When I withdrew from activity in the market place, because of a growing resentment against seeing my earnings stolen for the support of foreign governments and our own parasitical giant, I stopped making photographs. It didn't make much sense.

Because this area has a great deal of beauty to me, I have thought of photographs without making them. I can visualize the exactly right model at the right place at the right time, with small, white clouds drifting across the startlingly blue Arizona sky on days just like today. I didn't have the right model and I wasn't at the right location and my mail was getting ahead of me and I had a column to write and I was too tired to do anything about it.

My resentment against socialism is very real, almost overpowering, at times. There are many things I would like to try to do, I see and feel dozens of opportunities all around me and then the thought of licenses and dealing with government and taxes takes over and that's the end to my creative thinking for the day.

So I permitted my resentment to run over. I didn't even want to send the few dollars required for dues out of the country. I had decided to resign from the R.P.S.

I was going to write a slightly indignant letter explaining how the members weren't doing much with photography. Then I sneaked up on myself. That was the mistake. Now I find it necessary to see if I can't do something about it.

Certainly, I realize that I may make up quite a portfolio of photographs which illustrate the meaning and the feeling of freedom to me and that not a single publication in this country may buy them. On the other hand, if I am able to make the point I want to make and send the pictures to a dozen editors, a dozen editors will see them and something I've tried to say may stick in the mind of one editor, and this gets back to the statement made by Leonard Read of the Foundation for Economic Education, the cheapest price we can pay for freedom is to talk, write and think for freedom. We can also paint and create statues and make photographs and compose music for freedom, if we will.

A great many photographers have done very well financially making photographs of the seamy side of American life—the slums, dust bowls and even the socialist cure-all, plowing under crops. Those who have advertised themselves as liberals have presented a mighty narrow point of view, cheap, shoddy and basically full of resentment because they were born. Actually, advertising photographers have done the best job of presenting inhabitants of this country as living and healthy human beings, with very few exceptions.

Yesterday, I thought I had too much to do. Now I have a great deal more to do and to all the leisure time planned. I say: Get out of my way.

Good luck and good health to you, to Freedom.

Social Form of the Future

From Threefold

More than half a century ago, an American president, Woodrow Wilson, told his countrymen that, altho they had made great economic progress, their social and political arrangements were still back in the days of the horse and buggy. In other words, it was possible for a nation and, presumably, for individuals as well, to be up-to-date in some respects and to lag far behind in others.

Keeping up with the march of objective time is not easy. The newest hat and the latest attitude towards life soon become old-fashioned. Time is a tide that flows towards us from the future. If we have a momentum of our own, we may breast it and keep up-to-date. Otherwise, we drift backwards.

The human tendency to fall behind the times, gives rise to the question as to whether the political centralism of the present day can meet the needs of modern society. This social form originated hundreds of years ago when the demands of men were quite different from those of today. People believed at that time that the earth, as well as the Heavens, was actively ruled by the Divinity Himself, with the help of his Angels, Archangels, Archai, etc. And the earthly rulership, with its ministers, was planned as the faithful reflection of the arrangement in the Heavens.

Such is the out-moded social form which we still follow today. Certain members of this basically aristocratic set-up were superior to others. Also, there was presumed to exist within this complex, a Supreme Authority to which everything could, if necessary, be referred back. Nowadays, it is clear to all citizens that society's political authority is nothing that by any stretch of the imagination could be described as Divine, or even noble. And, since political centralism operates by handing out special privileges in return for political support, it is open to all manner of corruption. Another drawback of this old social form is that its government rewards its friends and punishes its enemies, so that it easily degenerates into one-party totalitarianism.

An up-to-date alternative to political centralism is described in the Declaration of Independence where the government of the United States is expressly given the task of safeguarding rights that are equal and held in common by all citizens. The conviction of the Founders was that if, instead of distributing special privileges, government were adequately to protect common rights to Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness, no further regulation of society would be needed.

Because the concept of equal and common rights was ahead of its time, this new doctrine could not withstand the pressures for privileges that came from earlier centralist European and American habits. If it had been followed, it would have limited the governmental function to the field of common rights, leaving education and business to develop freely along the lines of their inherent impulses, subject, however, to their respect for general rights. The separation and independent operation of the cultural, political and economic functions is Social Decentralism.

Question Box

Question No. 247: "If taxation is theft, who are the thieves? The voters for a political candidate? The elected officials? The revenue agents carrying out orders? The civil servants (teachers, librarians, etc.) receiving salaries? The recipient of Society Security benefits? The partakers of a government service like education or garbage collection? Can you chart the responsibility for immoral action in this process?" — Edward C. Facey, New York.

Answer: To us the question of intent is important, as it is in law. Therefore, those who violate the commandment against coveting another's property are the thieves. An individual who does not know he is stealing in our view is not guilty of theft, altho he may be guilty of receiving stolen property. There again, if he has been brainwashed into believing it is not theft, he would not be guilty of knowingly receiving stolen property.

While under man-made law, it is contended that intention is indicated by the acts of an individual, we doubt if morally one could be considered a thief by receiving property he does not consider stolen. Under common law if an individual knowingly receives stolen goods he may be punished; but the penalty for innocently receiving stolen goods is loss of the stolen property.

It is not our desire that such persons be punished. It is our desire that individuals learn that moral codes apply to a collective group just as they do to the individual. We seek to encourage individuals to adopt these great moral codes to guide their individual lives and not to expect some governmental agency to have rights not held by individuals.

To The Point

Swollen Foreign Service

By RUSSELL KIRK

Congressman Wayne Hays, the liberal Democrat from Ohio, is chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on State Department Organization and Foreign Operations. Repeatedly, he has suggested that the State Department seems to be interested in building an immense bureaucratic empire overseas, for its own sake.

Terribly sensitive on this point, State Department functionaries have responded to certain criticisms of my own in a tone at once bellicose and evasive. They will bear watching.

The hearings of the Hays subcommittee on foreign-service buildings make lively and informative reading. Again and again, Representative Hays and his colleagues have been vexed by the passion of the Foreign Service for elaborate building programs—and personnel to fill the new buildings. For instance, there was a hearing on May 15, 1962, concerning the tiny country of El Salvador. The State Department proposed to erect a new office-building in the capital, San Salvador, costing $1,150,000. There follows the exchange among Congressman Hays, Congresswoman Bolton, and Mr. James Johnstone of the State Department.

Mr. Hays. "How many people do you have there now?"

Mr. Johnstone. "We have a total of 140 people there, Mr. Chairman: 90 Americans and 50 local employees."

Mr. Hays. "What is the population of that country?"

Mr. Johnstone. "The population of that country is 2,613,000."

Mr. Hays. "What do you do with that many people in a little country like that?"

(Mr. Johnstone proceeded to list the personnel of the diplomatic service, U.S.I.S., A.I.D., Marines, military mission, military attaches, etc.)

Mrs. Bolton. "I feel myself wondering what on earth do they ever do."

Mr. Hays. "Write memos to each other. Why do we have an A.I.D. program in San Salvador? They got along for a good many hundred years without anyone. It is a pretty stable economy. Does anyone know that?"

Mr. Johnstone. "I am afraid I am not qualified to talk to that, Mr. Chairman."

Mr. Hays. "I presume the main reason is because this gets them another mission and some more people on the payroll. I don't know of any other good reason.

"The whole point is, it seems to me, there are just too many people in these countries, doing what nobody seems to know — They had 59 people administering $1 million worth of aid. If you didn't have those A.I.D. people down there, you wouldn't need as big a building, would you?"

Well, did the State Department take to heart these criticisms of the Senate subcommittee? You may judge, gentle reader, by consulting the more recent hearings for this subcommittee for March 6, 1963. There you will find that, far from reducing the staff, the State Department now has 200 people at its San Salvador embassy — an increase of almost 45 per cent in one year! They still want an office-building for $1,150,000; and they still don't say why they need a big mission in tiny, peaceful, and relatively prosperous El Salvador.

Parkinson's Law works with a vengeance in the State Department. And the more gross that bureaucracy grows, the less it is able to perform its essential tasks.

It's Up to You

Decapitalization

By H. E. KERSHNER, L.H.D.

President Kennedy wants a $10 billion tax reduction spread over three years beginning in fiscal of '64, plus increased spending running into billions of dollars. The Executive Council of AF of L - CIO, meeting recently in Miami Beach, wants the whole ten billion tax cut the first year plus much greater deficit spending than the President has advocated. The President's proposals look like a deficit of $10 to $12 billion in the next fiscal year, while the AF of L-CIO proposals might well double that amount. Moreover, the labor proposals would do the lion's share of the tax cutting in the lower brackets, while increasing taxes on business, capital gains, oil production and other industries. Already our corporations are not allowed to write off their depreciating assets fast enough to maintain their capital structures. We are rapidly de-capitalizing ourselves. Altho our nominal corporate capital is 45 per cent greater than it was ten years ago, corporate profits after taxes in 1960 were less than they were in 1950. The program of the labor leaders would tax industry far more heavily than at present and would greatly reduce, and in many cases completely eliminate, profits. It would greatly increase the number of companies operating on a deficit. Already 40 per cent of American corporations operate at a loss, 470,000 reporting an aggregate deficit in 1960-61 of over $6¾ billions. Increasing the number of losing industries would decrease the number of jobs and decreasing the amount of profit our still successful corporations are able to earn would also decrease the number of jobs.

It takes about $18,000 of invested capital to supply one job in American industry. Increasing taxes in the areas which produce this job-creating capital is bound to cause more unemployment. The program of the labor leaders is diametrically opposed to the results they seek to accomplish.

Pump priming has been tried again and again. It has never worked. Why do intelligent people continue to advocate it?

Taxes are too high. They should be reduced, but this should be accompanied by equal and even greater reduction in expenditures. It is wrong to say that this cannot be done because of defense spending, for civilian spending has been increasing since 1955 faster than defense spending. A case in point is the Medicare program of the President which would add at least $2 billion a year to civilian spending.

SCHOOL COSTS

To the Editor:

I have found the public school system extremely unsatisfactory. I feel the cost is a secondary consideration. It is my belief that the school is the place to develop the child in the essential fields of knowledge to permit continued independent growth after leaving school. However, despite what I have been told by various "professional educators" I find they continue to cram the little minds with all their "progressive" socialistic tripe and neglect to properly teach the three R's.

The obvious solution is to place my two boys into private school. Upon inquiry I find the annual cost at the nearest private (Christian) school, including tuition and bus transportation, compares with the "free" public schools as follows:

	Public	Private	Saving
1st child	$672.39	$360.00	$312.39
2nd child	$672.39	$300.00	$372.39
3rd child	$672.39	$140.00	$532.39
Total	$2020.17	$800.00	$1220.17

You will note that it costs $2020 to place three children in public school. The same $2020 will place ten children in this particular private school.

To allay all criticism from those who would pick flyspecks out of pepper, I will admit that the average private school probably costs more than the figures I have given. However, you pick and choose depending upon your ability to pay and if you feel you are not getting your money's worth you can take your money elsewhere. Remember also, you have no choice in public school—whether or not you have children or whether or not your children attend, the cost continues to be extorted from your income.

In comparing college costs I find that the Council for the Advancement of Small Colleges, 1818 R St., N.W., Washington 9, D. C., lists 58 excellent private colleges with enrollments from 10 to 770 students. Total cost per year, including room, board, tuitions, fees range from $515 to $2600, as follows:

2 schools $2000 - $2600
6 schools $1500 - $2000
9 schools $1200 - $1500
28 schools $1000 - $1200
13 schools $515 - $1000

You will note that only one of these private colleges exceeds the average cost of $2,578 per student at the University of California and 28 compare in cost to the state college cost of $1,380.

One interesting consideration for parents is the fact that the Freedoms Foundation of Valley Forge awarded its George Washington Honor Medal to CASC "for outstanding achievement in bringing about a better understanding of the American Way of Life." Perhaps naturally enough of [illegible]

Answer to Previous Puzzle

It Was Only 'Family Spat,' Cops Are Told

DALLAS UPI — A 30-year-old man explained to police that he knows how to remain calm—up to a point—when arguing with his 35 year-old wife.

The argument started at the dinner table Monday night over whether they should go out Thursday night. The husband said he did not care one way or the other.

His wife became angry so

—She stabbed him in the arm with a knife. He removed the blade and continued eating.

—The wife poured a glass of iced tea on her husband's head. He got up calmly and went outside to work on his car.

—She followed him outside and poured hot cooking grease on his stomach.

This was too much. The husband crawled from under his car and knocked his wife down.

She countered by striking him with a slat from a picket fence.

The husband knocked her down again.

Bandaged and bruised at a local hospital, the couple said they had no intention of prosecuting each other over "a friendly family spat."

PROGRESS

MONTREAL (UPI) — It used to take 100 hours to train a mechanic in the electronics system of the twin-engined DC3. The four-engined Constellation required 200 hours. Today, mechanics spend 1,500 hours in school before they are qualified to work on jet aircraft, according to the International Air Transport Association.

Wirtz Asked About Farm Work Force

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A group of Democratic congressmen went to Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz Tuesday with this question: Where will the farm labor force, formerly filled by Mexican nationals (braceros), come from, now that Congress has refused to extend the plan?

Leading the group was Rep. James Roosevelt, D-Calif. Roosevelt, chairman of the General Subcommittee on Labor, said the request was made in light of the recent defeat by the House on legislation to extend the Mexican farm labor program beyond the end of the year.

In areas where heavy use was made of the plan, he said, fears have been expressed that there will be a large shortage of workers on farms because of the action.

Roosevelt, one of those who voted against extension of the bracero program, said in a statement that steps would have to be taken to prevent such labor shortages.

But the California Democrat contended any shortages would be the result of "unsatisfactory means" of bringing farmers and workers together rather than of an actual shortage of workers.

He said domestic labor pools could supply needed workers if "lines of communications" were established between farmers and workers.

The San Bernardino National Forest in California was visited by 855,276 people in 1962.

CRUSADE

To the Editor

The crusade against the alleged "right-wing" continues. Some try to class fascists as "right-wing" altho they are farther "left" than ultra-liberals, socialists and communists. Several years ago frequent mention was made of "left-wingers" as tho they were unusual and in the minority. There was seldom mention of "right-wingers." No one pictured the right-wing as singing hymns of "hate" and paralyzing the people with a campaign of "fright."

The majority of Americans are good people and can be depended upon to make the right decisions whenever they are permitted to register their choice. The "right-wing" did not set up Communist lines enclosing West Berlin to become a tinder box to start a conflagration of a third world war. It did not favor a lag in the missile race, setting up Castro in Cuba nor approve the over-throw of pro-Western governments thruout the world. Nor would the majority of the American people ever have approved these decisions.

The American Way

What Does Freedom Mean

By HARRY BROWNE

What does freedom mean?

It means the right of each to speak his mind — whether for or against the party and ideas currently in power.

It means the right of each to worship as he sees fit — even to practice voodoo or worship nothing at all, if that is his wish.

THE PRESS

It means the right of the individual to have access to words and writings of all — regardless of their popularity or wisdom.

It means the right of the consumer to buy what he chooses — not just what the government thinks is safe for him to have.

It means the right of the teenager, the elderly, the handicapped, the inefficient — or anyone that life can never be completely pigeon-holed.

It means the right to work for less than what the politician feels is the "minimum wage."

It means the right of a man who has built his business thru service to his community to be able to determine for himself whom he shall hire to work for him.

CHOICE

Freedom means the right of all to choose friends and associates according to their own standards — regardless of how wise or stupid others may consider those standards.

It means the right of an individual to keep that for which he has labored, to spend his earnings as he chooses — not as some bureaucrat may desire.

It means a climate in which governments perform only their moral and intended functions — that of protecting life, liberty and property from those who would deny freedom.

It means unlimited opportunity — restricted only by the boundaries of a man's ambition, ingenuity, and effort.

It means an era of progress — as people compete for the privilege of serving each other.

It means an era of abundance — as productive capacities are utilized to increase the standard of living, instead of to satisfy the politician's lust for power.

It means greater security — as people learn to take care of themselves, the only real security.

Freedom means all of these things — and much more.

UNQUALIFIED

Freedom means freedom. Not followed by "except," "but" or "if." It is the most glorious commodity man can possess.

So few people have ever owned it. And we who have some of it seem to cherish it so little.

Are we willing to work for it, to earn it, and to retain it?

It is worth every sacrifice that we have to give.

Disorderly Sense Of Order Seen By Hal Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—One of life's little ordeals to the disorderly is trying to sustain their own sense of order.

As a man with a chronic reputation for being disorderly in the arrangement of his belongings, I will go further than saying this is a little ordeal in living. It is a major problem.

I regard myself as a person with an immaculate sense of order. But, as is true of many a man or woman with the same idiosyncrasy, I make order in my own way.

Instead of wasting my time and energy as so-called neat people do by confining the paper wealth that comes my way in the A-B-C confusion of file cabinets, I pile it up layer by layer on my desk.

If letters, books, or packages arrive on a day when I don't feel like opening mail, I stack them on top of the debris I live by—and wait until a sense of adventure does impel me to do so.

Paper by paper, envelope by envelope, layer by layer, such a person knows by memory the uncharted labyrinth on his desk that the rest of the unfeeling world regards as an aimless clutter. Blindfolded, he can reach a sensitive hand within the mass and pluck out what he needs at any moment.

He can, that is, if he is left alone. But he is not left alone.

The bane of the so-called disorderly person in this world is the curiosity of the so-called neat person.

I am convinced by long office association with so-called neat people that they live starved lives. After stashing away under the A-B-C technique what the mailman brings them, they have a feeling of something missing in their living.

So they are irresistibly drawn to the laden desks of the so-called disorderly. It serves as a magnet to their insecurity.

They pick up and read letters at random, open packages not addressed to them, overturn the considered layers that have real meaning only to the owner, and make a real chaos out of what is a planned confusion.

What do they seek? What do they hope to find? They don't really know—and I don't either.

Several times I have put atop the boarded junk pile upon my desk a simple note saying:

Whatever you are looking for in this world that will make your life better, it probably isn't here. Why don't you look under H for happiness in your own files?

The note notes do no good. Whenever I reach with a sure hand for what I want in the mess on my desk, I find some irresistible curiosity overturned by him.

Scout Troop Sells American Flags

Troop 23, Boy Scouts of America, sponsored by First Methodist Church, have taken on a project to see that every home that does not own an American flag can conveniently purchase one.

As a project to show their patriotic spirit, the 45 scouts of Troop 23 will deliver a handsome 3 foot x 5 foot flag at a cost of $1.50. For $3.50 the scouts will supply a pole and trimmings and the flag.

A call to the First Methodist Church office 633-3801 will be relayed to an eager Boy Scout who will see that a flag is promptly delivered to prospective customers. Scouts will make a small profit on the flags which will be used to send the troop to Camp Alexander, one of the outstanding scout camps in the nation.

The scouts have 5,000 flags available. They figure that the number of flags that are seen being displayed on any patriotic holiday, would indicate that twice this number of homes do not own flags.

One scout said: "I figure that when I go down the street and don't see a flag displayed on a holiday that the family doesn't own a flag or else they would have it on display. So it is logical to believe that at least 5,000 families need flags." It doesn't seem to be much of a holiday without a flag being flown from your front porch.

Boost in State Sales Tax Is Being Proposed

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP) — A detailed plan to boost Colorado's statewide 2 per cent sales tax by 50 per cent, raising an estimated $28 million yearly, is being submitted to Gov. John A. Love's new 100-member commission on local government.

The proposal calls for raising the statewide sales tax to 3 per cent, with the additional money all going for support of municipal and county governments.

A constitutional amendment passed by the voters would be required to put the plan into effect.

The plan's sponsors, members were active or represents the culmination (consisting of many of Colorado's municipal and county officials and community leaders."

It was forwarded to the commission by Clark Buckner, local government tax expert of the privately-financed Colorado Public Expenditure Council, a taxpayers' agency. Buckner said backers believe it represents an alternative to increases in taxes on property to support municipal and county governments.

Denver resident — who already pay a 4 per cent sales tax —apparently would not face another increase. The proposal contemplates that one cent of the 4-cent-sales tax would be repealed by the city. It provides that no area shall receive any money from the fund which would be greater than its citizens are paying under the 3 per cent sales tax.

The plan calls for the passing of a constitutional amendment for the new levy on the November ballot, to become effective July 1, 1965. Petitions if approved, it would become effective July 1, 1965. Petitions would be used to get the amendment on the ballot.

The money would go into a special fund and would be distributed by the state treasurer four times yearly, starting in October.

A formula for distribution is set forth in the proposed constitutional amendment would allot Denver 15 per cent of all money collected under the new levy, about $9.8 million on the basis of present collections. The other 62 counties and municipalities would share the remainder, with counties and municipalities each being allocated 32.5 per cent of the total, or about 9.1 million at present collection rates.

The proposed amendment provides that a city or county must get its share of the money first to eliminate or relieve any property tax levy for bonded debt," next to eliminate any property tax for capital improvements and finally, to eliminate or relieve property taxes for general purposes.

One section of the new amendment rewrites the provision of the present old age pension amendment to the constitution so that the new levy would not be subject to the requirement that 85 per cent of all excise and sales taxes must go into the pension fund.

Rep. John G. Mackie, R-Longmont, who will be vice chairman and active head of the new commission, said he intends to present the plan at the organizational meeting at the capitol June 24.

Mackie also said he plans to bring up at the same time three metropolitan government plans. They are the borough plan for Denver and adjacent areas offered in the legislature last winter by Sen. Joe Shoemaker, R-Denver, the metropolitan area plan suggested several years ago by Fred Simpson Jr., then mayor of Colorado Springs, and the super-county plan proposed for Denver by Ed C. Johnson, former governor and United States senator.

Buckner, in his letter outlining the sales tax plan, said it "is the result of many conferences between members of the executive board of the Colorado Municipal League and the executive board of the Colorado State Association of County Commissioners."

Lead, Aluminum Show Buoyant Market Trends

By DARDEN CHAMBLISS

NEW YORK (AP) — Lead and aluminum may have opposite specific gravities, but both are buoyant these days.

Lead makers pushed through a price boost of ¼ cent a pound to 10¾ cents in New York, capitalizing on recent strong demand from the battery and petroleum industries.

And aluminum makers have watched signs in their industry that they may be able to do something similar by year's end.

One is the way price boosts made lately on various fabricated products have stuck tight.

Another is the way consumers have been gobbling up metal fast enough to push the industry progressively nearer full capacity.

These things are exciting talk that the basic ingot price of 22½ cents a pound may be bolstered. Trade spokesmen concede this could be wishful thinking. Import pressure and price competition in world markets must still be reckoned with. But they see several cheering signs.

On the domestic scene, Reynolds Metals Co. put three more potlines back in production and perked up industry ears by attributing it in part to "shortages in some product areas."

Reynolds said some of the shortages were in billets, the basic material for the huge extrusion business. Some categories of fabricated products have also been drawn down.

This is the first mention of "shortages" in the industry in some time. The three potlines add 55,000 tons to Reynolds' output and lift it to about 95 per cent of rated capacity. That's about the level for the entire industry now, after successive additions by major makers.

The lead price increase surprised two categories of people—those who doubted one would come in the face of St. Joseph Lead Co. resuming struck production, and those who thought it would be larger than a mere quarter cent.

The increase seemed to dampen buyer enthusiasm somewhat, as orders slackened off from the strong pace of previous weeks. Trade sources said some of the previous buying anticipated an increase.

The price hike was the third in recent months. Starting from a 15-year low of 9½ cents a pound, the price moved up in half cent jumps last November and then again in January.

Denver Reported To Be at Top in Crime Class

DENVER (UPI) — An FBI report showed here that Denver headed its population class in the number of robberies, burglaries and auto thefts during 1962 and the first three months of 1963.

The city ranked from second to fifth in the murder, rape and assault classifications.

The report said that Denver had 7,248 burglaries last year, 1,181 higher than the next highest total among the eight cities of comparable size with Denver. Second was Kansas City, Mo., with 5,337.

Denver had 1,778 burglaries during the first three months of this year, followed by Atlanta with 1,419.

1962 robberies in Denver totaled 1,308, trailed by Kansas City again with 1,069. Robberies during January, February and March totaled 365, followed by Kansas City with 24.

In auto thefts, Denver showed 4,157 during 1962, and 999 for the first quarter of this year. Atlanta was second.

Denver had 38 murders last year for fourth place. Atlanta was first with 84. During the first quarter of 1963, Denver has had 12 murders; Atlanta 17.

MY ANSWER

QUESTION: Do you really believe that there is a hell? I cannot somehow believe that there is one because the Bible teachers so clearly that God is a God of love, and I cannot understand how a God of love could send people to hell. —J. R.

ANSWER: Anyone who accepts the teaching of the Bible is confronted with the fact that there is a teaching concerning hell. The Bible does not locate this place, but it certainly does make it clear that it is a place of judgment. The truth is—Jesus Himself, who is the most perfect expression of unselfish love the world has ever seen, had more to say about "hell" than any other individual in the entire Bible. He spoke in Matthew 7:13 of the wide gate and the broad way that leads to destruction, and told that "many" would go in through that gate. He also said in Matthew 8:12 that wherever this place called "hell" might be, it is known as a place of "outer darkness" where there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

In the day of judgment Christ says that angels who are God's instrument of judgment are going to "sever the wicked from the just, and cast them into the furnace of fire, where there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth" (Matthew 13:51).

But all of these references to hell do not mean that God is not a God of love. Had He not sent His Son into the world to save sinners, we might then say that the presence of hell indicates that He is not a God of love. But He has done all that possibly can be done to deliver every sinner from hell. He has done all but deprive the individual of his freedom of choice. Every person who is in hell in this life or in the life to come is there by his own deliberate choice. In the words of Moses of old the truth can still be expresesd, "Choose you this day whom ye will serve."

QUESTION: I believe in tithing, but I also believe that God will hold us responsible for the way our tithe is spent. Should we give our tithe to the local church when it is spent on costly parsonages and high salaries? —R. M.

ANSWER: In the first place you don't "give" your tithe; you pay it. "The tithe is the Lord's," says the Bible.

You, and everyone else, should belong to a church you believe in, and the dispensing of the tithe should be left to those in authority. We are to give "cheerfully", and not begrudgingly, trusting our brethren to do that which is right in the sight of the Lord.

I sense a bit of envy in the words, "Costly parsonages and high salaries." Remember, it is a credit to a church to provide adequately for those who lead them in spiritual matters—though it would be wrong for a minister to demand better conveniences and a higher salary than those whom he serves.

Keep in mind that if you don't like the policies of the church where you belong there may be other churches which conform more to your standards. No minister that I know would want to keep a member who is dissatisfied with his church's policies.

Woman Kidnaper to Face Arraignment

DENVER (UPI)—A young Utah divorcee charged with kidnaping a teen-ager and forcing him to drive her 500 miles to Denver will be arraigned in U.S. District Court here June 21, it was reported Tuesday.

Mrs. Carol Jacobsen, 21-year-old mother of three children, was charged last Friday, the day after she walked into police headquarters here and allegedly confessed abducting Lyle W. Dyet, 18, at gunpoint. She was jailed after failing to post a $10,000 bond.

Police said Mrs. Jacobsen told them she robbed a service station near Salt Lake City. Afterwards, police said, Mrs. Jacobsen told them she forced Dyet the attendant at the service station to drive her away.

Mrs. Jacobsen reportedly told police she decided not to kill the teen-ager when they arrived at Denver. Instead, she said she decided to surrender to authorities.

Woman Kidnaper to Face Arraignment

DENVER (UPI)—A young Utah divorcee charged with kidnaping a teen-ager and forcing him to drive her 500 miles to Denver will be arraigned in U.S. District Court here June 21, it was reported Tuesday.

Mrs. Carol Jacobsen, 21-year-old mother of three children, was charged last Friday, the day after she walked into police headquarters here and allegedly confessed abducting Lyle W. Dyet, 18, at gunpoint. She was jailed after failing to post a $10,000 bond.

Police said Mrs. Jacobsen told them she robbed a service station near Salt Lake City. Afterwards, police said, Mrs. Jacobsen told them she forced Dyet, the attendant at the service station, to drive her away.

Mrs. Jacobsen reportedly told police she decided not to kill the teen-ager when they arrived at Denver. Instead, she said she decided to surrender to authorities.

HOW IT STARTED

When we are said to be "turned down" when we are not allowed to do something, it comes from an allusion to the old English custom of turning a glass upside down when no more drink is desired.

Facilities and School Teachers Are Demanded

LAMAR (UPI)— President William McDivitt of Otero Junior College in La Junta said Tuesday the single most important problem facing Colorado colleges and universities was acquiring facilities and teachers.

McDivitt gave his opinions on was not getting correct programs for students.

Mcadivitt gave his opinions on higher education in the state at a grass roots meeting held here by Gov. John Love and other high-ranking state officials.

He said the push for more senior colleges and universities has been a push for more of the same type of education and increasing numbers of students with little regard to changing programs to meet the needs of a changing and demanding society.

"Parents," Mcdivitt said, "want the best for their children and quite obviously the best is the University of Colorado. Little does it matter that 6,000 students during a three-year period dropped from the university for one reason or another. Such waste in industry would cause some firms to close their doors," he said.

He also said the junior college program appeared to be the single best answer to diversifying programs in Colorado.

Flat Areas Are Claimed for Mars

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet scientists reported Tuesday that a 62-million mile radar probe of Mars showed sizable flat areas on the planet's surface.

The news agency Tass said the probe was made last February 1; said the radio waves took over 11 minutes to travel to Mars and back.

Tass said the results of the experiment were compared with earlier radar scannings of the planets Venus and Mercury.

NOT THAT HOT

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) —The temperature reached 87 degrees Tuesday in Kansas City.

More Buddhist Demonstrations Are Predicted

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) —Buddhist demonstrations against the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem are expected to increase despite an appeal for calm by the embattled President.

Some of the Buddhist anger also is directed at the United States because American weapons furnished for the war against Communist guerrillas, have been turned on Buddhists accusing the government of religious persecution.

Diem, a Roman Catholic, told the aroused South Vietnamese people Tuesday night he was very sorry about the torch suicide of a 73-year-old Buddhist monk in downtown Saigon.

Faced with one of the gravest crises in his eight-year rule, the 62-year-old president promised resumption today or negotiations on Buddhist demands for more religious freedom and social reforms.

He blamed extremists for arousing public opinion against his government with false propaganda.

"I solemnly declare that, behind Buddhism in this country, there is the constitution—which means I myself," he said.

About 80 per cent of South Viet Nam's 15 million people are Buddhists, but the government is dominated by Diem's Catholic family.

Buddhist leaders, committed by their religion to non-violent action, threatened to call on lay followers to join in demonstrations "with all the violent consequences that probably would follow."

One monk threatened to disembowel himself publicly if Buddhist demands were not met.

Prayer services were scheduled at Buddhist pagodas throughout the country Sunday. It was feared these would produce more incidents.

The U.S. Embassy, trying to steer a neutral course, instructed American families to stay indoors.

The Buddhists appealed for help from the International Red Cross, the United Nations and President Kennedy.

The Buddhists demand equal status with the Catholic Church, permission to display their religious flags and indemnities for the dead and wounded in a clash May 8 that sparked the religious-political crisis.

Demonstrations and clashes with police and troops have occurred frequently in the weeks since.

Flat Areas Are Claimed for Mars

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet scientists reported Tuesday that a 62-million mile radar probe of Mars showed sizable flat areas on the planet's surface.

The news agency Tass said the probe was made last February. It said the radio waves took over 11 minutes to travel to Mars and back.

Tass said the results of the experiment were compared with earlier radar scannings of the planets Venus and Mercury.

Civil Rights Legislative Program Outlined by JFK

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has warned the nation that discrimination against Negroes has lighted "fires of frustration and discord" that threaten lives and the public safety.

The President outlined a broad legislative program he will propose to Congress next week. He said it will be based on the proposition "that race has no place in American life or law."

A great change is at hand, he said, and "our task, our obligation, is to make that revolution, that change, peaceful and constructive for all."

Kennedy appeared Tuesday evening on radio and television in a fireside civil rights lecture to Americans of both North and South only hours after Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace bowed to federal pressure and stepped aside to let two Negro students register at the previously all-white University of Alabama.

"I hope that every American, regardless of where he lives, will stop and examine his conscience about this and other related incidents," said Kennedy.

"When Americans are sent to Viet Nam or West Berlin, we do not ask for whites only," he said. "It ought to be possible, therefore, for American students of any color to attend any public institution they select without having to be backed up by troops."

In short, Kennedy added, "every American ought to have the right to be treated as he would want to be treated, as one would wish his children to be treated. But this is not the case."

Kennedy, declaring that America faces "a moral crisis as a country and as a people," said he will ask Congress to make a civil rights commitment "it has not fully made in this century."

The President said he will propose legislation that would:

1. Prohibit stores, hotels, restaurants and theaters from discriminating against Negroes.

2. Allow the federal government to take a more active part in court suits aimed at desegregating public schools.

3. Afford greater protection for Negroes' right to vote.

Acknowledging the new laws are not enough, Kennedy said, however, that in too many parts of the country wrongs are inflicted on Negroes because they have no remedies at law—and "unless the Congress acts, their only remedy is the street."

In Congress, leaders of both parties promised to put their shoulders to the wheel.

"I recognize that Congress has a responsibility in this field," said Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, "and there should be some action in this session on effective civil rights legislation. To this end I will devote my best efforts."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield predicted, "We'll have civil rights legislation at this session and it looks like we will be in session for the remainder of the year." House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., said the President's speech "would have great weight with the country as well as Congress."

But from a southern Democrat came warnings of filibuster and violence.

"If the President tries to enforce his legislative proposals I think it will mean violence," said Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La.

Noting a statement by an official of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference that Negroes would stage civil disobedience demonstrations in Washington if southern senators filibuster against civil rights legislation, Ellender said:

"The trouble I see ahead tonight is that the Negroes will come in the streets if there is a filibuster—which there will be—we mean a lot of bloodshed. I'm sorry this is what is in store—more violence, bloodshed without question."

In Birmingham, Ala., which was torn by racial strife last month, the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. disclosed a telegram he sent to Kennedy which praised the President's speech as "one of the most eloquent, profound and unequivocal pleas for justice and freedom of all men ever made by any president."

Sitting behind his desk and using few gestures as he spoke, Kennedy reeled off statistics to show the plight of Negroes.

"This is not a sectional issue," said the President. "Difficulties over segregation and discrimination exist in every city, in every state of the Union, producing in many cities a rising tide of discontent that threatens the public safety."

Not long after he spoke racial violence flared in Cambridge, Md., 85 miles east of the capital. Two white men were wounded by shotgun blasts as whites and Negroes skirmished. Bricks flew and fires broke out in three white business places.

Said Kennedy: "The fires of frustration and discord are burning in every city, north and South, where legal remedies are not at hand. Redress is sought in the streets, in demonstrations, parades and protests which create tensions and threaten violence and threaten lives."

Kennedy said the crisis cannot be met by repressive police action, left to more demonstrations or quieted by token moves.

"It is time to act in the Congress, in your state and local legislative body and, above all, in all our daily lives," he said.

Club members have noticed heavy helicopter traffic above the pool area. The dressing rooms have no roofs.

Blast Wrecks Auto During Union Meeting

DENVER (AP) — An automobile station wagon parked outside a union hall was wrecked by an explosion Tuesday night as a meeting took place inside the building.

James Jordan, Denver fire investigator, said at least one stick of dynamite caused the blast and that wires were found leading from the car.

Some 50 members of Pipefitters Local 208 were showered with flying glass as three windows were blow out. Only Garrett Rush, the treasurer, suffered any injury. His arm was cut by glass. He was seated near a window.

The explosion occurred about 8:15 p.m. and shook a section of downtown Denver. The union hall is at W. 14th Avenue and Elati Street, only a block from the Rocky Mountain News building.

Tom Hambly, business manager of the local, said he was "completely amazed" at the explosion. He said the union was in no difficulties, either within its membership or with outsiders. Several years ago, Hambly said, a man planted several sticks of dynamite near the front of the building, but a fuse was cut and no explosion occurred. Hambly said the man is now dead.

PRESIDENTIAL MEET

DENVER (UPI)—Two Colorado labor leaders will attend a meeting with President Kennedy Thursday to discuss discrimination in employment. Herrick Roth, president of the AFL-CIO Colorado Labor Council, said he and Robert Holton, a labor council vice president and business manager of the Northern Colorado Building Construction Trades Council, would attend the meeting of labor leaders called by the President.

HEAVY AIR TRAFFIC

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (UPI)—The boys of the 137th Air National Guard Transport Company, in summer camp here, are literally up in the air over a private swimming pool club.

Club members have noticed heavy helicopter traffic above the pool area. The dressing rooms have no roofs.

Blast Wrecks Auto During Union Meeting

DENVER (AP) — An automobile station wagon parked outside a union hall was wrecked by an explosion Tuesday night as a meeting took place inside the building.

James Jordan, Denver fire investigator, said at least one stick of dynamite caused the blast and that wires were found leading from the car.

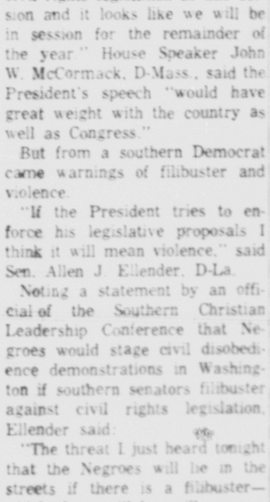

Some 50 members of Pipefitters Local 208 were showered with flying glass as three windows were blow out. Only Garrett Rush, the treasurer, suffered any injury. His arm was cut by glass. He was seated near a window.

The explosion occurred about 8:15 p.m. and shook a section of downtown Denver. The union hall is at W. 14th Avenue and Elati Street, only a block from the Rocky Mountain News building.

Tom Hambly, business manager of the local, said he was "completely amazed" at the explosion. He said the union was in no difficulties, either within its membership or with outsiders. Several years ago, Hambly said, a man planted several sticks of dynamite near the front of the building, but a fuse was cut and no explosion occurred. Hambly said the man is now dead.

PRESIDENTIAL MEET

DENVER (UPI)—Two Colorado labor leaders will attend a meeting with President Kennedy Thursday to discuss discrimination in employment. Herrick Roth, president of the AFL-CIO Colorado Labor Council, said he and Robert Holton, a labor council vice president and business manager of the Northern Colorado Building Construction Trades Council, would attend the meeting of labor leaders called by the President.

Senate Approval Seen for Atom Test Ban Treaty

By STANLEY MEISLER

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. Disarmament Director William C. Foster predicts a safe passage in the Senate for any nuclear test ban treaty signed by the Soviet Union and the West.

He does not agree with those who predict that a treaty would provoke the most bruising battle in the Senate since the proposal to join the League of Nations after World War I. Nor does he believe it would suffer the same dismal fate.

"It could be tough," Foster said in an interview, "but we could get a treaty through the Senate."

Foster, 66, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, will not take part in the U.S.-British-Soviet nuclear test ban treaty negotiations in Moscow next month. From his office here, he will back up the efforts of the American negotiators.

He would have a major role in selling any treaty to the Senate. Without the approval of a two-thirds majority, the treaty, like the League of Nations proposal almost 50 years ago, would die, unratified.

Despite his optimism, Foster said he had no illusions about the significance of a nuclear test ban treaty.

"The importance of a treaty has been exaggerated," he said. "It has symbolic value. Everyone feels that if we can't negotiate a test ban—when we are so close—then we can't negotiate any other part of the disarmament program.

"Fundamentally it might be possible to negotiate some other part of the disarmament program before a nuclear test ban," he continued. "But psychologically it's not possible. Also, if we had a test ban, we still would be very far from disarmament and arms control."

Foster also saw an overemphasis in the current concern over the number of inspections in a treaty. The Russians have said they would allow no more than three inspections of possible underground tests. The Americans have said they would settle for no less than seven.

"The number of inspections is not as important as the fact that these inspections are part of a system," Foster said. "We want to know how long we can inspect, who does the inspecting, where do we inspect, and so on.

"Three inspections a year would be too little," he said. "But there's no magic in the number seven."

Foster gave his views before President Kennedy announced Monday that he, Soviet Premier Khrushchev and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan had agreed to have representatives meet for the Moscow negotiations.

The affable and articulate Foster has put in long years as a corporation and government executive—He was administrator of the Marshall Plan and deputy secretary of defense under President Harry S. Truman—and he speaks with ease.

Foster took issue with Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and others who feel that the U.S. Senate is the "big, black obstacle" to a test ban.

"Congress isn't the big, black obstacle to a treaty," Foster said with a smile. "The Russians are."

"I don't agree with those who say the Senate would not ratify a treaty," he continued. "At the moment, you know, the situation isn't clear. We don't go to Congress and fight for a treaty. We don't have a treaty. The situation would be different if a treaty were signed. The President would give it his full support. That would make the critical difference especially with those Congressmen who haven't made up their minds."

Foster believes the Russians sincerely want to end nuclear testing.

"They are logical people," he said. "They know the risks of continued testing. They know testing is expensive."

Foster does not expect the United States ever to negotiate a treaty that is fool-proof against all cheating underground.

"We want a treaty that keeps the risks to a minimum," he said. "We want the risks from cheating to be far less on balance than the risks of continuing to test nuclear weapons.

"We are not going to get a treaty without risks. Anyone who expects a treaty without risks doesn't understand the world we live in."

Possibilities for Pope's Election Are Discussed

By JAMES M. LONG

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The next Pope almost certainly will be an Italian, probably will not be a member of the entrenched Vatican Curia, and likely will be between 63 and 73 years old.

But whether he will be one of the so-called progressives following the road opened by Pope John XXIII, or one of the conservatives who oppose such a course will be the big question before the conclave of cardinals opening here next Wednesday. He might be a moderate belonging to neither group.

Fixed church rules prohibit anything like campaigning in the days between the death of one Pope and the election of another.

But there is speculation about the outcome on every tongue, in every newspaper, and even among the highest church circles in this capital of Catholicism.

The main guesses are these:

The most likely choices are Giovanni Cardinal Urbani, who succeeded Pope John as patriarch of Venice, and Giacomo Cardinal Lecaro, archbishop of Bologna. Urbani is 63, youngest of the favorites. Lercaro is 71. Both are progressives but neither is regarded as among the more militant of the liberals.

Widely considered to follow as possible choices are Carlo Cardinal Confalonieri, and Giovann Battista Cardinal Montini, archbishop of Milan.

Confalonieri, 69, a moderate between the progressive and conservative groups, might be chosen for just that reason, in compromise. But he is a member of the Vatican Curia, and Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, who became Pope Pius XII, was the only Curia cardinal elevated to the papacy after 1831.

Montini, 65, is a progressive, a former Vatican pro-secretary of state, and a man who even at the last conclave, when he was not yet a cardinal, was regarded as a strong possibility for the papacy.

Next three most prominently mentioned are: Paolo Cardinal Marella, Alfonso Cardinal Castaldo and Francesco Cardinal Roberti. Marella, 68, is archpriest of St. Peter's Basilica and, like Confalonieri, a moderate. Casaldo, 72, archbishop of Naples, and Roberti, 73, a legal expert of the Curia, both lean slightly to the conservative side.

The election of a non-Italian is regarded as highly unlikely. The last non-Italian Pope was the Dutch Adrian VI, elected in 1522. No American cardinal is regarded as having a chance.

If a non-Italian is elected, the most likely prospects are said to be:

1. Eugene Cardinal Tisserant, long time French member of the Curia. He is 79 and dean of the College of Cardinals. He has been suggested as a prospect if a deadlock develops between progressives and conservatives.

2. Gregory Peter Cardinal Agagianian, 87-year-old Armenian prefect of the Congregation for Propagation of the Faith, who hopes, as Pope John did, for reunion with the separated Eastern churches.

3. Leo Jozef Cardinal Suenens, 58, archbishop of Malines-Brussels, an outstanding progressive.

4. Franziskus Cardinal Koenig, 57-year-old archbishop of Vienna, a language expert, progressive, and Pope John's envoy for preliminary negotiations with Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

Pope Pius XII increased percentage of non-Italians in the College of Cardinals until the foreigners were in majority. Pope John XXIII continued this. There are now 33 foreign cardinals from 30 countries and 29 cardinals from Italy.

Probably there always have been differing currents of opinion among the cardinals. But these never came into the open so clearly as last fall, during the two months of vigorous debate in the now suspended Ecumenical Council over the future course of the Church.

Most of the cardinals are regarded as moderates. The conservatives on one side and the progressives on the other are each smaller groups. Most members of the Roman Curia are conservatives.

Behind the locked doors of the secret conclave, these groups may find it hard to reconcile their views.

The final choice for 262nd supreme pontiff of Roman Catholicism could well be determined by which way the moderates cast their majority of ballots.

DRIVER FINED

DENVER (UPI)—The driver of a vehicle which fatally injured the mother of Denver mayoral candidate Thomas Currigan was fined $51 in Municipal Court Tuesday. Silas Wilkins, 20, of Denver, was charged with careless driving and failure to exercise due caution to a pedestrian in the death of Mrs. Mary F. Currigan, 68. Mrs. Currigan, struck as she crossed a northeast Denver avenue, died a day later in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Possibilities for Pope's Election Are Discussed

By JAMES M. LONG

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The next Pope almost certainly will be an Italian, probably will not be a member of the entrenched Vatican Curia, and likely will be between 63 and 73 years old.

But whether he will be one of the so-called progressives following the road opened by Pope John XXIII, or one of the conservatives who oppose such a course will be the big question before the conclave of cardinals opening here next Wednesday. He might be a moderate belonging to neither group.

Fixed church rules prohibit anything like campaigning in the days between the death of one Pope and the election of another.

But there is speculation about the outcome on every tongue, in every newspaper, and even among the highest church circles in this capital of Catholicism.

The main guesses are these:

The most likely choices are Giovanni Cardinal Urbani, who succeeded Pope John as patriarch of Venice, and Giacomo Cardinal Lecaro, archbishop of Bologna. Urbani is 63, youngest of the favorites. Lercaro is 71. Both are progressives but neither is regarded as among the more militant of the liberals.

Widely considered to follow as possible choices are Carlo Cardinal Confalonieri, and Giovanni Battista Cardinal Montini, archbishop of Milan.

Confalonieri, 69, a moderate between the progressive and conservative groups, might be chosen for just that reason, in compromise. But he is a member of the Vatican Curia, and Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, who became Pope Pius XII, was the only Curia cardinal elevated to the papacy after 1831.

Montini, 65, is a progressive, a former Vatican pro-secretary of state, and a man who even at the last conclave, when he was not yet a cardinal, was regarded as a strong possibility for the papacy.

Next three most prominently mentioned are Paolo Cardinal Marella, Alfonso Cardinal Castaldo and Francesco Cardinal Roberti. Marella, 68, is archpriest of St. Peter's Basilica and, like Confalonieri, a moderate. Casaldo, 72, archbishop of Naples, and Roberti, 73, a legal expert of the Curia, both lean slightly to the conservative side.

The election of a non-Italian is regarded as highly unlikely. The last non-Italian Pope was the Dutch Adrian VI, elected in 1522. No American cardinal is regarded as having a chance.

If a non-Italian is elected, the most likely prospects are said to be:

1. Eugene Cardinal Tisserant, long time French member of the Curia. He is 79 and dean of the College of Cardinals. He has been suggested as a prospect if a deadlock develops between progressives and conservatives.

2. Gregory Peter Cardinal Agagnian, 67-year-old Armenian prefect of the Congregation for Propagation of the Faith, who hopes, as Pope John did, for reunion with the separated Eastern churches.

3. Leo Jozef Cardinal Suenens, 58, archbishop of Malines-Brussels, an outstanding progressive.

4. Franziskus Cardinal Koenig, 57-year-old archbishop of Vienna, a language expert, progressive, and Pope John's envoy for preliminary negotiations with Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

Pope Pius XII increased percentage of non-Italians in the College of Cardinals until the foreigners were in majority. Pope John XXIII continued this. There are now 53 foreign cardinals from 30 countries and 29 cardinals from Italy.

Probably there always have been differing currents of opinion among the cardinals. But these never came into the open so clearly as last fall, during the two months of vigorous debate in the now suspended Ecumenical Council over the future course of the Church.

Most of the cardinals are regarded as moderates. The conservatives on one side and the progressives on the other are each smaller groups. Most members of the Roman Curia are conservatives.

Behind the locked doors of the secret conclave, these groups may find it hard to reconcile their views.

The final choice for 262nd supreme pontiff of Roman Catholicism could well be determined by which way the moderates cast their majority of ballots.

DRIVER FINED

DENVER (UPI)—The driver of a vehicle which fatally injured the mother of Denver mayoral candidate Thomas Currigan was fined $51 in Municipal Court Tuesday. Silas Wilkins, 20, of Denver, was charged with careless driving and failure to exercise due caution to a pedestrian in the death of Mrs. Mary F. Currigan, 68. Mrs. Currigan, struck as she crossed a northeast Denver avenue, died a day later in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Nation's Water Supply Big Scientific Problem

By LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — You turn the tap, fill the tumbler with the cool, clear, colorless liquid and drink it off.

You're refreshed. But unless you've ever really suffered from lack of water, you probably won't give it a second thought.

Like the air we breathe, water is one of life's necessities that is most apt to be taken for granted.

Yet it poses one of the greatest challenges facing a world constantly growing in population — that there always will be enough water to sustain life.

Here in the United States the problem varies with location. So do the measures taken to meet it. Let's take a look first at one region that over the years has suffered acutely from lack of water — the southern half of the Great Plains.

For several years now, some meteorologists have been predicting another severe drought cycle will strike that area about 1970.

Archaeologists say droughts on the Great Plains in centuries past have lasted any where from 2 or 3 years to 40 years.

In our own time, we remember the drought of the early 1930s that created the Dust Bowl and the pathetic migration of the Okies to California.

There was another such drought in the same region in the mid-19-50s. But that time no Dust Bowl was created. Farmers and agricultural scientists had learned much since the 1930s.

They had learned, for instance, two methods of "dry farming." One is a deep plowing method with heavy tractors to bring up stable clods and tap moisture unreachable by older cultivation habits.

The other eliminates plowing altogether; the surface of the soil is cut merely in narrow slits for seed. By this method, the soil is never without some herbiage cover to keep it from blowing away.

Farmers also learned you can't hope for a cash crop of wheat, cotton or sorghum every year on these lands. The dry years are inevitable, so it pays to plant only cover crops such as Sudan grass when drought is predicted.

But these dry farming and rotation techniques are expensive, they require large farms. Gradually the small farmer is being forced out of the Great Plains that no longer have irrigation water available and that actually are running out of water altogether at the rate they are using it.

The High Plains of Texas are one such section — the most dramatic area of water depletion in the country. This region of 22 million acres extending southward from the Oklahoma Panhandle and eastward from New Mexico is using up 10 times as much water each year as soaks into the ground from rainfall.

The people of the High Plains greatly increased their pumping of water from the ground for irrigation in the 1950s. The depletion is so great that in some parts of the region, the soil is drying out and sinking.

In fact, desertation has started on a small scale in the High Plains. Although scientists, water experts and agricultural experts are well aware of the peril in the High Plains, many people who live there do not seem to be.

They not only continue to pump too much water for irrigation, but some of the towns even try to bring in industries that are big consumers of water.

According to papers published in the Journal of the American Waterworks Association and various scientific journals, the people of the High Plains — and of some other areas in the United States with similar conditions — must face up to the reality.

They must accept the facts that their regions cannot support any more irrigated farming, not even as much as they have now, and that they cannot support industries that consume water.

But that doesn't mean these hopelessly water-short areas need be depopulated. They still can support a small population, small agriculture, and manufacturing that doesn't consume water.

According to hydrologist William L. Broadhurst of Lubbock, Tex., a great deal already is being done to capture more of the rainfall in the High Plains and store it underground by means of "recharge wells."

Broadhurst recounts the experiments of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District to recapture a greater percentage of the estimated annual runoff of 14 million acre feet of surface water by means of these wells.

He says much of this surface water — rain water — collects in natural depressions called playa lakes. These lakes are shallow and evaporation from them is extremely rapid. What is worse, they have impervious bottoms of clay and colloidal soils which don't allow the water to sink into the water-bearing subsoil.

The "recharge well," a technique also used in other parts of the country, literally consists of a well dug from the bottom of the playa lake into the sands below, so the lake will drain into the sands rapidly after a big rain.

The technique works, but in the High Plains it is not easy. There are many problems, not the least of which is the danger of clogging up the waterbearing sands below with clay and colloidal material from the playa lake bed.

More than 100 of these experimental recharge wells have been dug in the High Plains.

But a great deal more along this line and along other water conservation lines must be done if the High Plains are to remain habitable.

Spanish is the official language of Paraguay, but since most of the population is of Guarani Indian origin, Guarani is widely spoken.

Cheyenne Firm Hits School Contract

CASPER AP — A Cheyenne contracting firm has protested the bid of a Casper and Colorado Springs firm for construction of the new Kelly Walsh High School in Casper.

B H. Baker Co was the apparent low bidder at $1,951,164 on construction of the school building June 7. Reiman-Wuerth Co. was slightly higher with its bid.

An attorney for Reiman-Wuerth told school officials Baker should not have received the normal 5 per cent cost preference given Wyoming firms since it has its main offices in Colorado Springs A Baker spokesman said the firm is two corporations, one operating in each state.

The school board said it might rule by Friday in the contract award dispute.

Increased Revenue Is Collected in Tax

DENVER AP — Colorado residents paid more than $1,213,000,000 in federal taxes during the 12 months ending May 31.

V Lee Phillips, district director of the Internal Revenue Service, said this was approximately $58.5 million more than in the same 1961-62 period.

Desalting Sea Water Said to Be Still Costly

By LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The interest of the American public in national water conservation is apt to center on desalting sea water, experts say.

That's because it's the most dramatic aspect and the one that holds out alluring prospects of dividends for investors in any company that develops a very cheap and practical process.

And, for many areas, desalting sea water and brackish water is the only possible way of creating new fresh water supplies big enough to support a growing population or support vital industries.

Moreover, the scientific and engineering progress made in water desalting since World War II already is substantial.

But, on a national scale, desalting never will be important, according to the American Waterworks Association and many scientists and economists.

These experts do not believe desalted sea water ever will be cheap enough for irrigated agriculture except for small scale truck farming in very special situations.

Getting the cost of desalting water down to compare favorably with the cost of pumping fresh water from deep wells would not make the desalted water economically feasible for general use, the experts say.

The water still would have to be transported much too far in most cases. The cost of piping and the losses in transit soon would pile up too high.

All except a few sections of the country are within reach of as yet unused reserves of fresh water. And better methods of conserving fresh water supplies offer a greater net increase in available fresh water in most areas than does desalting.

It still costs several times as much to desalt water by the cheapest process as to pump fresh water from deep wells. And, in addition to the transport cost, there is the problem of disposing of the salts extracted from the sea water.

Where there is no heavy transport cost and no fresh water alternative is available, though, desalting pays off. Buckeye, Ariz., for example, has a desalting plant for brackish water turning out 650,000 gallons a day. 50 cents per 1,000 gallons, and the folks think it's reasonable. Costs of $1 to $1.25 a thousand gallons for desalting sea water at San Diego and Freeport, Tex., are considered feasible by industries using the water. It is planned to increase capacities of these government demonstration plants from 1 million to 10 million gallons a day. That will cut the cost to about 35 cents a thousand gallons.

But the adoption of conservation practices by industries that use large amounts of water increases fresh water supplies much more and at vastly lower cost than desalting ever could do, because of the transport costs.

The scale of these savings is impressive. Professor Abel Wolman of Johns Hopkins University told a water conference at Atlantic City in 1960 about progress up to that time.

The steel industry managed to cut its use of water from 55,000 gallons for every ton of steel produced to around 2,000 gallons. The general paper industry uses 2,000 to 4,000 gallons of water per ton of paper against 7,000 to 10,000 formerly, and the kraft pulp industry cut its use from 45,000 to 8,000 gallons per ton of pulp. The cannery industry has halved its water use.

The Department of Agriculture claims many irrigation methods are wasteful and is getting farmers to change some of these methods. It says savings of up to 50 million acre feet a year ultimately are possible by more efficient irrigation.

And scientists say cleaning lakes and streams of useless water plants, which consume much water, can save 6 million more acre feet a year.

Reducing reservoir evaporation is another important way to save fresh water. The evaporation loss from reservoirs in the 17 western states alone is set at 15.6 million acre feet a year. A scientific task force said last year that much can be done in this respect.

Reducing the problem to money, one water district estimated it could save $15 million in evaporation losses over the 45-year term of the bonds floated to build a reservoir by choosing a smaller site where the reservoir would be deeper and present less surface to the sun.

In addition to choosing reservoir sites less subject to evaporation, engineers say much water can be saved by the use of hexadecanol and octadecanol, harmless waxlike chemicals that inhibit evaporation markedly when spread on the surface of the water. The technique of using these chemicals is not easy, however.

EMOTIONAL ASPECTS OF AUTOMATION

Modern assembly line work and automation are harder on the nervous system than on the body. Most of the physical health hazards of the old-time factory have been removed including those arising from dust, accidents, and contact with toxic products. It is surprising how well we have adapted to the industrial revolution that began less than 200 years ago. Will we be equally successful in the new phase of this revolution?

Repetitive work is not new in that the farmers, pottery workers, weavers, and many others labored along this line long before power was introduced. But the craftsman derived satisfaction from creating something that he could see and understand. This is in contrast to the modern assembly line worker who never sees the fruits of his labor except in a shop or showroom. This applies also to clerks who feed figures to complicated accounting systems without the slightest idea of the end results.

On the other hand, there is satisfaction in repetitive work that requires considerable (in) tellectual skill. Others have learned to tolerate their job so long as it does not intrude on daydreams or hobbies, sports, and personal relationships. Unskilled assembly line jobs also mean companionship and the monotony is broken by the constant chitchat of workers, often in disgraceful language. But it helps to let off steam and pass the time.

The nervous system suffers more when companionship is prevented by noise or by marked incompatibility. This is not the fault of the machine age because complicated machines require skilled maintenance. Automation has little or no ill effects on physical well-being except that it decreases the amount of exercise; activity helps protect against heart attacks. Inactivity encourages obesity and excessive smoking.

The emotional effects are likely to be more pronounced. At its worst, automation could mean watching the machine without even the satisfaction of using the hands in a simple, repetitive task. As time goes by, the machinery will become bigger and the workers fewer, so that boredom and lack of companionship will increase. Somewhere along the line these social problems may be solved.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Inflamed Vein

C. J. writes: My husband has had varicose veins for years. They never gave him any trouble until he developed phlebitis. The doctor wants to strip the affected vein when the phlebitis is better. Do you think this is necessary?

Reply

Let him cross this bridge when the phlebitis subsides completely. Surgery may not be needed if inflammation has obstructed the vein so completely it disappears spontaneously.

Irritation From Tobacco

F. H. writes: Could excessive smoking cause bloodshot eyes?

Reply

Not as a rule. The smoke may irritate the eyes, depending upon the way the individual holds his cigar or cigaret. Sitting for a long time in a smoke-filled room may have the same effect.

Hair Loss In Women

R. M. writes: Is it true that with the administration of female sex hormones, a woman's thinning hair can be restored to normal?

Reply

I doubt if the method will be successful because a deficiency of certain sex hormones is not the only cause of balding in women.

Alcohol and Congestion

G. B. writes: Does the use of alcohol aggravate nasal congestion and bronchial cough?

Reply

Yes, except when used only in small amounts.

Nobody Killed, Only Two Men Hurt As Train Derailed, Truck Smashed

LOOPED RAIL—This rail was twisted into a loop by the onrushing train. The flattened water tank of the truck is plastered against the front of the locomotive. The train carried the tank for 575 feet after the point of impact. Damage to the truck was estimated at $12,000 with $550,000 worth of damage to the train and tracks. More pictures on page 11. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

By ROGER LENTZ
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

An eastbound Rock Island train collided with a water truck at a Calhan railroad crossing Wednesday, completely demolishing the truck and causing an estimated half million dollars damage to the train and tracks. Amazingly, there were no fatalities and only two injuries in the collision which occurred at 12:50 p.m.

The truck driver, Tim Trujillo, 42, of Pueblo, was taken to St. Francis Hospital with multiple fractures of his arms and legs and a severed tendon in his right hand. Hospital officials this morning termed his condition "fair."

Only one of the 30 passengers on the train was known to have been injured. Anders Lund, 80, of Chicago, Ill., complained of chest pains and was taken to St. Francis Hospital for observation. Hospital officials said he was apparently "just shaken up."

The train, a Rocket, driven by Lee C. Haberthier, 62, of Limon, was reported to have been going 50 miles per hour when it hit the southbound semi-trailer truck which was loaded with 3,000 gallons of water. The State Patrol said Haberthier was uninjured.

The truck, which is owned by the Pioneer Construction Co., was going to a nearby construction site when it was hit. The State Patrol said the truck failed to stop for the crossing.

The train struck the water tank of the truck, flattening it out and carrying it for 575 feet down the tracks after the impact.

The locomotive of the train was pulling a second power unit, a mail car, and three passenger cars. All the cars of the train were derailed in the wreck. The tracks were torn up for the length of the train. Wreckage was strewn along the side of the tracks and the cab of the truck was torn in two.

The State Patrol was on the scene minutes after the collision, along with El Paso County sheriff's deputies and the Calhan Fire Department.

Passengers on the train were taken to Limon in chartered buses after the accident where another train was waiting for them. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Lovelace, 917 N. Nevada Ave., who were on the next to last car of the train, said that the passengers remained calm when the train left the tracks. Mrs. Lovelace said, "We hardly knew when we hit the truck. There was just a little bump." Her husband said, "We knew we hit a water truck alright because water was splattering everywhere as we passed the crossing."

Andrew Youhanaie, a vacationing civil engineer for the Rock Island Railroad said, "First we saw dust outside the window and then pieces of the truck flying in the air. A tire passed right by our window."

Workmen were busy clearing the wreckage Wednesday afternoon and railroad officials said the line was cleared and ready for use at 10:30 last night.

Third Negro Will Enroll in Alabama School

By HUGH SCHUTTE

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — A third Negro enrolls today in the University of Alabama system under protection of state police after Gov. George C. Wallace decided against a second doorway stand for segregation.

Authorities said they expected no trouble at the University Extension Center where the Negro, Dave Mack McGlathery, was to register.

Ironically, state troopers who helped city police seal off the campus here Friday will, in effect be helping enforce federal court orders which Wallace unsuccessfully challenged Tuesday at the main university campus in Tuscaloosa.

"They'll be in Huntsville to see that it's orderly," said Wallace's press secretary, Bill Jones, in Montgomery. Jones said the governor again "urges Alabama citizens to restrain themselves . . . We are going to have law and order."

Quiet prevailed at the Tusca-

Buildings Afire In Maryland Racial Dispute

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (AP)—Fires flared in three buildings and a brief fight broke out Wednesday night—the third consecutive night of integration demonstrations in this small Tidewater community.

State police said at least two of the fires had been set deliberately. They broke out shortly after a Negro rally at a church.

In one incident, police said, a burning oil pot was thrown from a car through a window of a grocery in the Negro section of town. The fire was put out before it caused major damage.

Only minutes before, a fire destroyed a shed behind the home of Mrs. Helen Waters, the only Negro member of the Dorchester County School Board. She voted with the majority Monday in turning down an appeal for stepped-up school integration.

A flaming kerosene-soaked mop was shoved through the window of a bakery in the white section of town but only minor damage was reported.

Mrs. Waters said she received an anonymous telephone threat Tuesday night that: "You and and Mr. Cornish will be next." Charles Cornish is the only Negro member of the Cambridge City Council.

Mrs. Waters said a brick was thrown through her window after the telephone call.

Several white bystanders attacked two white integrationist demonstrators Wednesday night as they marched with some 120 Negroes. City police quickly broke up the fight.

Racial Strife At a Glance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JACKSON, Miss. — Widow of slain integration leader calls on Negroes to continue their fight against racial discrimination. Police and federal agents push massive search for assassin of Medgar W. Evers and say they have some good leads. Demonstrations broken up Wednesday and 146 Negroes jailed. Some fear fresh racial strife as result of slaying.

CAMBRIDGE, Md. — Third straight night of integration demonstrations sees fires flare in three buildings and a brief fight.

WASHINGTON—About 200 labor leaders to meet with President Kennedy today to discuss civil rights. Former President Eisenhower discussed with Kennedy on Wednesday the administration's forthcoming civil rights message to Congress. Southern senators rallying to fight Kennedy proposals. Close associate of slain Negro leader Evers to tell House Judiciary subcommittee of racial violence in Jackson, Miss.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala.—Third Negro enrolls this afternoon in white University of Alabama system. Gov. George C. Wallace, who failed to prevent two other Negroes from entering main campus at Tuscaloosa on Tuesday, says he will not appear at Huntsville. All quiet at Tuscaloosa as Negro students attend classes.

HONOLULU—Nation's mayors adopt civil rights program outlined by President Kennedy for improving racial harmony.

LEXINGTON, N.C. — Murder charge filed against 19-year-old Negro accused of firing shots that killed one white man and wounded another in race riot Thursday night.

NEW YORK — Acting Mayor Paul R. Screvane says city will halt construction on a city hospital project unless AFL-CIO trade unions end immediately any discriminatory practices there.

SAVANNAH, Ga.—Tense situation developed when Negro policeman arrested white man accused of hitting or pushing Negro demonstrator. Police reinforcements head off trouble. Chamber of Commerce offers to mediate racial dispute—principally over segregated hotels and restaurants—but Negro leader says demonstrations will continue.

JERSEY CITY, N.J. — Mayor Thomas Gangemi announces a civil rights program he says will "end racial tension and make Jersey City the showcase of the nation."

TEXARKANA, Tex. — Texarkana Junior College admits two Negro women under federal court orders with no incidents on campus during the day. But about 200 youths burned a cross on the campus Wednesday night, then staged an anti-integration march in the downtown area.

Another Raid Is Claimed by Cuban Exiles

MIAMI (UPI) — U. S. authorities today questioned a small band of Cuban commandoes who claimed they badly damaged Cuba's biggest distillery, killed many soldiers and sank a patrol boat during a raid this week.

The 10 raiders were detained Wednesday when they pulled into the Florida Keys in a white-sailed fishing schooner with two prisoners and an anti-Communist seaman who sought asylum in the United States. They said they commandeered the boat after their own cannon-loaded converted PT boat sank during a sea battle after midnight Tuesday.

U.S. Is Heading To Dictatorship, Hunter Warns

The present Washington administration, thru "tremendous blackmailing pressures" against members of Congress and thru the unwarranted assumption of power by the President, is rapidly taking this country toward dictatorship, a leading ultra-conservative told the Gazette Telegraph today.

Edward Hunter, a former newspaperman and noted author of books on brainwashing techniques, said this is coming about thru the "biggest lobby I have ever seen."

He referred to "White House pressures" which he said are using "every device in the book" to eliminate the checks against such an assumption of power which are contained in the Constitution.

"The most important issue in the nation's capital today," Hunter said, "is the question whether the United States shall retain its present form of government, or become in all respects, a dictatorship."

Hunter is here to lecture at several sessions of Billy James Hargis Anti-Communist Youth University at the Summit in Manitou Springs.

In charging that the administration is leaning toward dictatorship, Hunter pointed not only to unwarranted presidential assumption of power, but to elements in Congress and recent Supreme Court decisions which he says are

No Criminal Cases Found By Grand Jury

In the Grand Jury's report filed in the district attorney's office Tuesday, the jury concluded "the sessions were rather non-profitable, inasmuch as there seemed to be no matters presented or discovered constituting criminal offenses or irregularities in the operations of municipal or county offices."

It was added however that "the effect of having an annual Grand Jury, plus the advantage to the citizens of the county in being afforded the opportunity to appear and discuss freely any matters concerning which they wish to complain, in keeping with the over-all democratic system of government, justified the nominal ex-

School District Boundary Change Plan Is Tabled

A proposal to change the boundary line in the Skyway Park — County Home area was tabled Wednesday by District 11 board of school directors.

The request for the boundary line change was made by residents of the area and by county commissioners, District 11 officials said.

It calls for turning over a portion of the district to School District 12.

Officials here said that property valuation of homes in the area is placed at $118,920 with unimproved property valued at more than $12,000. County property involved has no valuation at the moment.

However one of the reasons the county is supporting the boundary line change is to sell some of its

Two Youngsters Found After Nine-Hour Search

A nine-hour search for two missing 8-year old youngsters ended successfully Wednesday afternoon when a Civil Air Patrol plane spotted the children hiking toward Woodland Park.

The youngsters, Michael Mitchell and Judy Franco, were missed by their mothers about 9 a.m. Wednesday from their homes at the Buffalo Lodge, 2 El Paso Blvd.

Mrs. Dan Mitchell, aided by a neighbor, Mrs. Charles Carter, searched for the missing pair for an hour and a half before notifying the motel manager, Arvid Temple.

Temple joined the search by auto and Carter was enlisted to search on horseback.

Shortly before noon, the Manitou Springs and Colorado Springs police departments and the El Paso County sheriff's office were called for assistance. Temple also requested the assistance of the CAP.

Maj. Earl Cole, Manitou Springs acting Group III commander, assigned Maj. Laurel Bonurant and Owner-Pilot Specialist Ray Newbill to the search. The men flew a Cessna 172 Sky Lane over the area and sighted the children at 4:30 p.m.

They were picked up by Carter, Mrs. Carter and the Rev. Don Cummings by auto.

The children told searches they had decided to hike to Woodland Park to a church camp where a trailer they had used as an occasional playhouse had been taken a few days before.

The children were in good physical condition but did suffer severe sunburn after removing their outer clothing to keep cool under the hot sun. Judy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Franco.

Kennedy Renews $450 Million Plan For 'Distress'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy said today he will give Congress "another opportunity to support" a $450-million distressed areas appropriation.

Kennedy, in a statement, called it "tragic" that the House rejected the legislation Wednesday on a 209-204 vote.

"This program must not be allowed to die," he said, "and it is my intention to give the Congress another opportunity to support it."

Kennedy said scores of hard-hit communities in seven states were counting on the appropriation.

He listed the states most affected as Pennsylvania, Michigan, West Virginia, eastern Kentucky, upstate New York, upstate Minnesota and Southern Illinois.

"The people of these and other affected states need more than speeches to help their depressed communities and jobless workers," the President said.

The bill would have authorized $450 million more in grants and loans to encourage creation and expansion of job-making industries in areas of high unemployment.

Similar legislation is pending in the Senate, and Kennedy's legislative leaders would have a second try in the House if the Senate passed its bill

South Suburban PUC Hearing Slated Friday

A citizens committee has urged all users of the South Suburban Water Co. to attend a Public Utilities Commission hearing Friday into customers' request for an investigation of the company.

The hearing is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. in the auditorium at the County Office Building.

Residents of Ivywild, Cheyenne Canon and Broadmoor, who are customers of the company, are asking the PUC to enjoin the water company from maintaining its strict restriction of water.

South Suburban placed the restrictions last May 1. No irrigation of lawns is permitted in the area.

Residents are complaining of "burned-up" lawns and dying trees and shrubbery.

It was pointed out that the "Consumer's Committee" is entirely voluntary and that the two attorneys representing the users are both serving without pay. They are David H. Morris and William E. Rhodes.

"It is the hope of the committee that plans might be developed by the company to prevent any future occurrence of the extreme water shortage that is now endangering the lawns and beautiful trees of the area served by the company," the committee said in a statement urging attendance

Massive Hunt Launched For Assassin of Negro

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — As tension mounted in this troubled Southern city, police and federal agents continued a massive search today for the assassin of Negro leader Medgar W. Evers.

"We have some good leads," said Chief of Detectives M.B. Pierce.

Meanwhile, the widow of the slain man — her voice trembling with emotion — called on Negroes to continue their battle against racial discrimination.

Evers was gunned down in his driveway early Wednesday.

There were fears that the ambush slaying would touch off fresh racial strife in this Mississippi capital city of 145,000

The Rev. A. Charles Jones, dean of Campbell College for Negroes here and one of the leaders in the integration movement, telegraphed President Kennedy that the tragedy may provoke a violent explosion in this community which will bring additional disgrace and tarnish the American image before the people of the world."

Evers, 37, had been Mississippi field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People for the last nine years.

Thirteen ministers and a church layman who gathered downtown for a "mourning march" Wednesday were arrested by police. They were later released without charge.

Later, 146 other Negroes were jailed when police broke up another attempted demonstration.

Late Wednesday night, a police car was hit by several soft drink bottles as it drove through the campus of Jackson State (Negro) College Police Capt. Cecil Hath away said the bottles had apparently been hurled from the top of a five-story men's dormitory.

HUGH J. ROSS

Hugh J. Ross Enters Race For Congress

By RAY HERST
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Hugh J. Ross, by-passing the traditional political announcement boundaries, today leaped into the race for the 1964 Democratic nomination for U. S. Representative in the Third Congressional District.

He leaped in with both feet and announced his intention of remaining in the thick of the race right up until the primary elections in September of 1964, 15 months away

By announcing his intention to run for the nomination, Ross bore out rumors that he would run which have persisted since before the last congressional race.

The former county commissioner said he has informed District Democratic Chairman Frank Evans of his intention.

Ross said "persistantly strong requests" that he run "from all over the district" prompted his early announcement

He said the requests have come from Democrats, Republicans and Independents in the 19-county third district

Gerard left the bulk of his $147,000 estate to charity.

Federal Aid Not Needed In Drought, Governor Says

LAMAR (AP) — Gov. John Love said Wednesday that he believes farmers and ranchers in southeastern Colorado can handle the drought situation without federal aid.

He said that had he conferred with local residents several weeks ago he would never have approved disaster designations for 15 Colorado counties.

"While it is dry, the word disaster overstates the case tremendously," Love said.

The governor spoke during a visit to southeastern Colorado in fulfillment of a campaign promise he made to return government to the people.

The disaster designation makes farmers and ranchers eligible to buy feed grain at lower prices and permits them to graze cattle on Soil Bank land

Representatives of six southeastern Colorado counties requested the appointment of a commission to attract industry in rural areas.

They also asked the governor to consider administrative changes which would place more control over state programs in the hands of county commissioners.

John Lefferdink, Kiowa County attorney, said the state should encourage the construction of nursing homes in counties outside the large cities. He said this would supply more economic support to the counties.

16 U.S. Solons Go to Paris For Air Show

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. J. Edgar Chenoweth, R-Colo., was among 16 House and Senate members who left Wednesday night to visit the Paris Air Show, traveling as guests of Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert

The group flew aboard a VC-137 jet transport of the Special Air Mission Fleet.

A spokesman said the congressmen "were invited due to their official assignments or interests in aviation-space matters."

Educators See End of Grading In High Schools

ESTES PARK (UPI)— A four-day meeting of Colorado School Administrators ended Wednesday on a note of predicted change from "old fashioned and medieval techniques of high school operations."

Dr. Frank Brown, a noted Florida educator, said high schools soon would abolish graded classrooms—probably within the next five years.

Brown said the present system of grouping students in grades and forcing them to study at the same level as other youngsters was "old fashioned and medieval and has no place in our current technological age."

He said non-graded systems would aid both exceptional and slow students. Brown said in some cases, the time required for teaching courses could be cut in half.

Venezuela Chief Orders Arrest of 400,000 Reds

By PAUL FINCH

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — President Romulo Betancourt ordered the arrest of Venezuela's estimated 400,000 Communists and pro-Castro extremists Wednesday night following his escape from another assassin attempt

Betancourt said three Communist terrorists plotted to assassinate him Wednesday with a time bomb at the Roman Catholic archbishop's palace in Ciudad Bolivar, a river port 275 miles southeast of Caracas.

The president told a national radio audience that police nabbed two of the terrorists as they entered the palace with three sticks of dynamite and a timing device The third plotter got away

Society cannot be subject to continued risk to property and life by a group of pyromaniacs and terrorists Betancourt said in ordering Interior Minister Carlos Andres Perez to start an immediate nationwide roundup of members of the already banned Communist and left wing [illegible] lutionary Left, is a pro-Castro revolutionary movement.

The order was the toughest Betancourt has issued against subversives who began moving against him shortly after he took office in 1959 The next election is scheduled for November The president has banned Communists from the election

He has survived three previous known plots against his life and two revolts against his government It is believed there were several other assassination attempts that never were announced

Betancourt noting that the government cannot hold anyone without charges for more than 30 days vowed that every Communist will be jailed again as soon as released Such 30-day periods of detention could go on indefinitely

The president a moderate leftist, said he ordered the arrests because the legislature was taking too much time to enact an anti-terrorism measure [illegible]

Petitions of Zone Changes Opposed At Public Hearing

Two zone change petitions presented to the El Paso County Planning Commission met vigorous opposition at a public hearing Wednesday.

A team of vocal protesters, reinforced with a written petition, from the Broadmoor area were successful in quashing a request that four tracts of land in the vicinity of Mount Washington Avenue be changed from an R-1 to an R-2 residence zone.

The zone change petition was submitted by Blakemore McCarty and Ray Frost who had planned to develop the land for an estimated 60 multiple-housing units. McCarty had presented the petition to the commission last month and it was tabled for further study.

Residents of the neighborhood voiced a strong protest on the general grounds that an apartment development would eventually decrease their property value, increase traffic, obstruct their respective panoramic views and drain their already diminishing water supply.

This property owner told he [illegible] to work a commercial de-

Discouragement Is Reported in Rio de Janeiro

By EDGAR MILLER

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) —It's easy to get discouraged in Brazil these days.

It's hard to be optimistic while you wait for hours in lines to buy food which daily costs more.

It's difficult to get excited about economic recovery plans when your salary buys less and less each month.

"What we need is a good dictatorship," says laborer Joao da Silva, 30, a father of three who makes about $30 a month. He says many of his neighbors and coworkers feel the same way. They want leadership.

Joao isn't worried about losing his democratic freedoms and he isn't particularly interested in communism. He is interested in how he's going to feed and clothe his family.

"The way it is now, the president can't just up and do what needs to be done," says Joao. "He has to ask Congress and a big fight gets started and it never gets done."

The Brazilian government's efforts to solve this nation's financial problems have been hampered by continuing internal political and economic pressures, unrest in the armed forces and a slow-moving Congress.

Despite the ambitious aims of the three-year economic recovery plan, the cost of living in the first five months of 1963 has shot up 25.5 per cent, according to preliminary unofficial figures of the semi-official Getulio Vargas Foundation, compared with a 14.3 per cent increase for the same period last year.

The price climb leveled off in April and May to about 4 per cent after hitting a peak of 9.7 per cent in March.

The problem for the low-income worker is that the big increases recently have been in areas of basic necessity such as food, clothing and medicine. Clothing last month took a 14.1 per cent jump.

On the positive side, Finance Minister Francisco Santiago Dantas, the strong man of President Joao Goulart's Cabinet, says a new $60-million credit released by the International Monetary Fund will take care of Brazil's balance of payments problems for the remainder of the year.

Dantas and other Brazilian economists interpret the credit as a demonstration of confidence in Brazil's efforts to combat inflation and achieve stabilization.

Goulart meanwhile has informed a labor union group that he opposes any attempts to put strike pressure on Congress to speed up action on reform legislation.

The leftist-dominated unions want to call a general strike to hasten congressional action on agrarian reform.

Despite the gloomy outlook at the moment, there are long-range signs of great promise for South America's largest nation.

Brazil's steel industry is becoming an important economic factor. New mills are constantly increasing steel production.

Sao Paulo's industry appears to be coming out of a slight recession.

A highway has been opened linking Bahia in the poverty-stricken northeast with the industrial south. Another highway linking the capital, Brasilia, with Belem in the north is nearing completion.

Brazil has often been called the "sleeping giant of the Americas." The optimistic see the nation's current struggles as the first tossings of the giant as it awakens. The darkness they believe is the dark before the dawn.

Nikita Claims 'Victory' in Cuban Defeat

By LEON DENNEN

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Kennedy seemingly won a diplomatic victory in the Cold War when he quarantined Cuba last October and forced the Russians to remove their offensive missiles.

Red China's Mao Tse-tung, Nikita Khrushchev's bitter foe in the Communist world, denounced Moscow's Cuban retreat as a "Soviet Munich." There is little doubt that in a world where "face" is important the Soviet premier suffered a loss in prestige.

Yet in six months, while United States diplomacy was paralyzed by partisan quarrels, Khrushchev was able to snatch victory out of defeat. He even had the effrontery to announce that he had accepted Castro's invitation to visit Moscow's Cuban satellite 90 miles from Florida.

As seen by specialists on communism, Khrushchev was able to turn defeat into victory because the Russians never conceded that it was the U.S. quarantine that forced them to remove their missiles from Cuba.

Moscow's Pravda and Izvestia write to this day that the Soviet premier's "sacrifice to peace" was due solely to President Kennedy's alleged pledge not to invade Cuba and to prevent anti-Communist Cubans from overthrowing Castro's dictatorship.

This has also been repeated with deadly monotony by Moscow's global propaganda organ Novoye Vremia (New Time) ever since the United States failed to press Khrushchev for the agreed, on-site inspection of missile bases. Such inspection was the main condition for lifting the quarantine. President Kennedy said last fall.

The State Department was obviously reluctant to engage in public debate with the Red press. Thus, the United States Castro regime was the price paid Khrushchev for removing his missiles from Cuba.

However, it was the Soviet premier himself—and not anonymous Red journalists — who recently warned that Russia will aid Cuba if the United States failed "to carry out" the agreement Khrushchev says he reached with President Kennedy in October.

The Soviet Premier spoke at Moscow's mammoth rally for Fidel Castro. Here, as reported by Pravda, is what he said:

"A breach of obligations by the United States could not be regarded otherwise than as perfidy." . . .

"If the United States does not strictly observe the agreement reached and aggravates the situation, the world might find itself in an even more dangerous situation than during last year's Caribbean crisis."

Truth, of course, is not a tenet of Marxist-Leninist double talk. Nor is Khrushchev known for his veracity. But he is the leader of one of the world's most powerful nations. His words about an agreement with President Kennedy spoken in public, were clear. They can no longer be ignored or dismissed with vague denials by the United States.

Should Moscow's statement stand unchallenged, the belief that President Kennedy pledged to use force against Castro under certain conditions will bolster Red prestige in Latin America. It will play havoc with the Alliance for Progress. It will sow confusion in the United States.

No phase of the Kennedy administration's policy baffles the ordinary American more than the policy on Cuba, as this writer has found on trips around the United States.

Surely Americans are entitled to know if there are pledges of the kind Khrushchev is talking about. It is not enough to say that the foreign policy of a free nation is the business of the government. Policies pursued by democracies are credible and can be effective only if the whole people share the conviction that their aims are right.

Are the Reds indulging as usual in reckless propaganda? If so, no time should be lost by the State Department in contradicting officially and without ambiguity Khrushchev's claims.

The oldest piece of music existing with English words is "Sumer Is Icumen In," composed at Reading Abbey in the 13th century.

Looking At Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER

(© 1963, By the Chicago Tribune)

JACK WARNER MAKES PITCH FOR HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD. —Jack Warner put on a pitch for our town in a speech after introducing Audrey Hepburn, Rex Harrison, Sterling Holloway, Gladys Cooper, George Cukor, Cecil Beaton, Andre Previn, Hermes Pan, and Harry Stradling Sr. to the press at a luncheon served by Dave Chasen at his studio.

"Many people thought I should make 'My Fair Lady' in in England," said Warner. "My answer was 'Why?' I started here, my studio's been very successful. We have the finest actors, writers, and technicians in the world and they're happier when they stay home. Years ago we made two successful sea pictures without going to sea. We built the ships on a sound stage and put them on rockers. We're building Covent Garden on a sound stage. I abhor these integrates who make their pile here, then make a couple of pictures abroad and start knocking the town where they made their name and fortune.

I applaud Jack Warner. If we had more like him, Hollywood would never have lost its magic. Now it's coming back.

Afterwards Cecil Beaton took me to the wardrobe department to see some costumes and hats he's designed for "Lady." They're slightly sensational. I lost my mind over the headgear but it's going to take tall girls with marvelous balance to wear 'em. The Happiness on the faces of those lady workers warmed the cockles of this old heart. Hooray for Hollywood!

A small world. When Donna Douglas of The Beverly Hillbillies toured Japan last week, one of her hosts was Michi Sohma. When Michi was an exchange student at Santa Monica City college several years ago, he lived at my home for four years. He's a fine boy, now works for the Sanyo electric company which sponsors the Hillbillies in Japan.

Steve Boyd, hearing about my new car, wrote from Madrid: "What a hotbed of English bums we all are! (He drives a Rolls) too. Soon it will be chic to own an American car. I must rush now to Manzanares. I have to kill off Omar Sharif today—mustn't be late."

Many officials at Twentieth are unhappy over Walter Wanger's "Cleo" diary in a national mag. I asked several there what they throught of the story. One said: "Let's call him Mr. Kiss and Tell. Wanger is the most wonderful man in the world. He's the only one connected with the picture—according to him — who didn't make a single mistake."

Judy Garland's been posing for Rene Bouchet. He did seven portraits of her for a mag—will gift hr with one, which she'll hang in the new Brentwood house she's bought. Instead of her name on the door of the new $10,000 dressing room CMS provided for her, Judy's door reads "The Legend."

Actors in "Take Her, She's Mine" are living up to the title. Romances are blossoming. Monica Moran, Thelma Ritter's daughter, is going steady with Singer Byron Moss. Jenny Maxwell, who was in "Blue Denim," and Jack Wrather Jr., whose marriage to Natalie Wood's sister, Lana, lasted a couple of minutes, were almost thataway. He gave Jenny a friendship ring, but when he suggested an engagement ring, she handed the other back and declared he was too possessive. The new French heartthrob Philippe Forquet is seeing only beautiful Sharon Tate. In fact, she's on the set most of the time. She was quite an item with Dick Beymer in Rome. It ended when he went to the Actors Studio in New York.

MAN DROWNS

WINDSOR (UPI)—Gerald Rutz, 20, of Fort Collins, Colo., drowned Tuesday in Windsor Lake. Rutz, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Rutz of Nessland, S.D., was swimming with Ted Webb, 20, of Fort Collins, when the accident occurred. Webb told Weld County Sheriff Bill Welsh Rutz apparently stepped into a deep hole while wading.

Buddhism Defends New South Viet Nam Trends

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The saffron robes of the Buddhist monks and the gleaming Buddhist temples are as much a part of Southeast Asia as the monsoons and the rice paddies.

Buddhism is the state religion of Thailand. Laos is Buddhist and in South Vietnam it is estimated that 70 per cent of the population is Buddhist.

Which helps to explain mounting United States concern over the harsh repressive measures of South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem's government against the Buddhist majority there.

As a religious dispute between the Catholic president and the Buddhists, it is an internal matter and one thing. Its effect upon a war in which the United States is deeply committed and upon the feelings of millions of Southeast Asians toward the United States is still another.

For, like it or not, and many Americans in South Vietnam do not, the United States is committed to win the anti-Communist struggle in South Vietnam on a slogan "Win with Diem."

The United States is doing its best to disassociate itself from the present dispute.

UPI Correspondent Neil Sheehan reported on the basis of reliable sources in Saigon that, privately, U.S. Deputy Chief of Mission William Trueheart has urged Diem to settle the quarrel and get on with the war.

U.S. military commander Gen. Paul D. Harkins has ordered all American military advisers not to accompany Vietnamese units suppressing Buddhist demonstrations.

But this counts for little when the Vietnamese use easily identifiable airplanes and equipment obtained through American aid in their repressive actions and indelibly link the United States with them.

Once more from Saigon sources Sheehan reports that the United States so far has refrained from publicly rebuking Diem out of fear of losing what little influence it now has with his government.

But U.S. representatives are finding it more and more difficult to maintain a position that Diem is leading a broad, popular movement, when at the same time it is obvious he is in deep political trouble with a majority of his own population.

This is far from the first time that Diem has ignored U.S. advice.

U.S. military forces in South Vietnam are there to advise and not to command.

Diem himself assumes direction of all military operations.

As a result, a large portion of the South Vietnamese Army is held immobile against a supposed threat of mass Communist attack across the 17th parallel from North Vietnam.

"Clear and hold" operations against Communist-held villages usually result in the immediate return of the Reds once government forces depart. Enemy casualties are exaggerated and some operations fail simply because of faulty intelligence.

U.S. aid has helped to stem the Communist advance in South Vietnam.

But if events continue to follow their present course the fat will could be in the fire.

Formula for American Oil Imports Changed

WASHINGTON (UPI)— President Kennedy issued a proclamation Tuesday changing the formula for allocating petroleum imports into the area east of the Rocky Mountains, beginning July 1.

An Interior Department spokesman said, however, that the formula would mean little or no change in the amount of oil imported. Had it not been changed, he added, there would have been a small decrease in the amount of licensed imports.

Under the current formula, permissible imports are computed on the basis of 12.2 per cent of actual domestic production in the period ending six months before the beginning of a new allocation period.

The new formula will eliminate this time lag. Beginning July 1, imports will be allocated on the basis of 12.2 per cent of the crude oil and natural gas liquids that the secretary of interior estimates will be produced in the area during the period for which the allocation is made.

The allocation under the new formula, as under the old, will take into consideration exempt overland imports from Canada and Mexico.

The department spokesman said the change — from using actual production six months old to estimates of current production—"was more realistic in that importers would have something to work on."

The estimate will now be based on anticipated increased production which the spokesman said would be about 3 per cent in the next six months. He said the formula would permit imports of about 938,100 barrels daily during the last half of 1963, compared with 867,406 barrels during the first six months.

GOOD FROM EVIL

NEW YORK (AP)—"Does God 'create' or at least 'cause' evil?" No, says a French Catholic theologian, the Rev. Charles Journet.

"Good is produced intentionally; evil comes about unintentionally and is a sort of reverse side or lining of the intended good," he says in "The Meaning of Evil," published by P. J. Kennedy & Sons. Father Journet says the sinner desires good, but in his dis-

Military Chiefs Not Happy About Atom Test Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U. S. military leaders have misgivings about President Kennedy's qualified new ban on testing nuclear weapons in the atmosphere. Some believe America should be developing a 100-megaton bomb such as the Russians claim to have.

Armed forces chiefs were described today as believing national security requires continued testing of a variety of nuclear devices under present world conditions.

A 100-megaton bomb, advocated by some military men, would have more political and psychological than purely military significance. America's present 25-megaton bombs are more than adequate militarily. But it is argued America can ill afford not to have a weapon of such force as the Russians claim to have.

To bring home this argument, the specter is raised of Russia someday putting a 100-megaton bomb in orbit about the earth. America could not do that today, but would be able to with the Titan III space booster now under development. Kennedy has said Russian missiles could not yet carry such a heavy warhead.

Military leaders' views seemed likely to get an early airing in Congress, where the President's newly announced policy received a mixed reaction — from cautious Democratic support to Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater's claim he made a "dreadful mistake."

The President made the new policy known in a two-part announcement Monday in a commencement address at American University here. He said high level talks would start soon in Moscow among America, Britain and Russia on a test ban treaty.

To show U. S. good faith, he said, this country will not conduct tests in the atmosphere "so long as other states do not do so. We will not be the first to resume."

No one has approached Connie Mack's record of 53 seasons as a baseball manager. John McGraw, a manger 34 years, comes closest.

Electricity Production Increased in Nation

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. electricity production spurted last week Edison Electric Institute reported today.

The institute, a trade organization, said output totaled 17,368,000,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 16,105,000,000 the previous week and was 9.4 per cent ahead of the 15,876,000,000 a year ago.

Among geographical areas posting percentage increases were: Rocky Mountain 9.7, Pacific Northwest 4.7.

During World War II Kaiser shipyards produced 1,490 ships, nearly one-third of the entire production of wartime merchant ships.

Greek Premier Quits; Objects To State Visit

By PHILIP DOPOULOS

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—A government crisis gripped Greece today as a result of King Paul's insistence that he and Queen Frederika make a scheduled state visit to Britain next month.

Premier Constantine Caramanlis resigned Tuesday because the king rejected his advice to postpone or call off the trip. Caramanlis feared a repetition of the leftist demonstrations which plagued the queen during a private visit to London in April.

The king now must decide whether to name a new government or to dissolve Parliament and call a national election within 45 days.

A new government could only come from Caramanlis' National Radical Union party, which has a 60-seat majority in Parliament. The party's high command advocated new elections, with the king naming a caretaker Cabinet to supervise the voting.

The situation was packed with paradox.

Caramanlis, a staunch friend of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, found himself out of office because he opposed a royal visit to Britain, a NATO ally.

King Paul, a staunch friend of Caramanlis, insisted he and the queen would make their trip to avoid a blow at the NATO alliance—even if it meant dumping Caramanlis.

Opposition elements in the Greek Parliament — who are friends of neither Caramanlis, the royal house, nor NATO—got a windfall.

For the past year the opposition has been sniping at the royal family as a roundabout way of attacking the government. The royal way of life, their palaces and their personal budgets have been under fire. Caramanlis and his Cabinet stood solidly behind the royal house.

The 57-year-old premier had headed the government since 1955, a record for Greece, and his party won national elections in 1956, 1958 and 1961. The king said he accepted Caramanlis' resignation with "great regret."

But King Paul said that refusing the invitation from Queen Elizabeth II after it had been accepted might be "a blow to the friendship and mutual confidence which exists within the NATO alliance."

The king's communique said Greece must not ignore the regret felt by most Britons over the April incident nor could it spurn the British government's apologies and assurances that such demonstrations would not be allowed to recur.

In April Queen Frederika was jostled by demonstrators who claimed Greece still held political prisoners from the 1947-49 Communist civil war. On one occasion she and her daughter Princess Irene had to take refuge in a private home.

Greece was swept by a wave of feeling against Britain, its recent adversary in the Cyprus dispute. The opposition brought censure motions against the Caramanlis government. The government survived the vote after a week of showdown debate. Caramanlis insisted that there were no political prisoners in Greece, that prisoners from the civil war were guilty of common crimes or acts against the state.

Board of Health Approves State Hospital Plan

DENVER (UPI)—A long range hospital plan which takes into account estimates of needs for another 1,700 hospital beds was approved Monday by the Colorado State Board of Health.

The plan serves as a guide for distribution of federal Hill-Burton funds for the fiscal year beginning July 1. It was approved last week by the State Advisory Hospital Council.

State Health Director Dr. Roy L. Cleere told the board "the greatest need for the immediate future in Colorado is for remodeling and renovation of existing hospitals and facilities to meet the changing needs and emphasis in medical care."

Last year, Colorado received $2 million in federal funds for the current fiscal year which ends this month. Congress has not yet set the 1963-64 fiscal figure for each state.

The state plan, for the first time proposes extensive facilities for treatment of mental retardation. The plan proposed 120 beds for this purpose.

A 60-bed facility was proposed for an unspecified metropolitan area and a 60-bed facility for a less-populated area.

The inventory of existing facilities in the state plan showed that since the Hill-Burton plan began in 1947, 92 projects have been approved.

Mrs. Herbert Esgar, Pikes Peak Road, Cascade, will be hostess at her home Monday, June 17, for the regular meeting of the Women's Fellowship, Church in the Wildwood, for 1:30 dessert. The meeting, which is scheduled for the third Tuesday each month, has been moved up one day in order to secure Miss Lillian Picken, one of our most illustrious missionaries recently retiring from 48 years' service in India. Members and guests are cordially invited to the meeting.

Next Sunday, June 16, will begin the summer schedule at the Church in the Wildwood, different from previous years. Worship services in the sanctuary will be held 9:30 and 10:55 a.m., with a Children's Church in upstairs Fellowship Hall at 9:30 a.m. for all children kindergarten age through junior high with Pat Flynn of Manitou Springs the director. Miss Elaine White of Green Mountain Falls will be organist. Adult Bible Class will be taught by Miss Mary Haymaker in the Rose Room in the basement. The Little White House annex will be for the nursery and pre-school classes.

Mrs. Helen Dugdale, chairman of the Missions, Social Action and Fellowship Board, Church in the Wildwood, reported sending $50 to Migrant Ministry, $10 to help provide a chaplain at Boy Scout Camp, with final plans to complete the CHEF pledge, and will assist the Women's Fellowship in providing thank offering boxes for all of the church homes.

Harold Stumbough, choir director, presented guest soloists Helene Phelps (piano) and David Fray (organ), students at Cheyenne Mountain Junior High School at the June 9 church worship service. Mrs. Mary Baltzer, organist has returned after two months vacation.

Harold Stumbough, serving as chairman of the nominating committee for the Colorado Springs Choral Society, was elected treasurer by a vote of the board members. Among eight new board members elected was Mrs. Mary Baltzer, for a two year term. Stumbough was a board member last year.

Visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stumbough for a week was his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Desmond, of Springfield, Ill.

Tom Dugdale arrived home Saturday from Fort Collins, State University, where he attended his freshman year, majoring in business administration. He will return next fall as a junior student after assisting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dugdale, in the Swiss Miss Shop this summer.

Farley Reasonover, a patient in Penrose Hospital for the last two weeks, has returned to his home for convalescence.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Didlo attended the graduation of their son James Didlo, June 4, at State University, Tempe, Ariz. The graduation program and the diploma issued James were engraved, "With Distinction." Young Didlo's major was clinical psychology. He is presently employed with the U. S. Department of Health out of Phoenix. Mrs. Jon Didlo and infant son Johnny are visiting in Cascade while Jon Didlo is attending the AFB in Amarillo, until July.

Mrs. Francis Walter Jr., and children Cindy and Greg, of Kirksville, Mo., are visiting her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Max Warner, for a two weeks' vacation. Mr. Walter will arrive this week to join his family for a reunion. Richard Kepler Burkburnett, Tex., grandson of the Warners, with his roommate Joe Ewen, from Fort Worth, are occupying the lower lever apartment at the Warners residence this summer and are employed at the North Pole during their vacation. Both young men are students at North Texas State University.

One and a half tons of rainbow trout arrived last week from Hutchens Trout Farm, Henderson, Colo., to restock the Jim Jackson Lake. The Jackson lake is one of the several spots for good fishing in Ute Pass. Anyone is welcome to try his luck by paying a fee for the number of pounds of fish caught.

BIBLE MIRRORS PRESENT

NEW YORK (AP)—Juvenile delinquency was a problem in Biblical times much as it is today, Edith Deen says in a new book, "Family Living in the Bible," published by Harber and Row. She writes:

"Sons who disgraced their parents, fathers who failed to train their children wisely, daughters-in-law who made life bitter for their husbands' families, a headstrong daughter who ran into trouble, a son who boldly married a girl against his parents' wishes—all caused problems between parents and children in Biblical times."

The spacious boulevards, parks, the Opera House and part of the Louvre in Paris were the work of Baron Georges Eugène Haussmann. Many designs of this city planner were attacked by his contemporaries.

VALUE

And the VALUE of many brands is often hard to find in today's supermarket.

Watch Our Heroine, the American Housewife, as she enters.

The modern grocery outlet is a thing of modernistic splendor. Broad aisles invite her, departmentalized shelves beckon. In the surgery-white glare of fluorescents, thousands of items seek her attention. Order seems to prevail.

But the Goddess of the market place knows differently. She's a veteran propeller of a shopping cart and, therefore, a realist.

She is at once suspicious and vulnerable; coldly calculating and yet ready to be enchanted. Above all, she knows that order does not always prevail, and that price and value of some manufacturers' products at times are hard to determine.

OFF WHAT?

Our girl is in the Wonderful World of Off. Two Cents Off, Three Cents Off, Six Cents Off, Send in The Label With One Dollar and Get, Enter This Contest and Win A, The Greatest Prizes of All, Free Bonus Offer, Complete This Jingle . . .

This is why a strange change comes over a woman in a store. The soft glow in the eye is replaced by a steely financial glint; the graceful walk becomes a panther's stride among the bargains.

A woman in a store is a mechanism, a prowling computer. Mentally she is a memory-bank, calculating the variables, thousands of little lights flicking over the great questions of her life—last week that package was 43 cents, now it's only 39; and right beside it is this new brand—slightly larger—for 41 cents.

This is why she pinches and prods and shakes things, listens to cans and boxes. She is mentally X-raying the interior of the package. The American Housewife is her own final Bureau of Standards.

THE WIZARDS OF OFF

At first the whole epic struggle seems no contest. On one side we have this frail creature. On the other side we have her surrounded by some 20,000 square feet of branded canned goods, branded dry groceries, non-foods, dairy products and hosts of other items. In the background are the unseen masses of manufacturers trying to bewitch and bedazzle her into buying.

But when Our Girl starts down the aisle, her defenses are massive. Jungle-trained, her bargain-hunter's senses razor-sharp for the sound of a dropping price, Our Girl is the easy winner almost every time. She is accustomed to the merchandising circus.

The losers are those Wizards of Off—those manufacturers who seek her trade by decorating their packages with overprinted banners and stickers proclaiming six cents off, or one extra for a penny more—by in-pack premiums, or send-in-for premiums, or coupon inside good for ten cents toward your next purchase —or by dozens of other devices. They may get a one-time trial purchase; they don't get her loyalty for any brand.

What happens is that those little numbers on the edge of the shelf often do not reflect the real price or the true value of the product on display. Lost somewhere is that old simple equation: Value = Quality + Price. And the store, be it a giant supermarket or a small neighborhood store, can do little about it.

THE SCOTT PHILOSOPHY OF VALUE

Where does Scott Paper Company come in?

Scott itself has even played a part, though briefly, in the marketing mix-up, the cents off, coupon, contest route — for the temptation to fight fire with fire is irresistible.

But last year we took stock of the results; the cost of the deals and the potential damage they might do to the Scott image we had spent so many years in creating in the eyes of the consumer.

Our business had been built for three generations on the philosophy of value—the finest quality at the lowest possible price. This reputation apparently could not be enhanced by three cents off, free paring-knives, or two packages for a penny more.

So in January of 1962 Scott decided to reaffirm our faith in a basic precept; if we offer our products to the homemaker at a fair price, and of uncompromising quality, she will recognize their honest value and buy them. And retailers everywhere, from the giants to the little ones, applauded.

THE SCOTT PLEDGE

We announced a positive policy. It began with a pledge.

The pledge is that we at Scott will maintain the highest possible quality in our products and offer them at the lowest possible price. We will forego all cents-off label promotions, consumer contests, coupons, and premiums unrelated to the use or dispensing of our products.

There will be one simple and clear-cut exception to the "no-dealing" promise—the introduction of a new product or a significantly improved product. At such times it becomes necessary to induce as many consumers as possible to sample the new product immediately. To accomplish this quickly, temporary sales inducements are often required. And we shall use them. But once a new product is established in the marketplace such sales stimulants will end.

Prizes and premiums do not create loyal customers. Scott Paper Company knows there is no substitute for quality.

THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING

Reception of the new Scott policy has been gratifying. Sales have shown most encouraging results. We hope this proves unmistakably that Scott products don't need free balloons or other stimuli. Without premiums, promotions, or cents-off gimmicks, Scott products are successes in the stores, and our customers approve wholeheartedly.

Inevitably we tend to feel a fine, warm sense of security. This success means that the American Housewife, goddess of the market, buys our products for quality and value, not for premiums.

To some other manufacturers our policy may have seemed idealistic, or unworkable. We want to reassure them that this merchandising attitude actually brings specific, positive benefits far beyond those we originally anticipated.

By her own response, in the form of increased Scott sales, we believe the American Housewife appreciates the fact that Scott gives her first-rate quality and first-rate value—with no cents off the label. She can be confident always that, for the top-quality products of Scott Paper Company, those little numbers on the shelf strip represent real VALUE.

Liquidation of Oil Properties Firm Announced

DALLAS (AP) — Directors of Producing Properties, Inc., approved plans Monday for liquidating the firm though transactions involving a $52 million total.

They recommended to stockholders sale in three major groups of properties acquired by producing properties, once said to be among the fastest growing independent oil companies in the nation.

The first, to Reserve Oil and Gas Co. of San Francisco, would cover properties in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, New Mexico, Louisiana, Wyoming, Montana, Colorado and Illinois. It would be subject to a reservation of a production payment to be sold to Elbee Ventures Inc.

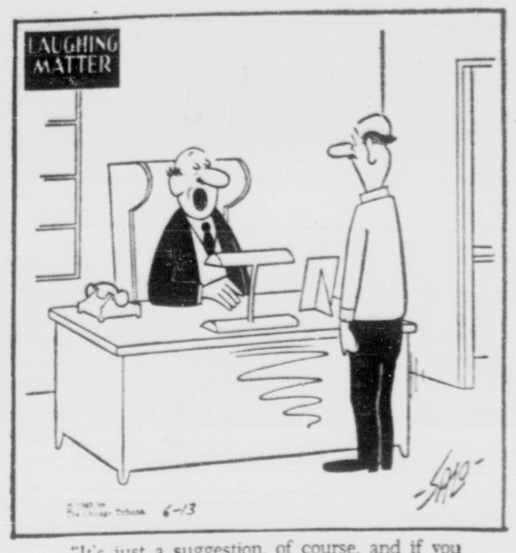

Money received by producing properties from sale of these properties, plus existing production payments, would total $24 million, said R. J. Bradley, board chairman and chief executive officer.

Bradley said names of the purchasers in the other two groups would be made public later. He indicated the other sales, plus outstanding production payments, would aggregate $28 million.

If stockholders approve and the sales are consummated, Bradley estimated the common stock will liquidate at $7.25 to $7.50 a share and the first distribution can be expected in early fall.

There are 2,805,000 common shares outstanding. This would mean a total cash distribution to the common stockholders of approximately $21 million.

On the over-the-counter market the common sold from $6.625 to $7.25 Monday.

JFK's Atom Ban Talks Fail to Stir Dixiecrats

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) —President Kennedy's announcement of a Moscow conference on a nuclear test ban stirred new friction with Republicans and apparently fell short in rallying key Senate support.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois expressed indignation that the President had made his announcement of the meeting and of the cessation of atmospheric tests Monday without any advance consultation with the Republicans.

"We Republicans are expected to play the bipartisan game on foreign policy," Dirksen said in an interview. "Yet when some decision of this sort is made we are not consulted in advance. We are expected to go along without even knowing what the President is proposing."

Dirksen objected to holding the meeting of representatives of the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union in Moscow. He said it ought to be on neutral ground.

The Republican leader also said he wants to know whether reports are true that the United States will be represented at the session, expected to be held in July, "by someone outside of the government."

Administration sources have indicated that John J. McCloy, a Republican who served as Kennedy's disarmament adviser, and Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman, who has been involved in many negotiations with the Russians, are among those considered for the post.

Dirksen demanded to know in the Senate if the meeting will become one of "concession and more concession to Khrushchev to achieve some kind of test ban treaty."

Dirksen's criticism reflected an uneasiness on the part of many senators that the United States might be trapped in some agreement that would not provide foolproof inspections of what the Russians were doing.

Sen. Hubert H. Humhprey of Minnesota, the assistant Democratic leader, said glowingly that the President had "rededicated the nation to peace as a realistic and imperative goal."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a possible rival for Kennedy in the 1964 presidential election, said the President is "dead wrong" in agreeing to the conference and in suspending atmospheric tests in the meantime.

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., a member of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, expressed hope the conference would prove useful, but he made it clear he is not enthusiastic about halting atmospheric tests without any agreement.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, a GOP spokesman on atomic matters, said that if the Moscow meeting brings further offers of compromise with the Russians, it would be "a very great mistake." He said the Soviets hadn't made any concessions.

Sabbaticals Top Union Goal for Steelworkers

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Sabbaticals for industrial workers as well as professors is becoming a top union goal.

The United Steelworkers of America union is expected to reveal next week whether it has won such extended vacations from the major steel companies.

This union got sabbaticals accepted by American Can and Continental Can companies last fall for their 32,000 union members.

The steelworkers have been pushing hard to extend this to the basic steel companies in the negotiations that have been going on for weeks and which are set to reach a climax in the next few days.

The sabbatical leave, as set forth in the can company contracts, calls for 13 weeks of paid vacations every five years for employes with 15 years or more seniority. This is an additional to the usual vacations in other years.

If the steel industry agrees, other unions may be expected to try to reach like contracts in many fields.

The sabbatical idea is put forth as one of several labor programs for combatting unemployment. It's a spread-the-work plan, like shorter work weeks, earlier retirements, longer annual vacations, and various schemes for ironing out the ups and downs of employment in industries with strong cyclical patterns.

Management's chief objection has been the cost. Someone else has to be paid while the older employe—also being paid—is enjoying his 13 weeks off. The extra expense is added to a long list of rising costs that push production charges higher and squeeze profits or boost prices, or both.

Another factor is that the increased number of employes on the payroll because of sabbaticals, or longer annual vacations, or shorter work weeks, means that many more in line for fringe benefits. These range from pensions to health insurance, to unemployment payment charges, to paid vacations.

And fringe benefits have been getting more emphasis than straight wage scale increases in labor negotiations in recent years.

But the unions see the sabbatical as one of their best schemes for combatting the unemployment they lay to increased automation. Job security is a big thing this year.

Some experts figure that the sabbatical leave plan of the can companies will cost about 7½ cents an hour when it goes into effect next January—it was delayed while plant schedules were rearranged.

Steel company executives have insisted that in their companies the costs would run 12 to 15 cents an hour. And they complain that costs already are too high.

Proxmire's Student Aide Quits Job

MADISON, Wis. (AP) —Frank Campenni, 33, who held a $14,596 a-year job as chief aide to Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., while a full-time graduate student at the University of Wisconsin, resigned today.

In a letter to Wisconsin's senior senator, Campenni said that although he felt the arrangement was perfectly proper, the resulting unfavorable publicity convinced him that the situation may be used in an attempt to damage Proxmire politically.

Campenni was hired by the senator last August. After criticism at home became open, even within party ranks, Proxmire took him off the public payroll in April, returned to the Treasury the salary paid Campenni and announced he would continue to pay Campenni's salary out of his own funds until his aide completed work at the university this month and joined him in Washington.

After the resulting publicity, the university ordered Campenni to repay a $500 student loan.

Campenni said that he plans to return to teaching English at the university's Milwaukee campus.

Liberalized School Law Sought in State

ESTES PARK (UPI)—A liberalization of the Colorado school law was considered Tuesday at a workshop of the Colorado Association of School Administrators here.

Dr. Elbie Gann, deputy state education commissioner, submitted the proposed change of school laws to the workshop, and suggested the changes would be "the most important thing for Colorado schools since statehood."

Gann said the proposal includes recommendations to put state credit up to back local district building bonds; allow school districts to issue bonds for construction of housing for teachers, allow districts to provide free textbooks without community vote and eliminate the 1 per cent fee which presently goes to county treasurers for collecting school taxes.

Merv Griffin To Have New Show on TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — After all the sound and fury, Merv Griffin is coming back to NBC in the fall —as host on a new morning game show.

There's a bit of irony in Tuesday's NBC announcement, for Griffin quit an NBC morning game show about a year ago in order to do "The Merv Griffin Show" in the afternoon on the network. Its cancellation three months ago for low ratings caused more anguish and noisy handwringing than any other single event of the television season.

Griffin's new show—which his production company will package—is called "Shopping Spree" and will be one of two new shows which will be added to the network's solid three-hour block of games shows starting at 10 a.m.

NBC lost "The Price Is Right" to ABC, starting in the fall. And it will drop, as expected, "Play your Hunch," which has been starring Robert Q. Lewis since Griffin quit the show.

"Shopping Spree" and another word game, "Missing Links" will replace them. It is probable that Robert Q. will move over to "Missing Links" as host.

Griffin will spend the summer serving as host on CBS' "Talent Scouts," on Tuesday night and playing in summer stock. He opened Monday night in "The Moon Is Blue" at Bucks County Playhouse.

Impending motherhood has raised hob with Carol Burnett's theater and television plans. Carol, now Mrs. Joe Hamilton, expects her first child after the first of the year so her planned Broadway musical, hand-tailored by Betty Comeden and Adolph Greene, has been postponed until spring.

This, in turn, has fouled up CBS plans for a Carol Burnett Television series for the 1964-65 season.

Carol started rehearsals for "Calamity Jane" in Dallas Tuesday, and after playing the show there, returns to New York for two weeks to adapt the show to television. It will be taped July 10 for use as a special next season. She also expects to make another CBS special in England during August.

An American farm worker today grows 124 per cent more food, fiber and other products per man hour than he did in 1947.

CAPITOL STUFF

By RICHARD MCGOWAN

WASHINGTON, — When a travel-weary, 17th century-clad band of 224 Old Believers, members of the Russian Orthodox Faith, arrived in New York two weeks ago climaxing a 300-year pilgrimage for religious freedom few people realized the political implications.

But the stirrings in Congress over letting in this group, fleeing persecution since the days of Peter the Great, is enough to make one wonder about that magnificant inscription on a symbol of freedom to millions of the world's orphans — the Statue of Liberty:

"Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free, the wretched refuse of your teeming shore. Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to come, I lift my lamp beside the golden door."

And yet there was such a flap in Congress over admitting these refugees from poverty and terror that the doors of freedom were almost slamed in their forlorn faces.

It was Attorney General Robert Kennedy, already embroiled in trying to gain equal rights and freedom for this nation's Negro citizens, who championed the cause of these hardy, gaily-garbed peasants who fled to Turkey in he 17th century to seek freedom of worship.

Their clearance to enter the country under special asylum was fought for and obtained by Kennedy. The State Department also took a hand and provided transportation costs under a special allocation to the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration.

Opposition was led by Rep. Michael A. Feighan (D-Ohio), a member of the joint committee on immigration and national policy.

Feighan ranted recently against the admission of the Old Believers, charging that they got permission by "dressed-up gobbledygook" put out by the State Department. He insisted that the refugees still maintained "an allegiance to a foreign power, namely the Soviet Union."

But Kennedy held firm, and 224 men in embroidered Russian Blouses, women in flaming peasant skirts, tired grandmothers in ragged babushkas and squalling babes in arms were finally welcomed to the land of freedom at Idlewild Airport.

The repercussions have only begun. Feighan is still fuming and promises hearings to consider revising the immigration law to previse a "chain reaction" invasion by other Old Believer colonies.

To counter any such move and also to remove long standing deficiencies, the administration, it was learned, is now studying various proposals to revamp our outdated immigration laws. President Kennedy during the campaign referred to immigration as a "top priority" issue. Now that the flap is out in the open, the administration is finally making a move.

But they may be beat to the punch by Rep. John V. Lindsay (R-N Y) who assisted in drafting former President Eisenhower's immigration messages. He is expected to come out with his own bill shortly.

The general lines of present American policy were laid down in the years just after 1918. Prior to World War I, all laws restricting immigration into the U. S. were qualitative in character, excluding only those persons who failed to pass certain minumal health and literacy tests. Thus the quota law of 1921 and more especially the Johnson-Reed Immigration Act of 1924 represented a drastic change in American policy.

The Johnson-Reed Act limited the total number of immigrants who could enter the United States in any one year to 150,000 and also established the national-origins quota system. This system provided that the annual quota for any one nationality should bear the same ratio to 150,000 as the number of inhabitants of the U. S. in 1920 of that nationality bore to the total number of inhabitants in the U. S. in 1920.

The purpose was to freeze the then-existing national structure of the American population. It went further and defined "inhabitant of the U. S. in 1920" so as to exclude "Descendants of slave immigrants," almost the entire Negro population.

Lindsay, writing under his by-line in the current edition of Advance, a Republican periodical, charged that the Johnson-Reed Act, "with its built-in bias against Southern and Eastern Europeans and non-whites from Asia and Africa, remains to this day the basic American immigration statute."

The act, of course, has since been modified. The most significant change occurred in June, 1952, with the passage, over President Truman's veto, of the Immigration and Nationality Act more commonly known as the McCarran-Walter Act.

While it generally retained the features of earlier statues, the act did make slight adjustments in the ban against Asian and Pacific peoples, eliminated discrimination between the sexes, gave quota preferences to skilled aliens and broadened the grounds for excluding subversives and persons affiliated with Communist organizations.

As Lindsay points out, "American immigration policy cannot solve the problems of world overpopulation." But, he adds, something should be done to meet unexpected refugee developments such as the Hungarian revolution.

Lindsay reportedly plans to introduce legislation to move away from the piecemeal approaches of the past. It would define "refugee" as any alien who because of persecution or fear of persecution on account of race, religion or political opinion has fled or shall flee from any Communist territory or from any country of the Middle East.

But more important, it would empower the President in emergencies to parole into the U. S. 10,000 refugees who after an unspecified period of time would become eligible for permanent residence.

As Sen. Kenneth Keating (R-N Y) said recently rapping partisan politics on a reform issue:

"It is rather an issue of the heart, or reasserting our faith in an America which welcomes those of foreign birth as potential citizens and valued contributors to our nation's future."

Commie Nations Conduct Own Opinion Polls

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Taking a leaf from the American book, Communist nations have started conducting their own public opinion polls. Sometimes they don't like what they find out, the U.S. Information Agency reports.

Communist pollsters have sampled public opinion in Poland, Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union, the USIA said in a report on its own research activities submitted to a House Appropriationn subcommittee and made public today.

Poll reports published in Communist newspapers usually are not complete enough to permit accurate judgments about the findings, the agency said, but they do "tell us something about what people are thinking behind the Iron Curtain, where USIA has an important audience."

The agency cited a report on a 1961 poll of Yugoslav students, conducted by the Zagreb Union of Communists, which indicated that "a large percentage of students had serious doubts about the validity of Marxist ideology."

"The poll reports also said that despite long indoctrination efforts, Yugoslav young people still are oriented largely toward private and personal pursuits in life," the USIA said. "The newspaper report of the poll indicated that authorities were not at all pleased with answers the students gave."

The agency also told of these findings of its own studies:

—Opinions of Castro-style communism among rural workers in Latin America "ranged downward from cool neutrality to strong rejection." Such workers favored land reform instituted by their governments, a seven-nation study showed.

—"Among the urban discontented in Latin America, however, Communist ideas find more fertile ground. The main reservoirs of support for land and property expropriation and Castroism were the poor and those middle-income persons who were both dissatisfied with conditions and interested in politics."

—Student surveys in the Near and Far East, Africa and Latin America indicated that "a majority professed to dislike communism as a system, but in each country they always ranked socialism highest."

There are about 36 million women drivers in the United States—nearly one out of every three licensed car operators.

U.S. Is Heading To Dictatorship, Hunter Warns

being based "not on law but on social conditions."

"Every effort is being made both openly and secretly by leading figures in Washington to remove the checks from our check and balance system which is the foundation of our freedoms as a nation," Hunter said.

He accused these forces of attempting to "water down our Constitution by using social conditions instead of legal precedent as a basis for decisions." He said they are attempting to circumvent Congress in this respect and reduce it to "a mere sounding board for the President without its (Congress) historic right of initiating law."

"A whole set of devices are being used to do this including presidential executive order, administrative decrees. . .and the establishment of treaties without using the word treaty but calling them merely agreements," Hunter said.

He said that if these checks, as outlined in the Constitution and which separate the functions of the three branches of government, are eliminated "we will have lost our free society."

He charged that the White House lobby is "the biggest and most ruthless I have ever seen."

Hunter, a militant anti-communist, explained that this movement is completely divorced from any communist influence. He said their aim is to "convert the U.S. into a dictatorship without the public realizing it" and that unless "definite action" is taken by the public to counteract this, "this conspiracy will succeed."

"Many of the actions in Congress which seem inexplicable today," he charged, "are really based on the maneuvering for or against this subtle capture of our governing processes."

He charged that Sen. J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, "is one of the leaders in the fight to make this radical change."

But the former foreign editor for the New York Post said, there are forces now active in Congress trying to counteract these "tremendous blackmailing pressures put on them by the White House."

He pointed out that if any American business or industry attempted to use the same tactics now being used by the administration, "they would be thrown into a federal prison."

Concerning foreign relations, Hunter charged that the U. S. has completely "subordinated its foreign policy to the United Nations" and is allowing the U.N. "to determine American foreign policy."

He warned that if the U.S. continues its "appeasement policies" in regards to Cuba and other Red strongholds, "the result can only lead to World War III."

Hunter paralleled the present "appeasement" policies with those used by France "under pressure from England" when the French failed to move to counteract Hitler's move into the Rhineland.

"As a result, World War II was made inevitable and possible World War III," he said.

"The result of this (the present) appeasement, under the same pressures and influence from England, can only be World War III," he declared. "It is either this or the surrender of the United States to communism and Soviet Russia, glossed over by double-talk. I see steps in this direction already being taken by the present administration."

Other statements made by Hunter, include:

—"I believe there are still important communists in the government. We are solving the communist problem in government by simply forbidding any entry or security investigation into this matter. The only communists revealed are those who reveal themselves, like those two young men in our topmost coding office who went on a honeymoon to Moscow."

—"There are no more reporters in Washington. They are prostitutes who would sell their mother for an invitation to the White House."

—"The United Nations is fine as a means for nations to deal with each other on technological matters such as airplane routes and narcotics distribution. . .but the U.N. has gotten in the field of a super government in the political sphere. This should be eliminated if the U.S. is to continue to be a free nation."

—"You need only one communist agent in a key position in the American government to literally destroy the U.S."

—"The communist base in Cuba must be eliminated thru the use of the tactics of psychological warfare that President Kennedy is using so ruthlessly against members of Congress and political opponents in his own country."

Hunter will speak at 7:30 p.m. today at the Summit. The meeting is open to the public. He will speak Sunday at 2 p.m. in Denver at East High School and will present a series of lectures to students at the Summit twice daily until Wednesday when he will return to his Washington home.

Park Department Changes Watering Hours in Parks

The City Park and Recreation Department is now irrigating at different hours than other users of Colorado Springs water, according to James Taylor, department director.

Even tho the irrigating is being done at different hours, the department is actually watering less than other water users. The department irrigates on Mondays, Wednesday and Fridays, whereas other users water on alternate days.

Reason for the change in watering hours is to help equalize pressure, especially during the hours of 6 to 8 a.m. and 6 to 8 p.m. when residential customers water lawns.

Taylor said the change in watering hours was requested by the Colorado Springs Department of Public Utilities.

Watering is now being done by the Park and Recreation Department at Fairview Cemetery, Bott Park and in the Prospect Lake vicinity from 2 a.m. to 6 a.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

In all the rest of the park areas, Taylor said, irrigating is being done from 8 a.m. until noon on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Non-potable water from the sewage disposal plant is used to irrigate some of the center parkings in the north end of town. This water is flooded onto the center parkings; irrigating of this type can be done at any time since potable water is not involved.

Non-potable water is also sold by the city to Colorado College and the Kissing Camels Golf Club for irrigation purposes.

John Osterman, III, son of the John Ostermans of Monteagle Street, is in San Diego, Calif., where he has entered the U. S. Marine Corps. He had previously attended school in Michigan. His brothers, Pat, Tim and Tom are students of Colorado Springs schools. Capt. Osterman has taken a new assignment at Elmendorf Air Force Base, at Anchorage, Alaska. The family will join him there later.

Mrs. James Anglum, 2916 Drakestone Dr., has given her end-of-the-season piano recital. It was held at the Fine Arts Center. Students performing were Marguerite Shockley, Susan Authurs, Kathleen McCord, Sheila L. Ponsie, Marilyn Files, Michael and Kathleen Farley, Elizabeth Ball, Deborah Szczulkowski, Shelley River, Sheryl Hinds, and Vivian Kennedy. Major Anglum is still confined at Air Academy Hospital, recuperating from a heart attack.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. H. Copsey, 2409 Clarkson Dr., have returned from Boise, Idaho, where he attended the Idaho State Trap Shoot. He won two trophies as runner-up in Class AA Singles, "singles" meaning shooting from 16 yards. He is president of one of the city's year-round sports group, ENT Rod and Gun Club. The club meets every weekend at Peterson Field. Saturday, 8th, was the beginning of the Registered Trap Shootings in which out of town and state shooters compete for awards. While in Boise they visited with Col. Copsey's brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Copsey, and children, Doug, Dick and Dee Anne. The Copsey's son and daughter are, Jimmy and Jackie. He is with the Air Force, working at Peterson Field.

Local residents who traveled to New York to attend an international toy exhibition for distributors were the George Brosius, Jrs., of Monteagle Street. Mr. Brosius is a purchaser of supplies for military installations. On the way home they visited friends and relatives at Midlan, Lubbock and Amarillo, Tex., and at Albuquerque, N. M. Daughter Joan Renee is a recent graduate of St. Mary's High School.

Lt. Col. Donald Morris has returned from Henderson, Tex., where he went to be with his sick father, J. L. Morris. His father is improving. His wife Sally is having a short stay at Air Academy Hospital.

The Humming Blue Birds, group 38, celebrated the season's end with a refreshment party at Michelle's ice cream parlor. Those attending were: Linda Bram, Bridget Cleary, Gretchen Gahm, Dorothy Hanson, Holly Lowery, Myrna Morris, Debra Reeves, Mary Beth Stephenson, Jenifer Ward, Susan Wendt, Leslee Whigham, Pam Whitney, Kathryn Zenthoefer, and their leader, Mrs. George Gahm, and their co-leader, Mrs. David Bram. The Blue Birds are the young eventual Camp Fire Girls. Many of them will attend the summer camp to be held in Austin Bluffs.

The Girl Scout Court of Awards was held June 4, at Longfellow Elementary School. Mrs. John McCanus, leader, and her co-leaders, Mmes. Will Perkins and Robert Payne helped their group in the presenting of a candlelight ceremony and in the song leading. Their group is Troop 406. The award they received was the Second Class badge.

Portable Radio Reported Stolen

A GE portable radio, value unknown, was stolen from the Security Body Shop, Security, the sheriff's office reported Wednesday.

Clark Alexander, an employee of the shop, told Deputy Sheriff Jack Ames that the radio disappeared sometime between Sunday and Monday.

The cost of developing some new aircraft engines is about $150 million, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara has disclosed.

Woman Gives Police Bad Time Wednesday

Three city policemen had their hands full Wednesday night when they tried to bring in a drunken woman. She bit one of them on the ear and kicked out the partition between the front and rear seats of a bubble car that had been sent to pick her up, Chief of Police Cecil McKissick reported today.

The chief said that at about 10:20 last night, Police Sgt. Wayne Anderson spotted Molly Lee Cataldo 24, 505 N. Nevada Ave., in the 100 block of east Colorado Avenue. She was yelling and screaming and trying to pull away from two men who were restraining her.

She finally tore loose and Anderson placed her under arrest for drunkeness. A bubble car was sent to pick her up, since the paddy wagon was not available.

Police officers Robert Hapke and Donald Bowling were sent to the scene in the car and after they had gotten Miss Cataldo into the rear seat, she kicked out the right rear window and the bubble partition.

McKissick said the officers then had to stop the car and take her shoes away from her. It was at this time that she bit Anderson on the left ear.

Finally, Anderson took the wheel and drove to the County Jail with Hapke and bowling holding Miss Cataldo in the rear seat.

She was booked for drunkeness, resisting arrest, injury to city property and for a parole violation, McKissick said.

Man Jailed For Disturbance

A Ft. Carson man, Kenneth M. Ishizaka, 20, went to county jail Wednesday night for investigation of disutrbance, the sheriff's department reported.

According to Deputy Sheriff Jack Ames, Ishizaka approached Orville Duskey of the Security Water Department when he was seated in his truck and demanded a lift to Ft. Carson. Duskey explained he was working and the defendant then became abusive, Ames said, doubled up his fist and shoved it into the truck.

Duskey promptly grabbed a nearby tool and warned the soldier to be on his way. Ishizaka then went across to the fire station where Ames and Duskey saw him. He started being abusive again and cursed everyone. After being warned he continued using foul language and Ames took him to county jail having to handcuff him first as he was so beligerent.

The deputy sheriff said he would sign a complaint against Ishizaka this morning.

Chapel Draws 18,744 During June Week

One of the top visitor attractions at the Air Force Academy during June Week proved to be the Cadet Chapel.

A total of 18,744 people made their way through both levels of the structure during the five days it was open to the public.

Daily count showed that 5,229 visitors toured on Sunday, June 2, for the biggest single day.

Nearly 4 million different types of items are carried in the Defense Department's supply inventory.

Committee To Meet With David Hamil

A committee of five representing El Paso County will meet with David Hamil, state director of institutions, at 10:30 a.m. Friday to file a request for state funds for a pilot project to increase professional services for the mentally retarded.

Under House Bill 121, funds for two pilot projects have been established and the department of institutions will designate this month two communities in the state to carry out the program.

According to Keith McBurney, county commissioner, Boulder, Greeley and Durango have also applied for the project center.

McBurney said the El Paso County request is being made because a survey of private and public agencies providing services for the mentally retarded has shown significant gaps and that state financial assistance would help to achieve an effective mental retardation program.

"We believe that neighboring counties, namely Cheyenne, Teller, Lake, Park, Douglas, Lincoln, Kit Carson and Elbert would also benefit from the state-supported program in Colorado Springs," said McBurney.

In addition to McBurney, the committee members who will meet with Hamil Friday are Vard V. Gray, director of El Paso County Public Welfare; the Rev. Conard Pyle, representing the El Paso County Chapter for Retarded Children; Mrs. Harry Bunker; and Dr. M. F. Schafer, director of City-County Health Dept.

Actor Crawford Appreciates His New Sight

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Having known what it is to live in a world of darkness, Broderick Crawford knows how great is the blessing of sight.

Last December the Academy Award-winning actor was blinded in the right eye.

"I was making a picture in Spain called 'The Castilians,'" he said. "We were doing a sword fight and the director called the end of the scene. What with the language barrier, the Spanish kept on fighting and one of them hit me on the right side of my face, right next to the eye."

The blow caused a hemorrhage that blanked out vision in the eye. Hopeful that it was a temporary condition, Crawford finished the film and came home.

Doctors here told him he had suffered a traumatic cataract; the eye was beginning to glass over with the milky look of cataract victims. He submitted to surgery and for three days lay still, his eyes covered with tight bandages.

"That was the toughest part of all," he recalled. "You don't realize how helpless you are without your sight. I had to be fed like a baby."

When the bandages were finally removed, Crawford experienced the shock of re-entering the world of light. He found he was dazzled by the brilliance.

"The operation removed the film that ordinarily coats your eyes," he explained. "It's a remarkable thing. When I look at things with my left eye alone, they seem of normal color and shading. But when I look at them with my right, the colors stand out brilliantly."

Crawford made a fast recovery. Within six weeks, he was back at work, acting with Ed Begley and Jack Kelly in a drama for the debut of Kraft Mystery Theater on NBC June 19.

The actor has since been fitted with glasses which bring the right eye up to 20-20 while blurring the left one (so the right eye will exercise properly). He is also trying out some new contact lenses.

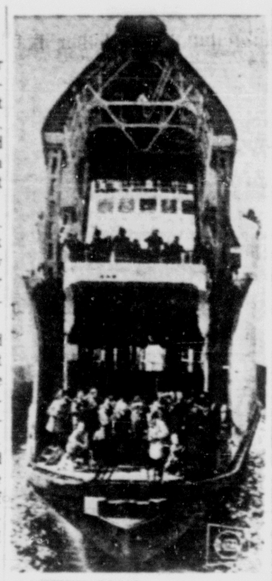

"It was quite a scare," said Crawford, who doesn't scare easily. "After I lost the sight of the right eye, I worried constantly about losing the other one. I guess it was only natural."

Iraq Prepares Armed Action Against Kurds

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP)—The Iraqi government prepared today to launch full-scale military action against Kurdish rebels in oil-rich northern Iraq as the Kurdish leaders defied a 24-hour surrender ultimatum.

"This means war," a Kurdish spokesman said after the government issued its ultimatum Monday and accused the Kurds of showing bad faith during negotiations for the autonomy they had been fighting for.

IN AND OUT

DENVER (UPI)—The Game and Fish Department finished with its use of a building in downtown Denver and moved out to new headquarters recently. So, State Planning Director William M. Williams announced Tuesday the state was using part of the space vacated. Williams said about 50 parking spaces available around the old building were being leased to state employes for $8 a month.

Convicts Help Two Victims Of Hemophilia

NEW YORK (AP)—This is the story of two boys and 76 convicts. The boys are brothers—Mike and Pete Meurer—2 and 4.

The two youngsters developed hemophilia at birth, a disease which prevents the blood from clotting, often causing its victims to bleed to death from a scratch.

Mike bumped his head on his crib last week and was rushed to Miamondes Hospital in Brooklyn where he was given blood transfusions.

Soon after, Pete struck his leg against a chair. He was taken to the same hospital for transfusions.

Thomas McCarthy, serving time in Queens County House of Detention on a weapons charge, read about the boys and how they each require about 100 pints of blood a year just to stay alive.

He asked fellow inmates to donate blood for the boys.

Then he wrote a letter to the boys' parents.

"We are getting together, 76 of us out here, and are donating a pint of blood apiece to help Michael and Peter. We are praying for you. Best regards to Mike and Pete."

Pete was told about the letter today and smiled. Mike died Monday before it came.

Prison authorities said the Red Cross blood bank will collect the blood and deliver it to the hospital for Pete.

McCarthy summed up his reason for starting the prison blood drive simply: "I have a couple of kids of my own."

Hugh J. Ross Enters Race For Congress

en critic of unreasonable governmental controls."

When asked why he wanted to go to Congress, Ross said:

"There are a lot of things I want to raise cane about in Congress. I mean to be constructive but I don't intend to go along with a great many things that have done and are being done."

He promised voters in the district that "you will hear my side on many issues during the campaign."

Ross, a vigorous campaigner, declined to list any of the issues which might be brought up in the campaign and said he did not wish to elaborate on the above statement.

"They'll be brought out later," he said.

He said he has no immediate plans for the campaign, commenting that "it is too early for that part of it."

A resident of 2034 N. Wahsatch Ave., Ross served as county commissioner from 1959 to January of 1963. While a commissioner, the former El Paso County Democratic chairman was elected president of the southeastern Colorado Commissioners Association and served for four years on the state association relief and welfare committee.

He also served as a member of various national association committees.

Long an advocate of what he terms "grass-roots government," Ross recently appeared before the state welfare board to protest handling of the state welfare fund which is in danger of faltering in the next year and running some $4 million over its budget.

He is currently general counsel for the state Clubs for Social Security — one of the largest organizations for senior citizens in Colorado.

Long active in the Democratic party, Ross, in addition to his law degree, holds a bachelor of science degree in economics from the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Finance and Economics.

He is married and the father of two daughters, Lynn Ann and Rita Carol, both at home.

If he receives the Democratic nomination in the 1964 primaries, he will probably face incumbent Republican J. Edgar Chenoweth in the November general elections that year.

Officials Inspect Radio Equipment Atop Mountain

Several city and county officials made an inspection Wednesday of the recently completed emergency radio transmitter station on top of Cheyenne Mountain.

This installation will be tied in with communications equipment in the civil defense emergency operations center in the basement of the new Colorado Springs police building "to form one of the best and surest nets in the United States for emergency operations," according to Charles W. Willoughby, city-county civil defense director.

The building houses radio transmitting equipment for the El Paso County sheriff, county road department, the El Paso County Fire Fighting Association and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Willoughby said the sheriff's radio net is used to activate the civil defense warning sirens.

"For this reason," the civil defense director said," the federal government contributed one half of the installation cost of $22,000, or about $11,000."

The station consists of a 14 by 34 foot concrete block building to house the transmitting equipment, a 10 KW generator which starts automatically in case commercial power goes off and a 200-foot high radio tower.

Making the inspection trip were County Commissioners Keith McBurney, chairman, Fred C. Monk and Charles Smith; Sheriff Earl L. Sullivan, Deputy Clerk Norman C. Foote, City Councilmen William Becker and Harold Hawks, Walter C. Gowans, of Mobile Radio Engineers and representative of Motorola Radio Corp., and Willoughby.

Short Check Brings Man Jail Term

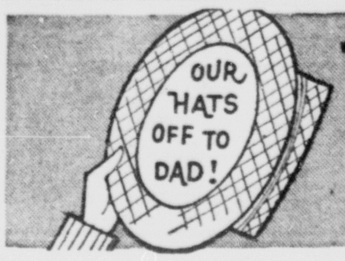

M. D. Crawford, 30, of Del City, Okla., was given 30 days in county jail and ordered to pay costs of $9 by Justice of the Peace James F. Gaines Wednesday for short checks.

Crawford was accused of giving a bad check Monday to Jay T. Holcomb, assistant manager of the Antlers Hotel. He gave the check after he had lost $50 playing dice with Holcomb, police said.

Ancient Prophesies Cast Shadow on Vatican Vote

By JERRY KLEIN

NEW YORK (NEA) — When the papal throne is vacated by death, the attention of the world is centered on the Cardinals of the Catholic Church as they gather solemnly in the Vatican to decide who among them will become Pope.

But across their conclave falls a strange shadow. This puzzling shadow is cast by a man who almost a thousand years ago seemingly foresaw all of the Popes until the end of time, and left a series of brief descriptions suggesting who they would be.

For centuries, each time a new Pope has been named, the College of Cardinals has made the choice. But their selections have had a relation to ancient prophecies that has been truly amazing —predictions by St. Malachy.

"Those who have followed the course of events in an intelligent manner cannot fail to be impressed" by these eerie predictions, says the Catholic Encyclopedia. "There is something more than coincidence in the designations given . . . so many hundreds of years before their time."

For example, the prophetic description of Pope John XXII was the Latin phrase, "De sutore osseo," meaning "from the bony shoemaker." As it happened, this Pope turned out to be the son of a shoemaker — whose family name was Ossa, meaning "bone."

Another of these prophetic phrases was "Ex rosa leonina," meaning "from a leonine rose." The Pope to whom this description applied was Honorious IV, whose family coat of arms was a rose held by two lions.

The prophet, St. Malachy, was a strange man who was elevated to sainthood. He was born in Ireland in 1094 to a noble family named O'Morgair.

A serious-minded youth, he did not care for the idle pastimes of the other boys in the village of Armagh. Perhaps influenced by a devout mother, young Malachy instead displayed an early interest in religion, joining the Church at the age of 17.

Ordained at 25, by the age of 30 he had become Bishop of Connor; and at 38, Archbishop of Armagh.

What St. Malachy foresaw, so many centuries ago, he set down in a list of 112 brief phrases. They have become "the most famous and best-known prophecies about the Popes."

These predictions do not foretell any actual names. They refer—in strict historical order—to birthplaces, coats of arms, titles or some identifying trait or activivity. Still, they puzzle the imagination and defy natural explanation.

"Lilium et rosa" was, for instance, the phrase Malachy used to describe the Pope named in the year 1623. This turned out to be Urban VIII, whose family shield did indeed display—"lilies and roses."

"Anguinus vir," meaning snake man, was the prediction Malachy made about the Pope which would prove to be Gregory X. This Pontiff had a snake on his coat of arms.

"Piccolimini" was the saint's one-word forecast of Pius III. And this Pope was indeed noted for being a "piccolomini," meaning a man short in stature.

St. Malachy left the phrase "Pilgrim Pope" to describe the man who ascended the Throne of The Vatican in 1775. Pius VI fulfilled this prophecy with the unusual act for a Pope. He left Rome to visit Germany.

"A cross from a cross" are the saint's words about Pius IG, who became Pope in 1846. "The afflictions and crosses of Pius IX were more than fell to the lot of his predecessors," notes a religious historian, "and the more aggravating of these crosses were brought on by the House of Savoy whose emblem was a cross."

What of Pope No. 261, Angelo Giuseppii Roncalli—John XXIII? St. Malachy's prophetic phrase about him is especially interesting: "Pastor et nauta," meaning "shepherd and sailor."

Well, John XXIII came to The Vatican from that city of ships and sailors, Venice. There he was known as an especially good friend of the boatmen, knowing many of the mariners by their first names. He made his pastoral debut there, just ten years ago, a watery affair — moving along the Grand Canal by gondola. Later on he was often seen motorboating through the waters on Church business.

As for the rest of St. Malachy's "shepherd and sailor" prophecy, John XXIII proclaimed on the day of his coronation the desire to be, above all else, a "good shepherd." He made it clear that his Papal mission would be "essentially pastoria."

He repeated the words of St. John regarding the good shepherd who "goes before the flock" and and "lays down his life for his sheep."

Surely, declared a friend of the Irish archbishop who left predictions, St. Bernard of Clarivaux, "The gift of prophecy was not denied" to St. Malachy. Presented to Pope Innocent —— and placed in the Vatican Archives, his 12 forecasts listed every Father of the Church from Celestine II to the as-yet-unknown Pontiff who will reign when the end of the world comes.

From St. Malachy's predictions, it would seem that this day is close at hand. In fact, only a handful of Popes apparently remain between now and the Last Judgment. The prophetic phrase left by St. Malachy to describe the next Pope is "Flos florum," meaning "a flower of flowers."

Then, in order, are to come

De medietate lunae — from a half-moon.

De labore solis — from the toil of the sun.

Gloria olivae — the glory of the olive.

Romanus Petrus — Roman Peter.

St. Malchy expanded his prediction on the last of the Holy Fathers. "There will reign Peter the Roman who will feed his flock among many tribulations," he wrote, "after which the seven-hilled city (Rome) will be destroyed, and the dreadful Judge will judge the people."

This prohpecy of doom is lent support by still another strange phenomenon. You may see it for yourself in the famous and beautiful Basilica of St. Paul, outside the walls of Rome.

Visiting this church, thousands of tourists a year are struck by the beauty of the mosaic portraits of the Popes that circle the majestic interior. High up on the walls are 261 of these oval medallions portraying all of the Popes from St. Peter to John XXIII.

The disturbing thing is that only a handful of empty spaces are left for mosaic portraits of the Popes who are yet to come —the same number prophesied by St. Malachy.

So in this basilica, founded in the year 386, just as in the eerie predictions made by St. Malachy centuries later, time seems to be running out for the world.

Links Claimed For Smoking, Heart Disease

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Heart Association says here that a scientific study conducted since 1960 "strongly suggests" there is a relationship between cigarette smoking and heart disease.

The association for the first time adopted a stand to discourage smoking, particularly among teen-agers and adults with a high risk of coronary disease, as harmful to health.

The organization's board of directors adopted the report on smoking and cardiovascular diseases prepared by a committee of physicians and scientists.

The association's latest report reviews scientific evidence collected since 1960, when a previous study called attention to the statistical relationship between smoking and death or illness from coronary heart disease.

"This statistical association does not prove that heavy cigarette smoking causes coronary heart disease," the report said, "but the data strongly suggests that heavy cigarette smoking may contribute to or accelerate the development of coronary heart disease or its complications."

The latest survey said that "no information has become available which contradicts or invalidates the 1960 report . . . the' committee . . . expresses the feeling that interval developments since the 1960 report not only confirm but supplement the 1960 report."

It was recommended that the association join with the agencies "in educational programs for teen-agers relative to cigarette smoking."

Favorable Action Seen on Silt Project

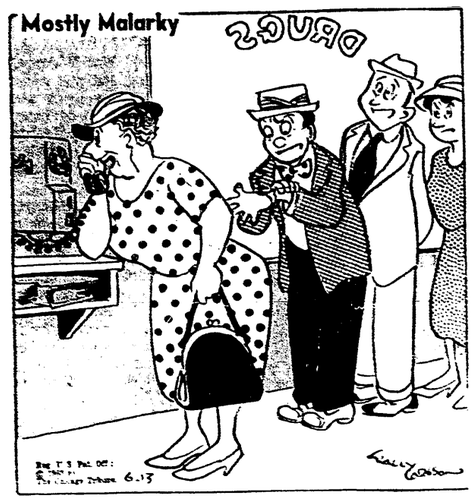

WASHINGTON (UPI)— President Kennedy is expected to take favorable action on a request for funds to start the Silt reclamation project in western Colorado, Reclamation Commissioner Floyd Dominy said Tuesday.

Dominy, speaking before the Senate Public Works Appropriations subcommittee, made it clear he anticipated favorable action by the President.

He told Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., a member of the subcommittee, that a request to include $500,000 for the project in fiscal 1964 appropriations had been submitted to the President.

The $6 million project in Garfield County was authorized five years ago by Congress as a participating unit of the Colorado River Storage Project, but funds to start it have long been delayed.

Rise and Fall Seen In Oil Production

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)— Oil production last week rose in Louisiana and Texas but not enough to offset a decline in Oklahoma, the Oil and Gas Journal reported Tuesday.

The nation's output of crude and lease condensate averaged 7,441,425 barrels daily during the week ended last Saturday, according to the weekly survey. The total is a drop of 25,450 barrels a day from the previous week.

Oklahoma production fell 32,375 barrels daily to 510,325. It was the third consecutive week of decline.

Oklahoma production fell 32,375 barrelsd ailyt o 510,325. It was the third consecutive week of decline in Oklahoma production.

Louisiana increased 14,275 barrels daily to 1,432,700 and Texas was up 10,650 to 2,613,000.

Besides Oklahoma, decreases occurred in Wyoming, down 3,800 to 380,900; Illinois, down 3,275 to 201,925, Kansas, down 2,525 to 308,975, and New Mexico, down 1,900 to 302,400.

Completions of new wells also declined last week in the nation with 807 wells completed, a drop of 68 from the previous week.

Texas completed 241 wells, a drop of 43, and Louisiana declined 27 to 110. Oklahoma completed 91, an increase of 34.

Cardinal From Poland Arrives in Vatican

ROME (AP) — Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, the Roman Catholic primate of Poland, arrived today for the conclave that will elect a new Pope.

Hundreds cheered the 61-year-old cardinal as his train pulled in. But he reminded them of the death of Pope John XXIII.

"Do not applaud. Remember that this is a time of grief for us," he said.

New Structure Urged For Health Service

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Surgeon General Luther L. Terry told Congress Tuesday that the Public Health Service (PHS) needs a new organizational structure to keep up with rapidly changing health problems.

Terry said the PHS is still operating under the plan set up in 1943, which he indicated was inadequate to present-day requirements. He added further:

"If the next 20 years witness as many changes in the scope and emphasis of service functions and responsibilities as the past 20 years, this proposed reorganization may require future revisions to keep pace with our changing responsibilities."

Terry testified before a House commerce subcommittee considering legislation that would give the surgeon general, with the approval of the secretary of health, education and welfare, administrative authority to reorganize the service. At present Congress must approve every change.

Western Force Will Exercise in Thailand

By TONY ESCODA

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A 25,000-man force from eight nations will dramatize Western military readiness this week in a region where the Communist shadow has been lengthening.

The force, the largest ever assembled by the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, will be deployed along an imaginary battle line stretching through Thailand's northeast provinces — across the border from Red-threatened Laos.

Should the Communists succeed in their campaign to take over Laos, military experts consider northeast Thailand may become the next battleground in the heartland of Southeast Asia.

Communist subversion already has become a problem in that isolated and backward region.

Purpose of the massive SEATO effort is to test the ability of a joint army to fight under conditions most likely to exist in case of a Communist attack from across the Mekong River frontier.

Rock lobster thermidor is delicious. Parboil six frozen rock lobster tails in boiling salted water for 3 minutes. Drain and remove meat, reserving shells. Add 1 cup of sour cream and ¼ teaspoon of salt to 1 well-beaten egg in a saucepan. Make a smooth paste of 1 tablespoon each of herb vinegar and flour. Add paste to sauce and stir over low heat to thicken. Do not boil. Add lobster and heat well. Fill shells with sauced lobster, sprinkle generously with grated cheddar cheese and broil until cheese bubbles. Serves 6.

with a modern self-winding Ω OMEGA Seamaster CALENDAR WATCH

HERE is one of the most modern of timepieces! 2 watches in 1... a wristwatch of utmost precision... and, a perpetual calendar. The self-winding Seamaster calendar model tells the exact time and the exact date... automatically ...without old-fashioned hand winding. Your everyday wrist motion is the only source of power needed to keep it running... always "on time" and "on date". You change the date manually only 5 times a year (in months with less than 31 days). Otherwise, just set your Omega and forget it. The handsome Seamaster DeVille case is water and shock resistant... and, surprisingly thin. We recommend the Seamaster to the man who puts perfection above price.

Winds itself while you wear it—needs no external power

Copter Pilot Gets Them in Bad Weather

By STEVE LOWELL

SEATTLE (AP) — Dave Gershowitz gingerly let his helicopter down toward the three Navy airmen bobbing in the chill water of the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

He had to be careful. The flying weather wasn't the best for 'copters, the tanks were heavy with fuel, and he was carrying an extra crewman.

The weight would make it difficult to hover over the airmen during their rescue and the engine would be strained to stay aloft once they were aboard.

Gershowitz eased into position about 25 feet from target, and his men, Robert H. Wheeler and J. W. Gillihan, reeled out a cable with a looped end. Two of the men in the water fitted the loop under the arms of the third, and Wheeler and Gillihan started reeling him in.

To counter the added weight, Gershowitz poured on the power. The chore took almost all the engine could put out. Gershowitz realized that he couldn't rescue all at once, so he altered his plan.

He flew the airman to a beach about two miles away, left him and Wheeler, and returned for the other two. Gillihan hoisted them aboard, and Gershowitz headed for Ediz Hook Coast Guard Station at Port Angeles, a few miles away. He left them and flew back to the beach for Wheeler and the third ditched airman. In moments he was back at Port Angeles, and the trio was safely in a hospital.

From the time the distress call was heard, it took Gershowitz just 28 minutes to complete the rescue.

Gershowitz, one of the rescuing-est pilots in an outfit noted for rescue work, was filling out flight forms at Ediz Hook when he overheard the air traffic controller report the distress call. There was no other information. No location. Nothing. A few minutes before that, when he landed, a Navy chopper had taken off. Gershowitz recalled that. So he asked what radio frequency was used to give takeoff directions to the pilot and on what frequency the call for help was heard. They were the same.

When he learned the copter's destination was Oak Harbor Naval Station, across the wide waters where the strait joins Puget Sound, he was convinced the Ediz Hook and Oak Harbor.

He sprinted for his eggbeater, grabbing Wheeler and Gillihan on the way. He had hardly left the ground before he was on the radio asking the length of time between the Navy craft's takeoff and the instant the distress call was heard. It was seven minutes.

Gershowitz picked a speed he figured the Navy ship was traveling, and 6½ minutes later he spotted an oil slick and three bright orange crash helmets. There were the unlucky helicopter crewmen, A. K. Babbitt of Detroit Lakes, Minn., the pilot; Glen W. Huntley, McMinnville, Ore., and Robert Everly, of Bushnell, Ill.

Gershowitz, a husky 44 - year - old commander in the Coast Guard, was awarded the Air Medal for that rescue and several others he made during his tour of duty at Port Angeles.

This blue - eyed curly - haired man with the ready grin feels he's done something worthwhile for mankind.

Dave Gershowitz has been interested in flying since he was a small boy on Long Island, N.Y.

When World War II came, he flight training and was assigned to patrol bombers flying out of Floyd Bennett Field on Long Island on the search for Nazi subs. During that time he saw his first helicopter and asked for training in them.

All of Gershowitz' air-sea treks haven't been of the mercy type. One was his voyage to the Antarctic as a member of the late Adm. Richard Byrd's Operation Highjump in 1956-57. His principal duty aboard the icebreaker Northwind was flying ahead of the fleet, carrying an observer who looked for weak places in the ice pack through which the ships could move.

He also is a veteran of chopper flying in the Arctic. In 1955 he went with the Northwind to help deliver ship cargoes for construction of the DEW (distant early warning) radar line.

In the four years Gershowitz spent in the Pacific Northwest on his first tour of duty he made 71 assistance flights ranging from searches for overdue boats, delivering doctors to ships at sea and removing injured hikers from mountain ledges to rescuing the three Navy airmen. He's taken part in at least 10 mountain rescues in the area, and, as a result, he was made a member of the Mountain Rescue Council.

Probe of Sugar Dealings Conducted

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an effort to find out who is holding abnormally large supplies of sugar in the United States, the federal government has asked sugar companies to name all persons who received a carload or more of sugar between April 1 and May 31.

The reports were requested by the Department of Agriculture from cane sugar refiners, beet sugar processors and importers of refined cane sugar. They are due June 30.

Officials said congressional committees are looking into the sugar situation and asked for the information. So far, the officials said, no action is contemplated to ask holders to reduce stocks regardless of their size.

NEW DOUBLE DESK — Marge Berry, left, and Hazel Shoemaker, employes of the City Street Department, work at a new desk built by Walt C. Trevethan, city carpenter. The 600-pound desk is 13½ feet long, 38 inches wide, and is topped with solid birch stained a walnut color. A smaller desk was completed by Trevethan several months ago for Don Lawrie, city street superintendent. The City Council table, destined for City Manager John M. Biery's conference room, was also built by Trevethan. The remodeled council chambers will have a semi-circular seating arrangement for Council members. Trevethan built all of the tables in between regular jobs.

Solons Expect Slow Going On Civil Rights

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's call for civil rights legislation swiftly received the backing of congressional leaders of both parties but they expect its progress to be slow and turbulent.

"I will devote my very best efforts" to seeking an effective program, said Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois after Kennedy's address to the nation Tuesday night.

Dirksen said he recognized "that Congress has a responsibility in this field and there should be some action in this session."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, assistant Senate Democratic leader, made it clear he does not expect any final action until late summer on any of the civil rights proposals the President promised to send to Congress next week.

Humphrey had told a news conference Tuesday that administration leaders will press for action on other segments of his program —some form of aid to education, the long-delayed tax reduction bill, a youth employment measure and other legislation.

The civil rights program, Kennedy said in his address to the nation Tuesday night, will include measures to bar discrimination in stores, hotels, restaurants and theaters; allow the federal government to take a more active role in public school desegregation suits, and afford greater protection for Negroes' right to vote.

Forecasting a Southern filibuster in the Senate against civil rights measures, Humphrey said the administration will have to get along as best it can without additional legal authority in its attempts to ward off racial violence.

"This is going to be a warm summer," he commented.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., said "The threat I just heard tonight that the Negroes will be in the streets if there is a filibuster —which there will be—will mean a lot of bloodshed. I'm sorry this is in store—more violence, bloodshed without question."

NO NEWS CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy will not hold a news conference this week.

Historical Flags To Be Posted During Ceremony

Flags which have figured in American history from the days of the Revolution will be posted during the annual Flag Day ceremony sponsored by the Colorado Springs Elks Lodge No 309 Friday at 6:30 p.m. in Acacia Park.

Col. Ralph H. Bowen, acting logistics officer of the Army Air Defense Command, will be the speaker.

James L. Sutherland, exalted ruler of the Elks lodge, said the program is open to the public and he urged all persons who are interested in promoting patriotism to attend.

The program will begin with a half-hour band concert of martial music, which will be played by the 179th Army Field Band of Fort Carson, directed by CWO Andrew Stumpf.

The history of "Old Glory" will be narrated by Cecil Y. Wright, a past exalted ruler of the Elks lodge, assisted by the Elks' orchestra and Explorer Post No 309 of the Boy Scouts of America. The troop uniquely carries the same numerical designation as its sponsor group, the Colorado Springs Elks.

James Oaks, Eagle Scout, will give the response, and Scouts Bob Coleman, Richard Kiefer, Jess Smith, Dick Sauer, Mike Walth and Garry Mullenix, in turn, will display and post the various flags to depict the history leading up to the present 50-star National Emblem. The first will be the "Don't Tread on Me" banner.

The troop's adult adviser is Eldon Coleman.

Other highlights will include singing of "America the Beautiful" by tenor George Garriques, who also will lead the spectators in singing "America," and a prayer by Roger W. Martwick, the Elks' chaplain.

Exalted Ruler Sutherland said that in the event of bad weather the ceremony will be conducted at the Elks Home, 3400 North Nevada Ave. and that he public would be welcome there.

Lodges of the Benevolent and protective Order of the Elks (BPOE) throughout the nation sponsor ceremonies, which are mandatory for members, each Flag Day. The Elks' Flag Day committee for this year includes co-chairmen Noel A. Cummings, the immediate past exalted ruler, and Milford R. Link, and members John Godec Jr., Jim Bolger, and Eldon Coleman.

Sabin Vaccine To Be Distributed At Ft. Carson

The final immunization with Sabin oral polio vaccine, Type III, is scheduled from 9 to 11 a.m., Saturday, and June 29, at the Ft. Carson U. S. Army Hospital Room 124, the Well Baby Clinic.

All military dependants who have taken Types I and II of the oral vaccine are urged to complte the series.

Those who have not had the Sabin vaccine can begin their immunization series either date.

Salk vaccine shots are no longer being given by the Army and are not acceptable for overseas travel.

Children who have received measles immunization recently should wait at least three weeks from the date they were vaccinated for measles before they take the Sabin vaccine.

Carson clinics are arranged to allow this time interval.

Right Attitude Week Scheduled By SWAP Club

The SWAP Salesmen With A Purpose Club will sponsor Right Attitude Week June 16-22.

Right Attitude lapel buttons and membership cards may be obtained from club members, the Chamber of Commerce and business houses.

Banks of the Pikes Peak Region are offering their facilities to residents to choose their candidate for Right Attitude. Ballots and ballot boxes will be located in bank lobbies for those who wish to participate.

All residents are urged by the SWAP Club to vote for their favorite example of right attitude and the top 25 vote-getters will receive recognition and publicity.

Merchants are emphasizint the importance of a right attitude all year around and the Chamber of Commerce places particular emphasis on local citizens exemplifying a right attitude for the benefit of summer visitors.

"Let's make Colorado Springs the best city in the U. S. A.," said Mayor Harry Hoth, in casting the first ballot.

SWAP Club officials believe this can be accomplished and offer services toward that end.

Greer Manning Signs Up for Peak Hill Climb

After 13 years of planning, Greer Manning of Colorado Springs — reportedly one of the area's hottest midget car drivers — has entered the 14th annual Pikes Peak Auto Hill Climb this July 4th for the first time.

Manning and other top entries including the Unsers, Bobby and Louie, will out to beat the clock up 14,110 Pikes Peak. Managing director of the Hill Climb, J. C. Agajanian, has posted a purse of $12,550 plus $7,710 in accessory money in the "race to the clouds."

The Colorado Springs resident Shaver, are co-owners of the hot Special in the world's richest race per mile. Gene Podoll, also of this city, has entered the 327 cubic inch Chevrolet powered mount in the championship class.

Manning and his partner, Buck Shaver, are co-owners of thehot midget that Greer drives as well as the Shaver-Manning, Phillips Service Station at 1702 S. Nevada. The latest entry in the Hill Climb has been a steady winner in his Chevy II midget and has been regularly cleaning house over the Offenhausers at Denver's Lakeside Park. Greer is equally at home in a sprint or stock car.

The father of three children will have an opportunity to fullfill an ambition he has had since moving to Colorado in 1951 — competing in the Pikes Peak Auto Hill Climb.

In addition to cash prizes, world's championship hill climb points will be sanctioned thru the United States Auto Club and the Federation Internationale de L' Automobile (FIA). There are only six sanctioned hill climbs in the world. The other five are in France, Germany, Switzerland, Italy and Austria.

Ford Grant Given Colorado Colleges

A $1,000 grant from the Ford Motor Company Fund to the Associated Colleges of Colorado has been announced by Benson Ford, president of the Fund.

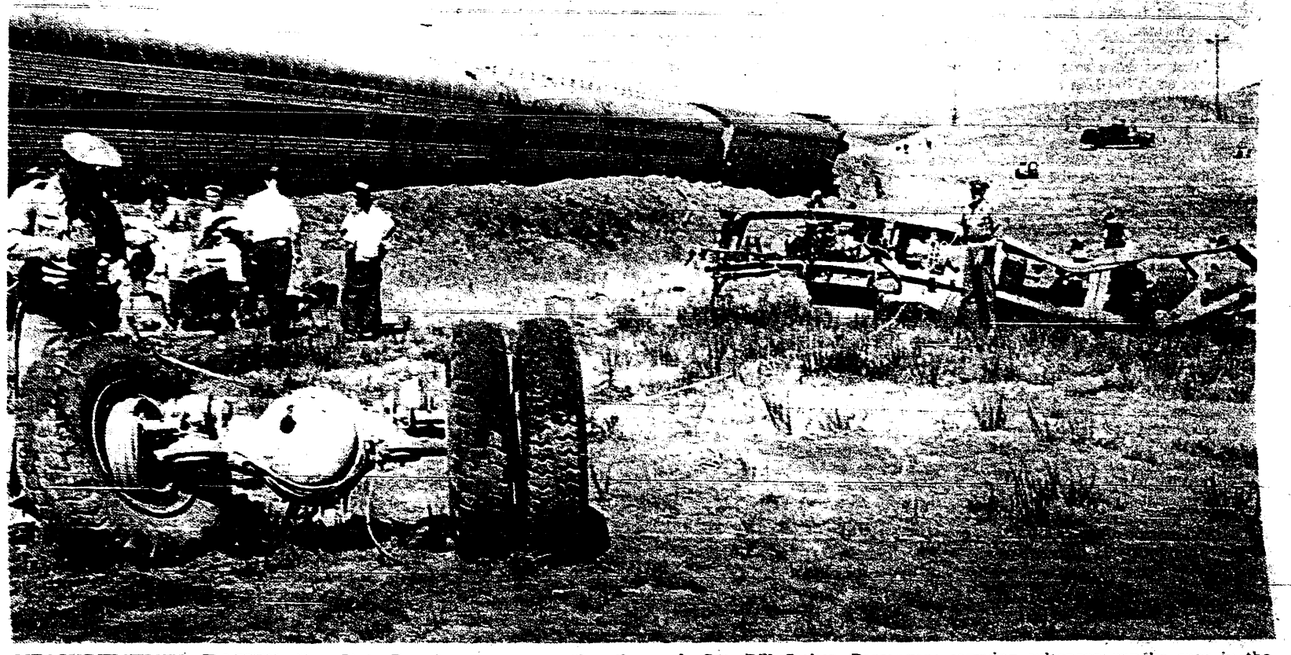

The Colorado group is composed of Colorado College, Colorado Springs; Colorado Woman's College, Denver; Loretto Heights College, Loretto; and Regis College, Denver. It is one of 40 educational associations, representing 494 member institutions, to which Ford Fund grants totaling $586,600 are being made at this time.

Formed in 1948 to seek financial aid to higher education, the state association movement now represents a majority of the privately supported liberal arts colleges in the United States.

The Ford Motor Company Fund is a non-profit corporation operated for educational, charitable and scientific purposes and is supported by contributions from Ford Motor Company. The Fund is in no way related to the Ford Foundation.

Wide Appeal Made for Cyclone Relief

The International League of Red Cross Societies is making a world-wide appeal for aid to victims of the severe cyclone and tidal waves that occurred recently in East Pakistan.

No special fund drive is being conducted by the Pikes Peak Chapter, American Red Cross, an agency of the United Fund. However, gifts from residents wishing to assist the disaster victims of Pakistan will be forwarded to that country.

The American Red Cross cabled $15,000 to the Pakistan Society on June 3, and is now working to arrange for immediate shipment of approximately $25,000 worth of drugs and medical supplies already on hand. The League has notified its member societies thruout the world that the greatest need is for cash, for the local purchase of essential articles and for drugs and disinfectants to check the spread of diseases from contaminated water.

Cash gifts received by the American Red Cross will be forwarded directly to the Pakistan Red Cross Society which is directing the assistance program to victims. Checks should be made payable to the American National Red Cross and sent to Midwestern Area office, 4050 Lindell Blvd., St. Louis 8, Mo. Checks should be designated for Pakistan Disaster Relief.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Here is a trick for making fruit and berry pies:

Fix all your fruit for one or more pies as usual . . . using fresh berries (black berries, etc.), adding sugar and your favorite seasoning.

Line a pie tin with waxed paper. Fill the pan with the pie filling and freeze.

Later . . . "remove" the frozen berries from the pie pan and store in the freezer, after wrapping, and use this pie pan again and again.

Now . . . when you want a pie, make your crust as usual and line the pan with the dough, remove paper from the frozen pie filling and just slip the frozen pie filling in. Cover the top with crust and bake!

No thawing out and adding sugar, etc., later. I even did apples like this last year, and found it worked fine. —Mrs. Ellen Norris

Mrs. Norris I think you're the greatest. Sure millions of women will love you! Especially now that the fruit and berry season is here. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Those summer white shoes get dirty so fast, especially when you are on your way to an appointment and want to look your best.

I always carry a piece of white chalk in my change purse and use it for a quick touch-up . . . it does wonders, especially on cloth or suede shoes. —Mrs. Leonard E. Whitlon

Dear Heloise:

Before leaving on a vacation, I water my house plants thoroughly and place the smaller pots in a plastic bag and fasten the top tight.

For large planters, I lay a plastic cleaner's bag around the plant and pull it up over the top and fasten tightly. When we get home, weeks later, my plants are always still very moist and I don't have to get anyone to come in and water them for me.

When I clean my oven with ammonia . . . thanks to you . . . I put my broiler pan and baking pans in the oven, too. That's the way I like to do things . . . all in one fell swoop. —Diane Nestler

I suggest these plants be left in the bathtub or sink. Just in case . . . We don't want "rings" on our tables, etc. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

When your curtains blow against the screen (which rots curtains) I have found that if you will place a thumb tack on each side of the window frame and take a piece of thread . . . stringing it from one side of the frame to the other and winding it from tack to tack . . . it solves all your problems. This little piece of thread will keep the curtain from rubbing against the screen!

This not only saves the curtain but prevents it from getting soiled! Screens are dirty and full of dust. —T. S.

Dear Heloise:

If your summer wicker handbag has an elastic cord which is used as a fastener for the top and this gets broken or wears out, one can buy rayon elastic cord for about fifteen cents at any dime store. I bought the heaviest type they had.

This can be used to replace the worn-out cord on your straw bag. It's the one way I have ever found to repair my fastener and save buying a new handbag. —Mrs. Helen Manning

Dear Heloise:

For those who would like to dress up their old swimming caps . . . here's an easy and inexpensive way to do it.

Buy nylon lace, any width and color that you would like, and gather it on your sewing machine or by hand.

Buy some waterproof glue and glue the gathered lace on your swimming cap in rows starting at the outer edge and working toward the center and top of the cap. It's individual!

To give it an even more feminine look, add a perky bow or flower on the top of the cap and you have a new cap for summer swimming. —Glenda Stock

Opening lead: King of ♠ South brought in an aggressively bid game contract today by maneuvering his opponent into a corner from which there was no escape.

When South opened the bidding with one diamond, West was confronted with an immediate problem. His hand was worth 16 points and merited aggressive action. A mere overcall to two clubs, however, might result in the loss of a profitable contract in spades if partner happened to have support for that suit so, despite the singleton heart, West chose to make a take-out double. North redoubled and, when this was passed back to West, he rescued himself to one spade, holding the club suit in reserve.

North now showed his heart suit and South rebid two no-trump. At this point it might have been a good idea for North to merely repeat his hearts in order to warn partner that his redouble was based essentially on distributional values. North chose, however, to carry on to three no-trump.

West opened the king of spades, ignoring his longer suit in favor of the more solid holding. Declarer won the trick with the ace and promptly led the ten of hearts. West was in with the lone ace and continued to establish his suit by playing the queen and then the ten of spades.

South attempted to run the hearts. When West discarded a club, however, it was revealed that East held a stopper in hearts. If South continued with the establishment of that suit it would provide the opponents with their setting trick. So after cashing the queen of hearts on which both the declarer and West threw clubs, South took a diamond finesse. When the jack held the trick, declarer cashed the ace and king stripping West of his remaining red cards.

A low club was led toward the dummy. West saw that, if he played low, dummy's king of clubs would win the trick and that a spade return would throw him into the lead forcing him to concede the game fulfilling trick to declarer's still guarded queen of clubs. West went up with the ace of clubs intending to throw the lead back to the North hand after he cashed his high spade. Declarer countered this move, however, by throwing North's king of clubs under the ace. West was effectively endplayed and South took the last two tricks with the queen and ten of clubs.

A Ray of Hope In Agriculture

Congratulations are clearly in order for the farmers of America. Their recent action respecting the wheat referendum was a pleasant surprise. . .a ray of light and hope in a sky that has been clouded with subsidy, controls and regimentation for more than thirty years.

But surprise and pleasure mounted to new heights when the governor of Oklahoma, Henry Bellmon, refused to declare the dry-as-dust Oklahoma Panhandle as a disaster area.

Bellmon, a Republican and also a farmer, knows the score. He said that losing one crop is not a disaster and farmers have always known that you have to store up surpluses in the good years so that you have something to fall back on in the lean or dry years. And the governor added that he wasn't about to disabuse the farmers of the rightness of this view by trying to cause them to become dependent on the big daddy in Washington.

Bellmon, who joined with others in opposing the federal wheat program in his state, said that any farmer worthy of a harvest knows that one of the normal costs of doing business is preparation for drought, especially in a drought-prone place like the Oklahoma Panhandle.

The governor says he stores wheat himself in the good years and then has it on hand when the pinch comes. He has a farm in Noble County, which is in north-central Oklahoma, to the east of Enid. While not in the Panhandle, it has been in the path of what the federal government wants to call a "disaster area." Last winter the wheat froze and the crop was lost. And this year the lack of moisture has retarded the new wheat and cut down on feed crops and grass.

But Bellmon said that if the counties were declared a disaster area, then the door would be open for farmers to use soil bank land for grazing. And they could follow this up by planting on idle acres, at the same time becoming eligible for the purchase of stored hay at government-supported prices. As he sees it, this is exactly what the farmers ought not to do. They should become self-reliant and depend on themselves rather than on big daddy in Washington.

So, while we're tendering our applause to the farmers generally, for having knocked the Kennedy formula for further controls on their production right in the teeth, we want to congratulate Governor Bellmon of Oklahoma for having gotten the message, too.

Actually, we are not anticipating a complete abandonment of the government agriculture program. That is too much to hope for in this land that has too few men who think the way Henry Bellmon thinks. But at least these two events, the wheat vote and the Bellmon rejection of the disaster designation, offer some comfort to those who yearn for national fiscal sanity.

There is no more reason for a given part of the nation to be declared a disaster area because of the vagaries of the weather, than there is reason to declare a particular business or firm a disaster area because of the vagaries of customer decisions in the market place.

The nature of this world is one of risk. As a matter of fact, the brains we have were designed in such a way that we could anticipate those risks and act so as to minimize them. If we are to be pampered by a fond and paternal federal state so that harm may not come to us no matter what, it won't be long before we will have lost our ability to think. We would even have lost our ability to want to think or to make effort against the exigencies of nature.

It's time the thinking of Bellmon and the negative voters in the wheat referendum became more general.

On the Wrong Side

Government rules tend to protect the private thief with "due process" and to endorse public theft by sanctioning taxation.

A Constitutional Convention

While the proponents of repeal of the 16th amendment have been successful in obtaining support from several state legislatures respecting their proposed "Liberty Amendment," another group, which came into existence a number of years ago, has moved ahead to a position where it now commands the field relating to the income tax.

The Western Tax Council, based in Chicago, has toiled tirelessly for a very long time to obtain the approval of the various state legislatures for a new amendment, to replace the 16th Amendment, which would provide for some limitation on the amount of money to be collected via the income tax route.

As everyone knows who has read it, the 16th Amendment, in full harmony with Article I, Section 8 of the Constitution itself, permits 100 per cent taxation from incomes. There is no limitation in the amendment nor in the Constitution.

Those in the Western Tax Council have labored to obtain the necessary approval from two thirds of the state legislatures, for the convening of a Constitutional Convention for the purpose of drafting just such an amendment. This year, the Colorado legislature in Denver became the 34th state to ratify. This means that Western Tax Council, Inc., has now secured the necessary two thirds approval from the various states to call for and secure the Constitutional Convention they require.

A recent letter from George Taft of the Council, brings this matter into focus. We quote from the letter:

". . . this long sought for victory can bring about tremendous changes in the taxation picture. However, there is one important step still outstanding that must be brought about to implement and complete this victory. That is to have the Constitutional Convention is called and the Amendment is launched. Article Five of the Constitution clearly and explicitly defines this action and procedure. It is most important that this is explained to the general public and understood by them so that they will not be misled by the opponents of the Convention, who are spenders and do-gooders to stall the calling of a Constitutional Convention to consider the proposed new Amendment. They will employ every known delaying action in the book. They will argue a Convention is ill-timed and unnecessary.

"Many salient factors insure our success. First and foremost is the Constitution itself, which spells out this method. The majority of newspapers, many organizations, economists, outstanding American businessmen, corporations and others have voiced their approbation of our movement. We stand upon a strong rampart to insure the Convention and the proposed Amendment. We are going to need help to consummate our objectives despite the fact that it is legal, constitutional and sorely needed to avoid bankruptcy or a more severe form of socialism.

"Last but not least of our allies are the states, themselves, and the growing revolt over the attrition and perceptible decline of states' rights. The states are posing the question—are we to become federal agencies and lose our entities? The states are greatly agitated at the recent rulings of the Supreme Court.

"Actually, the cauldron of states' rights is bubbling to a tremendous degree. Foremost in their minds is the question of federal taxation. If the present tax system continues, states' rights are doomed and we will be one big family under the benign (?) Washington umbrella.

"It has been our belief and conviction that once the state legislatures had a proposed amendment before them to place a limit on federal taxation, they would ratify the Amendment with the same rapidity that they passed the president's tenure of two terms. The tremendous uneasiness apparent in the states today over governmental intrusion into states' rights justifies this opinion. Again, the states feel that the 16th Amendment permits the government to grab most of the tax dollar. Consequently our movement to get the Amendment launched becomes urgent and vital for the successful ratification of this new Amendment to the Constitution.

These Days

The Escalator Is for Macy's

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Said Turvy to Topsy: "I think I begin to understand those politicians like Laborite Harold Wilson and Liberal Jo Grimond of Britain who want no part of a 'nuclear deterrent.' It's because they are actually in favor of having more power."

"That's like saying that if you are weaker, you are stronger," said Topsy. "It can't be true. Britannia never ruled the waves by refusing to have any part of battleships."

"But I assure you it is true," said Turvy. "I began to see the light the other night when I listened to Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina speak on the evolution of American power since 1947. We've been getting stronger all the time. Once we only had the A-bomb. Later on we got the H-bomb. We can now deliver these in manned airplanes, from Polaris submarines, and by automatic missiles. But the stronger we got, the weaker we got. And it wasn't because the Russians were catching up; actually, we're still way ahead of them in many ways. It's just that the more nuclear power you have, the more paralyzed you become."

"I still don't get it," said Topsy. "You could still knock Morro Castle over by letting an old-fashioned gunboat sidle up to it. Why should we let our having atomic power paralyze us?

UP THE SCALE

"Haven't you heard of escalation?" asked Turvy. "If we were to send a gunboat to deal with Castro, the war might escalate up the scale. A shell from the gunboat might hit a Russian in Havana. That would make Khrushchev mad. He'd order Castro to send some of his Soviet lease-loaned planes into action. The conventional bombs would do for the moment. But the old-fashioned war would make both Moscow and Washington edgy. Pretty soon they'd be pushing buttons that would send atomic missiles hurtling at each other while Kennedy and Khrushchev simultaneously yelled 'liar' over the hot telephone wire."

"So, because of this escalation," asked Topsy, "we can't even hit Fidel with a powder puff? and for this we spend $50 billion a year on our military establishment?"

"Well, we're going to cure that," said Turvy. "If Senator Thurmond is right, we're about to escalate things in the other direction. We're 'phasing out' our manned bombers, as the saying goes. We're dropping the idea of perfecting an anti-missile missile. We've given up the air-to-ground Skybolt. We're trying to make a fighter plane on the Detroit principle, with the same chassis for the Comet as for the Falcon — oops, I mean an identical fuselage for the Air Force and the Navy. The general idea is that when we've de-escalated to the position of a second-class power we can begin throwing our weight around again."

"I begin to see the light," said Topsy. "India can fight Portuguese Goa because only sticks are involved in that kind of war. But if we were to send a single Marine to Ruritania, it could knock over all the nine-pins including those that are weighted with Uranium 235."

"Exactly," said Turvy. "So the idea is to work backward until you have the armed might of Monaco or Andorra. Then you can afford to be tough and to fight for your rights."

DOCTRINE

"It still doesn't seem logical," said Topsy. "But I see where one pundit argues that the Monroe Doctrine is only workable when Europe helps the U.S. to enforce it. It is then a three-legged, not a two-legged, stool."

"Like when France helped us enforce the Doctrine by sending Maximilian and Carlotta to Mexico as king and queen of the Mexicans?" asked Turvy.

"You're out of order," said Topsy. "Now it's you who is asking the world to make sense."

"Well," said Turvy, "I own up to a sneaking desire to return to the days of old-fashioned logic. These escalation mongers actually get my goat. It never occurs to them that Khrushchev is just as afraid of escalating Fidel Castro into World War III — or World War Finis — as we are."

"So we could hit Morro Castle with a powder puff, after all," said Topsy.

"It could be easier than that," said Turvy. "Just take away Fidel Castro's oil."

AND THE DOVE FOUND NO REST — ON THE ARK

How Not to Do It

GEORGE BOARDMAN, PH.D.

I sneaked up on myself the other day and discovered how easy it is to avoid doing something which needs doing. It happened like this:

I have been a member of the Royal Photographic Society for a good many years. During the past couple of years my annoyance with photographs published in the Society's Journal has been growing. From a purely technical point of view the photographs are always fine but too many of them have said too little, in my opinion. Naturally, I have tied this in with socialism and the socialistic urge for abysmal mediocrity and I believe my opinion to be valid. BUT—what have I been doing about it?

Late last year I made a series of photographs which were designed to tell a short story about this ghost town. I made the pictures at the express request of an old and trusted friend, Art Ahlers, who is also a photographer's agent. While I was shooting this series, in which I used my daughter and oldest granddaughter for models, I thought about ideas which might illustrate the philosophy of freedom to those who understand the meaning of the word. I thought about the photographs but I didn't make them.

I have an excuse. For more than two decades I made no pictures for my own enjoyment. Every shot had a price tag on it. Every shot was aimed at a market. When I withdrew from activity in the market place, because of a growing resentment against seeing my earnings stolen for the support of foreign governments and our own parasitical giant, I stopped making photographs. It didn't make much sense.

Because this area has a great deal of beauty to me, I have thought of photographs without making them. I can visualize the exactly right model at the right place at the right time, with small, white clouds drifting across the startlingly blue Arizona sky on days just like today. I didn't have the right model and I wasn't at the right location and my mail was getting ahead of me and I had a column to write and I was too tired to do anything about it.

My resentment against socialism is very real, almost overpowering, at times. There are many things I would like to try to do, I see and feel dozens of opportunities all around me and then the thought of licenses and dealing with government and taxes takes over and that's the end to my creative thinking for the day.

So I permitted my resentment to run over. I didn't even want to send the few dollars required for dues out of the country. I had decided to resign from the R.P.S.

I was going to write a slightly indignant letter explaining how the members weren't doing much with photography. Then I sneaked up on myself. That was the mistake. Now I find it necessary to see if I can't do something about it.

Certainly, I realize that I may make up quite a portfolio of photographs which illustrate the meaning and the feeling of freedom to me and that not a single publication in this country may buy them. On the other hand, if I am able to make the point I want to make and send the pictures to a dozen editors, a dozen editors will see them and something I've tried to say may stick in the mind of one editor, and this gets back to the statement made by Leonard Read of the Foundation for Economic Education, the cheapest price we can pay for freedom is to talk, write and think for freedom. We can also paint and create statues and make photographs and compose music for freedom, if we will.

A great many photographers have done very well financially making photographs of the seamy side of American life—the slums, dust bowls and even the socialist cure-all, plowing under crops. Those who have advertised themselves as liberals have presented a mighty narrow point of view, cheap, shoddy and basically full of resentment because they were born. Actually, advertising photographers have done the best job of presenting inhabitants of this country as living and healthy human beings with very few exceptions.

Nation's Press

Social Form of the Future

From Threefold

More than half a century ago, an American president, Woodrow Wilson, told his countrymen that, altho they had made great economic progress, their social and political arrangements were still back in the days of the horse and buggy. In other words, it was possible for a nation and, presumably, for individuals as well, to be up-to-date in some respects and to lag far behind in others.

Keeping up with the march of objective time is not easy. The newest hat and the latest attitude towards life soon become old-fashioned. Time is a tide that flows towards us from the future. If we have a momentum of our own, we may breast it and keep up-to-date. Otherwise, we drift backwards.

The human tendency to fall behind the times, gives rise to the question as to whether the political centralism of the present day can meet the needs of modern society. This social form originated hundreds of years ago when the demands of men were quite different from those of today. People believed at that time that the earth, as well as the Heavens, was actively ruled by the Divinity Himself, with the help of his Angels, Archangels, Archai, etc. And the earthly rulership, with its ministers, was planned as the faithful reflection of the arrangement in the Heavens.

Such is the out-moded social form which we still follow today. Certain members of this basically aristocratic set-up were superior to others. Also, there was presumed to exist within this complex, a Supreme Authority to which everything could, if necessary, be referred back. Nowadays, it is clear to all citizens that society's political authority is nothing that by any stretch of the imagination could be described as Divine, or even noble. And, since political centralism operates by handing out special privileges in return for political support, it is open to all manner of corruption. Another drawback of this old social form is that its government rewards its friends and punishes its enemies, so that it easily degenerates into one-party totalitarianism.

An up-to-date alternative to political centralism is described in the Declaration of Independence where the government of the United States is expressly given the task of safeguarding rights that are equal and held in common by all citizens. The conviction of the Founders was that if, instead of distributing special privileges, government were adequately to protect common rights to Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness, no further regulation of society would be needed.

Because the concept of equal and common rights was ahead of its time, this new doctrine could not withstand the pressures for privileges that came from earlier centralist European and American habits. If it had been followed, it would have limited the governmental function to the field of common rights, leaving education and business to develop freely along the lines of their inherent impulses, subject, however, to their respect for general rights. The separation and independent operation of the cultural, political and economic functions is Social Decentralism.

Question Box

Question No. 247: "If taxation is theft, who are the thieves? The voters for a political candidate? The elected officials? The revenue agents carrying out orders? The civil servants (teachers, librarians, etc.) receiving salaries? The recipient of Society Security benefits? The partakers of a government service like education or garbage collection? Can you chart the responsibility for immoral action in this process?" — Edward C. Facey, New York.

Answer: To us the question of intent is important, as it is in law. Therefore, those who violate the commandment against coveting another's property are the thieves. An individual who does not know he is stealing in our view is not guilty of theft, altho he may be guilty of receiving stolen property. There again, if he has been brainwashed into believing it is not theft, he would not be guilty of knowingly receiving stolen property.

While under man-made law, it is contended that intention is indicated by the acts of an individual, we doubt if morally one could be considered a thief by receiving property he does not consider stolen. Under common law if an individual knowingly receives stolen goods he may be punished; but the penalty for innocently receiving stolen goods is loss of the stolen property.

It is not our desire that such persons be punished. It is our desire that individuals learn that moral codes apply to a collective group just as they do to the individual. We seek to encourage individuals to adopt these great moral codes to guide their individual lives and not to expect some governmental agency to have rights not held by individuals.

To The Point

Swollen Foreign Service

By RUSSELL KIRK

Congressman Wayne Hays, the liberal Democrat from Ohio, is chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on State Department Organization and Foreign Operations. Repeatedly, he has suggested that the State Department seems to be interested in building an immense bureaucratic empire overseas, for its own sake.

Terribly sensitive on this point, State Department functionaries have responded to certain criticisms of my own in a tone at once bellicose and evasive. They will bear watching.

The hearings of the Hays subcommittee on foreign-service buildings make lively and informative reading. Again and again, Representative Hays and his colleagues have been vexed by the passion of the Foreign Service for elaborate building programs—and personnel to fill the new buildings. For instance, there was a hearing on May 15, 1962, concerning the tiny country of El Salvador. The State Department proposed to erect a new office-building in the capital, San Salvador, costing $1,150,000. There follows the exchange among Congressman Hays, Congresswoman Bolton, and Mr. James Johnstone of the State Department.

Mr. Hays. "How many people do you have there now?"

Mr. Johnstone. "We have a total of 140 people there, Mr. Chairman: 90 Americans and 50 local employees."

Mr. Hays. "What is the population of that country?"

Mr. Johnstone. "The population of that country is 2,613,000."

Mr. Hays. "What do you do with that many people in a little country like that?"

(Mr. Johnstone proceeded to list the personnel of the diplomatic service, U.S.I.S., A.I.D., Marines, military mission, military attaches, etc.)

Mrs. Bolton. "I feel myself wondering what on earth do they ever do."

Mr. Hays. "Write memos to each other. Why do we have an A.I.D. program in San Salvador? They got along for a good many hundred years without anyone. It is a pretty stable economy. Does anyone know that?"

Mr. Johnstone. "I am afraid I am not qualified to talk to that, Mr. Chairman."

Mr. Hays. "I presume the main reason is because this gets them another mission and some more people on the payroll. I don't know of any other good reason.

"The whole point is, it seems to me, there are just too many people in these countries, doing what nobody seems to know — They had 59 people administering $1 million worth of aid. If you didn't have those A.I.D. people down there, you wouldn't need as big a building, would you?"

Well, did the State Department take to heart these criticisms of the Senate subcommittee? You may judge, gentle reader, by consulting the more recent hearings for this subcommittee for March 6, 1963. There you will find that, far from reducing the staff, the State Department now has 200 people at its San Salvador embassy — an increase of almost 45 per cent in one year! They still want an office-building for $1,150,000; and they still don't say why they need a big mission in tiny, peaceful, and relatively prosperous El Salvador.

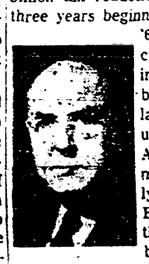

Parkinson's Law works with a vengeance in the State Department. And the more gross that bureaucracy grows, the less it is able to perform its essential tasks.

It's Up to You

Decapitalization

By H. E. KERSHNER, L.H.D.

President Kennedy wants a $10 billion tax reduction spread over three years beginning in fiscal of '64, plus increased spending running into billions of dollars. The Executive Council of AF of L - CIO, meeting recently in Miami Beach, wants the whole ten billion tax cut the first year plus much greater deficit spending than the President has advocated. The President's proposals look like a deficit of $10 to $12 billion in the next fiscal year, while the AF of L-CIO proposals might well double that amount. Moreover, the labor proposals would do the lion's share of the tax cutting in the lower brackets, while increasing taxes on business, capital gains, oil production and other industries. Already our corporations are not allowed to write off their depreciating assets fast enough to maintain their capital structures. We are rapidly de-capitalizing ourselves. Altho our nominal corporate capital is 45 per cent greater than it was ten years ago, corporate profits after taxes in 1960 were less than they were in 1950. The program of the labor leaders would tax industry far more heavily than at present and would greatly reduce, and in many cases completely eliminate, profits. It would greatly increase the number of companies operating on a deficit. Already 40 per cent of American corporations operate at a loss, 470,000 reporting an aggregate deficit in 1960-61 of over $6¾ billions. Increasing the number of losing industries would decrease the number of jobs and decreasing the amount of profit our still successful corporations are able to earn would also decrease the number of jobs.

It takes about $18,000 of invested capital to supply one job in American industry. Increasing taxes in the areas which produce this job-creating capital is bound to cause more unemployment. The program of the labor leaders is diametrically opposed to the results they seek to accomplish.

Pump priming has been tried again and again. It has never worked. Why do intelligent people continue to advocate it?

Taxes are too high. They should be reduced, but this should be accompanied by equal and even greater reduction in expenditures. It is wrong to say that this cannot be done because of defense spending, for civilian spending has been increasing since 1955 faster than defense spending. A case in point is the Medicare program of the President which would add at least $2 billion a year to civilian spending.

SCHOOL COSTS

To the Editor:

I have found the public school system extremely unsatisfactory. I feel the cost is a secondary consideration. It is my belief that the school is the place to develop the child in the essential fields of knowledge to permit continued independent growth after leaving school. However, despite what I have been told by various "professional educators" I find they continue to cram the little minds with all their "progressive" socialistic tripe and neglect to properly teach the three R's.

The obvious solution is to place my two boys into private school. Upon inquiry I find the annual cost at the nearest private (Christian) school, including tuition and bus transportation, compares with the "free" public schools as follows:

	Public	Private	Saving
1st child	$567.29	$ 291.00	$276.29
2nd child	$567.29	$ 291.00	$276.29
3rd child	$613.59	$ 140.00	$473.59
Total	$1620.17	$ 600.00	$1020.17

You will note that it costs $1020 to place three children in public school. The same $1020 will place ten children in this particular private school.

To allay all criticism from those who would pick flyspecks out of pepper, I will admit that the average private school probably costs more than the figures I have given. However, you pick and choose depending upon your ability to pay and if you feel you are not getting your money's worth you can take your money elsewhere. Remember also, you have no choice in public school—whether or not you have children, or whether or not your children attend, the cost continues to be extorted from your income.

In comparing college costs I find that the Council for the Advancement of Small Colleges, 1818 R St., N.W., Washington 9, D. C., lists 58 excellent private colleges with enrollments from 100 to 770 students. Total cost per year, including room, board, tuitions, fees range from $515 to $2600, as follows:

2 schools $2000 - $2600
6 schools $1500 - $2000
9 schools $1200 - $1500
28 schools $1000 - $1200
13 schools $515 - $1000

You will note that only one of these private colleges exceeds the average cost of $2,578 per student at the University of California and 28 compare in cost to the state college cost of $1,300.

One interesting consideration for parents is the fact that the Freedoms Foundation of Valley Forge awarded its George Washington Honor Medal to CASE for outstanding achievement in [illegible] of the American Way of Life.

Woodland Park News

By ROSE M. DAVIS
687-9014

The 16th annual Ute Trail Stampede, sponsored by the Woodland Park Saddle Club, will be held July 19-21, at 1:30 each afternoon.

The rodeo is on the Rodeo Cowboys Association Circuit and each year draws top cowboys of the nation. Stock again will be furnished by Walt Alsbaugh of Alamosa.

The opening will be marked with the usual grand entry prade at 1:30 p.m., Friday, July 19.

The annual Stampede Parade will begin Saturday, July 20, at 10:30 a.m.

A Cowboys' Ball is scheduled for July 4. At this time the Stampede queen will be crowned with a sparkling white western hat.

The Saddle Club is financing the new building of steel structure on the rodeo grounds, just west of the grandstand. It will be available to community groups for dances and other activities.

The Woodland Park PTA will sponsor the Rodeo Dance, July 20.

The PTA is sponsoring a poster contest for the rodeo dance. Cash awards will be given for the most original and colorful posters. They will be judged in different age groups.

Information on the posters should include, "Rodeo Dance, Sat., July 20, 9 p.m." The place is indefinite pending the completion of the new Saddle Club House. Each contestant should put his name and age on his poster. Deadline for entrance is July 2. Posters are to be left at Mar-Rae's. Marge Kratzer and Jean Ernsperger will be judges. All school age youngsters are eligible to enter the contest. Posters should be not less than 12 by 15 inches in size.

A class in basic security analysis of stocks, bonds and investments started June 12 at the Herman Girls Ranch on Rampart Range Road. The course will continue for eight weeks. William Edgar, resident manager of Peters, Writers and Christensen, Inc., of Colorado Springs, is teaching the class. Tuition is $25 per couple or $15 single. All materials are furnished. For further information call Ric Herman, 687-9053.

The summer library located in the eighth grade room of the school is open on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Story hours are held each Wednesday at 10 a.m. The first story last Wednesday for the youngest age group was attended by 29 boys and girls. Mrs. Fenton Vest read to the children. Next Wednesday the story hour will be for the 6th, 7th and 8th grade level. This Wednesday was for the 3rd, 4th and 5th grade pupils. Several volunteers are helping take care of the library. Many books are being checked out and read.

Snowflake Chapter No. 153, Order of the Eastern Star, will have a special meeting in the high school gym June 15 at 7:30 p.m. The Fairplay Past Matrons Club of Liberty Chapter No. 108 will present an initiation ceremony, as was performed in 1867. The officers of Snowflake Chapter and guests of Liberty Chapter have a potluck dinner in the school cafeteria at 5:30 p.m. All members of the Eastern Star are invited to attend the "Old Time Rocking Chair Initiation."

The Woodland Park PTA executive board met Wednesday night at the Lucian Jamison home. Several business matters were taken care of, mainly concerning the PTA sponsored rodeo dance July 20. Present for the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Jamison, Mrs. Richard Carvill, Mrs. Fay Roberts, Mrs. Dale Parker, Mrs. Monte Nichols and Mrs. Glen Davis.

First Baptist Church was the host church for the monthly Pikes Peak Association Workers meeting Tuesday evening. The executive board and association WMU meeting was held before supper. The group ate at the VFW Hall at 6:30. Speakers for the 7:30 meeting were pastors of three churches, Paul Cawthon, "The Doctrine of Sin"; Wayne Williams, "The Doctrine of Atonement," and James KcKee, "The Doctrine of the New Birth."

Men of the Baptist Brotherhood worked on the church grounds Saturday, putting in five loads of dirt on the front lawn and planting grass.

The Baptist Church held its regular monthly business meeting Wednesday night.

The Assembly of God Ladies Council met Tuesday with Mrs. Lena Bost in Chipita Park. The lesson was taken from the 5th Chapter of Romans. Members present were Mrs. Dan Starr, Mrs. Claude Shaw, Mrs. Donna Heisch, Mrs. Lois Bachman and Mrs. Frank Derby.

Guest speaker of the Assembly of God Church Sunday was the Rev. Smith of Littleton.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Starr and Lorraine Sater visited Mr. and Mrs. Bob Sater at Hannah Sunday.

It Was Only 'Family Spat,' Cops Are Told

DALLAS (UPI) — A 30-year-old man explained to police that he knows how to remain calm—up to a point—when arguing with his 35 year-old wife.

The argument started at the dinner table Monday night over whether they should go out Thursday night. The husband said he did not care one way or the other.

His wife became angry, so:

—She stabbed him in the arm with a knife. He removed the blade and continued eating.

—The wife poured a glass of iced tea on her husband's head. He got up calmly and went outside to work on his car.

—She followed him outside and poured hot cooking grease on his stomach.

This was too much. The husband crawled from under his car and knocked his wife down.

She countered by striking him with a slat from a picket fence.

The husband knocked her down again.

Bandaged and bruised at a local hospital the couple said they had no intention of prosecuting each other over "a friendly family spat."

PROGRESS

MONTREAL (UPI) — It used to take 100 hours to train a mechanic in the electronics system of the twin-engined DC3. The four-engined Constellation required 200 hours. Today, mechanics spend 1,500 hours in school before they are qualified to work on jet aircraft, according to the International Air Transport Association.

Wirtz Asked About Farm Work Force

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A group of Democratic congressmen went to Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz Tuesday with this question: Where will the farm labor force, formerly filled by Mexican nationals (braceros), come from, now that Congress has refused to extend the plan?

Leading the group was Rep. James Roosevelt, D-Calif. Roosevelt, chairman of the General Subcommittee on Labor, said the request was made in light of the recent defeat by the House on legislation to extend the Mexican farm labor program beyond the end of the year.

In areas where heavy use was made of the plan, he said, fears have been expressed that there will be a large shortage of workers on farms because of the action.

Roosevelt, one of those who voted against extension of the bracero program, said in a statement that steps would have to be taken to prevent such labor shortages.

But the California Democrat contended any shortages would be the result of "unsatisfactory means" of bringing farmers and workers together rather than of an actual shortage of workers.

He said domestic labor pools could supply needed workers if "lines of communications" were established between farmers and workers.

The San Bernardino National Forest in California was visited by 1,855,276 people in 1962.

Cleopatra Not Great, Film Critics Declare

LONDON (AP) —British film critics who flew to New York for the press preview of the film Cleopatra reported today they saw a great movie which just failed to live up to its high price tag.

The Telegraph said, "It seems it will not go down in history as the greatest film ever made. When the curtain was rung down after four hours of pageantry, high drama and passionate love scenes, the press preview audience gave a few perfunctory claps."

The Mail said: "The dominant figure is not Elizabeth Taylor. It is Rex Harrison. His Caesar is a masterful performance."

The Express said it believed the film makers' $40-million gamble will succeed.

The Evening News critic said the film lacked suspense.

Wheat Combines In Kansas Shift Into High Gear

GREAT BEND, Kan. (UPI)—Wheat combines shifted into high gear in Kansas today, reaping what may be the 16th largest wheat crop in the state's history.

Farmers, who were heavy hit by winter kill, army worms and badly-timed drought, were cheered by the harvest. It may be the fifth largest yield per acre in Kansas.

With continued warm, dry weather—the harvest was expected to spread over most of the state by the week's end. Already test cuttings had been made as far north as Brown County, adjoining the Nebraska border.

Elevator operators indicated that quality was generally good.

The federal government has estimated the crop in Kansas at 177,387,000 bushels. Production was expected to average 21 bushels per acre. Last year the harvest produced 211,171,000 or 23.5 bushels an acre.

Rain failed to materialize this past winter and spring, but late rains had delayed some cutting. If the crop equals the government prediction and some farmers were dubious, it would be the smallest since 1957.

Atlanta Swimming Pool Is Integrated

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Some white children left but others stayed when young Negroes showed up today at the desegregated opening of the city's 12 public swimming pools.

One white woman walked up to a policeman and said, "Does the lifeguard have to save them if they drown? I wouldn't."

At Candler Park in East Atlanta only about 20 white children showed up compared with a normal turnout of 200. No Negroes were present there for the pool opening.

Corregidor Island Rehabilitation Urged

CHEYENNE (UPI)— Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., is calling here for a national subscription drive to rehabilitate Corregidor Island, which he said he found overgrown with jungle on a recent inspection mission to the island fortress.

McGee, speaking to the Wyoming state convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary, said the island should be rehabilitated as a permanent memorial to those who fought and died in its defense in World War II.

"Quite literally, the jungle has reconquered this historic island," McGee told the VFW women.

Bataan and Corregidor should stand forever, McGee said, "as a memorial to those valiant men who fought when nothing was left them but courage in defense of their country and freedom."

McGee proposed that a public subscription be conducted in this country and the Philippines to raise money to clear the jungle from the island and allow public access to the battlegrounds.

"I propose to leave the scars of war intact to remind us and people everywhere of the sacrifices made in defense of liberty by the American and Filipino soldiers on Corregidor and Bataan," McGee said.

The senator recently was appointed by President Kennedy to the Corregidor-Bataan Memorial Commission.

Prospect Lake Conoco's Grand Opening Saturday

Riz Abanto and Joe Buan, new leasees of the Prospect Lake Conoco Service Station, 305 S. Hancock Ave., will hold a grand opening Saturday, featuring a pound of Bar-S bacon with each 10 gallons or more of gasoline, baloons for the kiddies and soft drinks for adults.

Customers also will register for a transistor radio and a four-piece set of china, to be given away at 10 p.m. Saturday.

Prospect Lake Conoco will give Gold Bond stamps with purchases.

Both Abanto and Buan are natives of the Philippines and are U. S. Army veterans.

Abanto has been a Colorado Springs resident since 1958, and was stationed at Ft. Carson with the 9th Infantry Division, the Ft. Carson Headquarters unit and the 2nd Missile Command. He was discharged from the service last February as a lieutenant colonel.

Born in the Philippines, he came to the states when he was 13 and lived in San Andres, Calif. He was graduated in 1939 from the University of California at Berkeley.

Mr. and Mrs. Abanto have a son and three daughters. The family lives at 2206 N. Bennett St.

Buan was born in Manila and has been in the United States since 1951. He attended National University in the Philippines.

Buan joined the United States Army in 1942, and was captured by the Japanese when they invaded his native land. He was among those that made the Bataan death march, and while held prisoner at Camp O'Donnell in 1942, he escaped and joined guerrilla forces.

Buan served as a guerrilla until American forces invaded the northern end of the Philippines, when he rejoined the U.S. Army.

Working with the Army Air Force Security Courier Service in Yokohama, he was among the first to volunteer for service in Korea when war broke out there. Buan went to Korea during the first week of the conflict and served 14 months before being repatriated.

From 1957 to 1961, he was stationed at Ft. Carson, and after being discharged from the service at Ft. Riley, Kan., as a sergeant first class returned to Colorado Springs to make his home.

Mr. and Mrs. Buan have a son, Matt, who is a student at the University of Colorado, and a daughter, Diane, and a son, Arthur, who are students at Harrison School.

The family lives at 1314 Richard Ave., Stratton Meadows.

13th Victim Reported In Utah Truck Crash

ESCALANTE, Utah (AP)—Marvin E. Porschatis, 29, Salt Lake City, Wednesday night became the 13th victim of a truck crash that killed five other adults and seven Boy Scouts.

Forty-six were on the stake truck Monday afternoon when it rolled backwards down a steep grade, then tipped over into a ravine southeast of here near Hole-in-the-Rock.

Porschatis suffered a skull fracture. He never regained consciousness.

Fines Assessed in Denver Auto Mishap

DENVER (AP) — Fine totaling $51 have been assessed against the driver of an automobile which fatally injured Mrs. Mary F. Currigan, mother of Tom Currigan, Denver auditor and candidate for mayor.

The driver, Silas Wilkins, 20, pleaded guilty in municipal court to careless driving and failure to exercise due care for a pedestrian.

The 68-year-old Mrs. Currigan was struck as she crossed a street May 19.

South Africa Blasts Rugby Football Game

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Take what baseball is to America, cricket to England, golf to Scotland. Add them up and you have what rugby football is to South Africa.

An outspoken critic is K. A. Schrecker, senior lecturer in physical education at Pretoria University, who says rugby will be an evil for as long as it enjoys the "morbid admiration" it does in South Africa.

Schrecker believes generally rugby has a harmful effect on behavior. He wants a commission to inquire into its side effects. One aim should be, he says, "To establish how many motorists convicted of reckless driving are active or retired rugby players."

Most ornamental trees and shrubs do not require extensive annual pruning. Only the removal of dead and scaly branches is advised in most cases.

CRUSADE

To the Editor:

The crusade against the alleged "right-wing" continues. Some try to class fascists as "right-wing" altho they are farther "left" than ultra-liberals, socialists and communists. Several years ago frequent mention was made of "left-wingers" as tho they were unusual and in the minority. There was seldom mention of "right-wingers." No one pictured the right-wing as singing hymns of "hate" and paralyzing the people the people with a campaign of "fright."

The majority of Americans are good people and can be depended upon to make the right decisions whenever they are permitted to register their choice. The "right-wing" did not set up Communist lines enclosing West Berlin to become a tinder box to start a conflagration of a third world war. It did not favor a lag in the missile race, setting up Castro in Cuba nor approve the overthrow of pro-Western governments thruout the world. Nor would the majority of the American people ever have approved these decisions.

The American Way

What Does Freedom Mean

By HARRY BROWNE

What does freedom mean?

It means the right of each to speak his mind — whether for or against the party and ideas currently in power.

It means the right of each to worship as he sees fit — even to practice voodoo or worship nothing at all, if that is his wish.

THE PRESS

It means the right of the individual to have access to words and writings of all — regardless of their popularity or wisdom.

It means the right of the consumer to buy what he chooses — not just what the government thinks is safe for him to have.

It means the right of the teen-ager, the elderly, the handicapped, the inefficient — or anyone that life can never be completely pigeon-holed.

at all — to work for less than what the politician feels is the "minimum wage."

It means the right of a man who has built his business thru service to his community to be able to determine for himself whom he shall hire to work for him.

CHOICE

Freedom means the right of all to choose friends and associates according to their own standards — regardless of how wise or stupid others may consider those standards.

It means the right of an individual to keep that for which he has labored, to spend his earnings as he chooses — not as some bureaucrat may desire.

It means a climate in which governments perform only their moral and intended functions — that of protecting life, liberty and property from those who would deny freedom.

It means unlimited opportunity — restricted only by the boundaries of a man's ambition, ingenuity, and effort.

It means an era of progress — as people compete for the privilege of serving each other.

It means an era of abundance — as productive capacities are utilized to increase the standard of living, instead of to satisfy the politician's lust for power.

It means greater security — as people learn to take care of themselves, the only real security.

Freedom means all of these things — and much more.

UNQUALIFIED

Freedom means freedom. Not followed by "except," "but" or "if." It is the most glorious commodity man can possess.

So few people have ever owned it. And we who have some of it seem to cherish it so little.

Are we willing to work for it, to earn it, and to retain it?

It is worth every sacrifice that we have to give.

Disorderly Sense Of Order Seen By Hal Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—One of life's little ordeals to the disorderly is trying to sustain their own sense of order.

As a man with a chronic reputation for being disorderly in the arrangement of his belongings, I will go further than saying this is a little ordeal in living. It is a major problem.

I regard myself as a person with an immaculate sense of order. But, as is true of many a man or woman with the same idiosyncrasy, I make order in my own way.

Instead of wasting my time and energy as so-called neat people do by confining the paper wealth that comes my way in the A-B-C confusion of file cabinets, I pile it up layer by layer on my desk.

If letters, books, or packages arrive on a day when I don't feel like opening mail, I stack them on top of the debris I live by—and wait until a sense of adventure does impel me to do so.

Paper by paper, envelope by envelope, layer by layer, such a person knows by memory the uncharted labyrinth on his desk that the rest of the unfeeling world regards as an aimless clutter. Blindfolded, he can reach a sensitive hand within the mass and pluck out what he needs at any moment.

He can, that is, if he is left alone. But he is not left alone.

The bane of the so-called disorderly person in this world is the curiosity of the so-called neat person.

I am convinced by long office association with so-called neat people that they live starved lives. After stashing away under the A-B-C technique what the mailman brings them, they have a feeling of something missing in their living.

So they are irresistibly drawn to the laden desks of the so-called disorderly. It serves as a magnet to their insecurity.

They pick up and read letters at random, open packages not addressed to them, overturn the considered layers that have real meaning only to the owner, and make a real chaos out of what is a planned confusion.

What do they seek? What do they hope to find? They don't really know—and I don't either.

Several times I have put atop the boarded junk pile upon my desk a simple note saying:

"Whatever you are looking for in this world that will make your life better, it probably isn't here. Why don't you look under 'H'—for happiness—in your own files?"

The irate notes do no good. Whenever I reach with a sure hand for what I want in the mess on my desk, I find some meddlesome passer-by has overturned the pile and made a real mess of it.

Well, suppose there is no real cure in lightning. One of the most capable duties of the so-called disorderly person is to teach the so-called neat people of this world that life can never be completely pigeon-holed.

Scout Troop Sells American Flags

Troop 23, Boy Scouts of America, sponsored by First Methodist Church, have taken on a project to see that every home that does not own an American flag can conveniently purchase one.

As a project to show their patriotic spirit, the 45 scouts of Troop 23 will deliver a handsome 3 foot x 5 foot flag at a cost of $1.50. For $3.50 the scouts will supply a pole and trimmings and the flag.

A call to the First Methodist Church office 633-3801 will be relayed to an eager Boy Scout who will see that a flag is promptly delivered to prospective customers. Scouts will make a small profit on the flags which will be used to send the troop to Camp Alexander, one of the outstanding scout camps in the nation.

The scouts have 5,000 flags available. They figure that the number of flags that are seen being displayed on any patriotic holiday, would indicate that twice this number of homes do not own flags.

One scout said, "I figure that when I go down the street and don't see a flag displayed on a holiday, that the family doesn't own a flag or else they would have it on display. So it is logical to believe that at least 5,000 families need flags." It doesn't seem to be much of a holiday without a flag being flown from your front porch.

Tobaccos and Motors Ahead; Trade Active

NEW YORK (AP)—Motors and tobaccos were ahead as the stock market moved unevenly higher in fairly active trading early this afternoon.

Twentieth Century-Fox dropped 2 points at worst following the premiere of its $40 million movie, "Cleopatra," later paring a fraction from the loss.

Gains of fractions to a point or so among most key stocks outnumbered losers. The gain on average was moderate.

Steels, building materials, rails, farm implements, airlines, nonferrous metals, and office equipments were mostly higher.

The trend was lower among building materials and chemicals. Savings-and-loan holding companies were mixed in the wake of news that some additional savings and loan associations were reducing the interest rates paid on savings accounts.

The market opened mixed, with many stocks unchanged, then gradually assumed a higher tone.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .5 at 273.0 with industrials up .5, rails up .8, and utilities off .1.

Analysts said that although "Cleopatra" was greeted mostly with critical acclaim, the question still remained as to how long it would take Fox to get back its investment in the movie, which amounts to about $15 a share—nearly half of the stock's current price.

A flurry of activity and stronger prices for two merger candidates, New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroad was said by rail stock analysts as possibly due to an upturn in traffic for Eastern railroads and heavy loadings of steel and coal for both roads in April and May.

Pennsy was up ¼ at 18 on blocks of 20,000, 3,400 and 3,500 shares. It and Central gained about a point each.

Colgate-Palmolive, whose directors proposed a 5-for-4 stock split, advanced more than a point.

Tobaccos, bounding from recent selloffs due to health warnings, picked up considerable ground. Philip Morris rebounded about 3 points. Lorillard, Liggett & Myers and Reynolds added a point or so each.

Dentists Supply, which jumped 3⅜ yesterday on merger news, fell more than a point on profit taking.

Big Three motors made narrow fractional gains.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .85 at 724.21.

The American Stock Exchange prices were irregularly higher in moderate trading. Syntex was off about 5 points after trading was temporarily halted on two occasions, once because of a build up of sell orders and once for an influx of buy orders. Gains of a point or so were made by Paddington "A," Soss Manufacturing, Stanley Aviation, Technicolor, National Rubber Machinery, Community Public Service, Irving Air Chute and National Video "A." Insurance Co. of North America dropped about a point. Giannini Controls and Sterling Brewers dropped fractions.

Corporate bonds were irregularly lower. U. S. Government bonds were steady in quiet dealings over the counter.

RECOGNIZE TOGO

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has recognized the government of Togo.

The State Department said Thursday the United States believes elections and adoption of a new constitution in May plus assurances that the new government of President Nicholas Grunitzky would honor international obligations constituted "a basic democratic rule in Togo."

Canadians Oppose German Atom Force

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson claimed here "it is no secret" that one big aim of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's new defense approach is to keep Germany from becoming a nuclear power.

In a defense speech in the House of Commons Pearson said he did not feel that Canada would participate in the "new look" force of nuclear-armed planes and surface ships.

But he spoke highly of United States' aims in pressing for the unified NATO strike force, which was approved in principle by the alliance's foreign and defense ministers at their spring meeting here last month.

Dixiecrats Now More Afraid in Filibuster Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Southern senators are ready to filibuster against President Kennedy's civil rights program, but for the first time in years they are afraid they may fail.

A southern senator said he could not think of any civil rights legislation "the President will send to us" which southerners would not have to launch a filibuster against.

The civil rights legislation is expected to go to Congress this week.

Indications were increasing that the administration may get the necessary two-thirds vote to kill a filibuster.

Informed sources agree it will depend upon the amount of personal leadership President Kennedy puts into the effort, including consultations with GOP leadership as well as Democrats, and the scope of his proposals.

Republicans already have warned that if he applies a broad rather than limited use of the interstate commerce clause to integrate public accommodations his GOP support will dwindle.

Some other Republicans, and all southerners, also find unpalatable the plan to let the attorney general file civil suits for Negroes in school desegregation cases.

But the agreement this week by GOP senators that they will support "further appropriate" civil rights legislation gave the administration's carefully plotted legislative movement a needed lift.

FARM SURPLUS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's hoard of grain and other farm produce continues to swell. Agriculture Department figures show value of stockpiles at the end of Januaryrose $600 million to a record $8.5 billion. The previous peak was $8.2 billion in March 1959.

Gregory Peck Given Foreign Film Award

ROME (AP) — Gregory Peck, Geraldine Page and Darryl F. Zanuck were foreign winners Tuesday night of 1963 David of Donatello awards, among Italy's top film prizes.

Italian winners were Gina Lollobrigida, Silvana Mangano, Vittorio Gassman and Vittorio de Sica.

The miniature golden reproductions of Donatello's statue will be presented July 27 to Peck as the best foreign actor for "To Kill a Mocking Bird," to Miss Page as best foreign actress for "Sweet Bird of Youth," and to Zanuck for "The Longest Day," named the best foreign film.

Accoustical Ceiling Compromise Found

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board today endorsed a compromise agreement between two unions as the proper solution to a dispute over installation of acoustical ceilings in Colorado.

By a 3-2 vote, the NLRB held installation of suspended ceilings —apart from finish material — Should be assigned to lathers, rather than carpenters who had been hired to do the work in the Bear Creek school near Denver and at the Colorado State Mental Health Center at Fort Logan.

The board made the decision in compliance with a 1961 Supreme Court decision directing it to decide jurisdictional dispute cases.

Chairman Frank W. McCulloch and members John H. Fanning and Gerald A. Brown signed the majority report. Members Philip Ray Rodgers and Boyd Leedom favored giving the work to the carpenters.

The agreement upheld by the NLRB was one negotiated on a statewide basis by representatives of carpenters and lathers internationals to avoid jurisdictional strife.

The NLRB said the Carpenters Local 55, of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, AFL-CIO, had taken part in negotiating the agreement and should abide by it.

Boost in State Sales Tax Is Being Proposed

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP) — A detailed plan to boost Colorado's statewide 2 per cent sales tax by 50 per cent, raising an estimated $28 million yearly, is being submitted to Gov. John A. Love's new 100-member commission on local government.

The proposal calls for raising the statewide sales tax to 3 per cent, with the additional money all going for support of municipal and county governments.

A constitutional amendment passed by the voters would be required to put the plan into effect.

The plan, commission members were advised, "represents the cumulative thinking of many of Colorado's municipal and county officials and community leaders."

It was forwarded to the commission by Clark Buckler, local government tax expert of the privately-financed Colorado Public Expenditure Council, a taxpayers' agency. Buckler said backers believe it represents an alternative to increases in taxes on property to support municipal and county governments.

Denver resident — who already pay a 4 per cent sales tax —apparently would not face another increase. The proposal contemplates that one cent of the 4-cent-a-dollar tax would be repealed by the city. It provides that no area shall receive any money from the fund which would be created, if its citizens are paying more than 3 per cent sales tax.

The plan calls for the pacing of a constitutional amendment for the new levy on the November, come effective July 1, 1965. People. If approved, it would become effective July , 1965. Petitions would be used to get the amendment on the ballot.

The Money would go into a special fund and would be distributed by the state treasurer four times yearly, starting in October, 1965.

A division of proceeds set forth in the proposed constitutional amendment would allot Denver 35 per cent of all money collected under the new levy, about $9.8 million on the basis of present collections. The other 62 counties and muncipalities would share the remainder, with counties and municipalities each being allocated 32.5 per cent of the total, or about 9.1 million at present collection rates.

The proposed amendment provides that a city or county must use its share of the money first to eliminate or relieve any property tax levy for bonded debt," next to eliminate any property tax for capital improvements and finally, to eliminate or relieve property taxes for general purposes.

One section of the new amendment rewrites the provision of the present old age pension amendment to the constitution so that the new levy would not be subject to the requirement that 85 per cent of all excise and sales taxes must go into the pension fund.

Rep. John G. Mackie, R-Longmont, who will be vice chairman and active head of the new commission, said he intends to present the plan at the organizational meeting at the capitol June 24.

Mackie also said he plans to bring up at the same time three metropolitan government plans. They are the borough plan for Denver and adjacent areas offered in the legislature last winter by Sen. Joe Shoemaker, R-Denver; the metropolitan area plan suggested several years ago by Fred Simpson Jr., then mayor of Colorado Springs; and the super-county plan proposed for Denver by Ed C. Johnson, former governor and United States senator.

Buckler, in his letter outlining the sales tax plan, said it "is the result of many conferences between members of the executive board of the Colorado Municipal League and the executive board of the Colorado State Association of County Commissioners.

Steel Industry May Consider Vacation Plan

NEW YORK (AP)—The Iron Age said today a steel industry wage settlement now in the making will include an extended vacation plan proportionate to one in the can industry.

Under a 1962 pact with the United Steelworkers Union, can manufacturers granted 13 weeks vacation every five years to employes with 15 years seniority.

The metalworking weekly said steel industry bargainers, working through a joint management-union human relations research committee, have been close to agreement for possibly six weeks.

"The human relations approach is being blamed in varying degrees—and by both sides—for inability to come to an agreement earlier," the magazine said.

"—According to sources within the bargaining groups, when talks reached the negotiation stage they continued to be conducted under rules designed for exploration and study, not final agreement," the Iron Age said.

"Because of this machinery, there had been no attempt to fill in the fine print of the extended vacation plan or any other section.

"Until the whole framework is assembled, no portion is considered firm."

Longest Dog Sled Team Seen in Idaho

KETCHUM, Idaho (UPI)—The operator of a small dog kennel and pet store here says he has the longest dog sled team in the world.

It is so long, in fact, that Robert Black talks to his lead dog through a battery-operated radio system.

Black also boasts something unique in the dog world.

Mrs. Black combs his dog team and turns the combings into "sammy wool," or an odorless, angora-like wool that can be used to make sweaters.

What kind of a team is this?

The dogs are known as Samoyeds, a strain Black says has never been crossbred and consequently are direct descendants from a breed of the earliest dog known.

His 21 - dog team, averaging about 45 pounds each in weight, can pull a load equal to about three-quarters of a ton. He uses the 70-foot long team hauling passengers from the nearby Sun Valley parking lot to Dollar or Baldy Mountains.

Dollar is a small skiing hump near by the resort's parking lot, but big Baldy is a number of miles away.

The Blacks came to Ketchum last November and operated the dog sled around town. During a parade here Black discovered the need for the battery-operated radio. He said noise from the parade drowned his orders before they reached the lead dog.

Mrs. Black combs the dogs in the spring when they are shedding. The females are combed right after they wean their pups.

She gathers the wool, washes and spins it, then can knit it or crochet it into whatever articles are desired. The items—and one of the most popular are baby booties—are sold in the Black's pet shop.

The kennel has 29 Samoyeds, all registered with the American Kennel Club. There are 64 dogs in all, including Scotties and West Highland Whites.

The 21-dog sled team was featured last year in the Apple Blossom parade in Washington and the Seattle, Wash., Grand Seafair parade.

Ladies Aid met Wednesday with Mrs. Dottie Gieck. There were eight ladies and five children present for dinner. Three ladies and seven more children arrived later in the afternoon. Mrs. Dhu Wright, Grandma Wright and Mrs. Juanita Rasner were guests. The next meeting will be Wednesday, June 19, with Mrs. Dorothy Baker.

The Edison Luckie Lassies had a day-long meeting Tuesday. Miss Ruth Appelthun, Miss Su-Huei Hwang and Miss Gail Lunquist came out from Colorado Springs as invited guests. Betty Anderson, Penny Gieck and Eileen Kunau prepared the dinner. Miss Appelthun showed two films, "Patterns For The Figure" and "Home Decoration Made Easy." Carol Anderson, Polly Jean Appleman and Roycee Cooper worked on their sewing projects. It was a very busy day for the Lassies.

Sandra Gieck went back to Colorado Springs with Miss Appelthun Tuesday evening and stayed the night with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mellen. A guest of Miss Appelthun, she attended the U. S. Air Force academy graduation exercises Wednesday morning. It was quite a thrill for the country miss to see President Kennedy in person.

Friday afternoon the Pat Gieck home was the scene for some busy 4-H girls at work. The Junior Leaders, Betty Anderson, Bonnie Geist, Sandra Gieck and Eileen Kunau labored over a sign to be put up on the Boone Road. The sign is to let everyone know that they are welcome to El Paso County. Others present were Mrs. Pearlie Geist, their 4-H leader, Viola Geist and Mrs Bertha Kunau. Mrs. Barbara Gieck treated all to charcoal broiled hamburgers.

Another one of our cherubs will be going to Fort Collins June 12-14. Sandra Gieck will go as piano accompanist for the El Paso County Talent Number. Others going to the 18th annual convention held on the Colorado State University campus are Betty Anderson, Bonnie Geist and Freddie Geist.

Duane Gieck and Tracy were dinner guests Monday of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Gieck and girls.

Mrs. Polly Appleman and Polly Jean visited Mrs. Pearlie Geist Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Camille and sons called on Mrs. Margaret Gieck and Penny Thursday afternoon.

A 4-H reminder. The Southeastern County Demonstration Day for all 4-H members will take place at Miami-Yoder School, June 19.

Late again as usual, Sunday June 9, was Mrs. Jeannie Wagers birthday, so Happy Belated Birthday greetings.

Yours truly and sons were dinner guests Monday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Gieck and girls.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wager and girls visited Mr. and Mrs. Bert Wager and Gerald Friday evening.

Just about everyone and his uncle was at the Fowler Sale Saturday. Being an aunt, however, I wasn't there.

Mr and Mrs. Dhu Wright spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Duane Wright and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Loper, of Fountain, were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rasner.

Gerald Wager took care of Jody and Julie Saturday night, so Jim could take Jeannie out to celebrate her birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sopko Jr. and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Gieck and boys Sunday morning.

Mrs. Russell Bowen, her mother from Topeka, Kan., and her aunt from Missouri visited Mr. and and Mrs. Roy Whittemore Sr. Thursday afternoon.

The boys and I visited Mrs. Jeannie Wager and girls Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Juanita Rasner, Roger and Jeannie called on Mr. and Mrs. Harry Geist and family Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Duane Gieck went to Ordway Tuesday evening to attend confirmation services at St. Peters Church. Duane was sponsor to Denley Kester and Camille sponsored Kathy Kester.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sopko Sr. visited Mr. and Mrs. Garold Smith and family of Colorado Springs Sunday.

Penny Gieck stayed the weekend in Colorado Springs with big sister Peggy.

Mr and Mrs. Bob Carroll, of Hoisington, Kan., were guests of Mrs. Arlie Hamilton from Wednesday to Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed McKay and family, of Boone, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sopko Jr and family Sunday afternoon.

Lead, Aluminum Show Buoyant Market Trends

By DARDEN CHAMBLISS

NEW YORK (AP) — Lead and aluminum may have opposite specific gravities, but both are buoyant these days.

Lead makers pushed through a price boost of ¼ cent a pound to 10¾ cents in New York, capitalizing on recent strong demand from the battery and petroleum industries.

And aluminum makers have watched signs in their industry that they may be able to do something similar by year's end.

One is the way price boosts made lately on various fabricated products have stuck tight.

Another is the way consumers have been gobbling up metal fast enough to push the industry progressively nearer full capacity.

These things are exciting talk that the basic ingot price of 22½ cents a pound may be bolstered. Trade spokesmen concede this could be wishful thinking. Import pressure and price competition in world markets must still be reckoned with. But they see several cheering signs.

On the domestic scene, Reynolds Metals Co. put three more potlines back in production and perked up industry ears by attributing it in part to "shortages in some product areas."

Reynolds said some of the shortages were in billets, the basic material for the huge extrusion business. Some categories of fabricated products have also been drawn down.

This is the first mention of "shortages" in the industry in some time. The three potlines add 55,000 tons to Reynolds' output and lift it to about 95 per cent of rated capacity. That's about the level for the entire industry now, after successive additions by major makers.

The lead price increase surprised two categories of people—those who doubted one would come in the face of St. Joseph Lead Co. resuming struck production, and those who thought it would be larger than a mere quarter cent.

The increase seemed to dampen buyer enthusiasm somewhat, as orders slackened off from the strong pace of previous weeks. Trade sources said some of the previous buying anticipated an increase.

The price hike was the third in recent months. Starting from a 15-year low of 9½ cents a pound, the price moved up in half-cent jumps last November and then again in January.

In other metal developments legislation freeing currency from its silver backing was signed in to law and plans were announced by the Commodity Exchange Inc to open futures trading as of Wednesday.

Replay of Prep Finals Set in Legion's Opener

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

It won't change the record books as far as the 1963 state championship, but there undoubtedly will be more at stake than the outcome of just another game when the American Legion Junior Baseball program opens this Saturday at Peterson Field's diamond.

Paired in the opener are the same teams that battled for the Class AAA high school title only a few weeks ago in Greeley. State runnerup Wasson High's players will be representing Ent AFB as the lone regional Legion "A" squad, and the prep champions from Aurora will be the first visitors in this summer's schedule.

The game was originally slated for this Sunday, but both teams have agreed to play the double header on Saturday instead. The first contest is set for 5 p.m. on the Peterson Field layout, east of Colorado Springs just off Highway 24.

Other games on the Legion schedule call for Sunday games so far, altho Ent coach Bob Gill has indicated some of these may be changed to Saturday, also. The Ent team will play in the Jefferson County League of suburban Denver in that there are no other teams in this area in the American Legion program.

The rest of the schedue has Ent playing host to Wheat Ridge, June 23; an eight-team tournament at Longmont, June 29-31; a road twin bill at Arvada, July 7; home games against Lakewood, July 14; and the league finale at Littleton, July 21. Gill said his Ent team probably will play several non-league games on weekdays with other Legion teams from thruout the state, but no schedule for these contests has been worked out as yet.

The state finals for Legion ball are scheduled for Pueblo, Aug. 9-11. This year the Ent team will qualify for the finals no matter how they finish in the Jefferson County League because the state berths are allotted by district and Ent is the only regional representative.

The season's opener this Saturday is expected to be one of the best of the summer, since these teams are essentially the same that finished 1-2 in the state finals.

The majority of the Ent players come from Wasson's South Central League champions and the same is true for the Aurora crew, which won the diadem in the Jeff-Co League. The state finals saw Aurora nip the Thunderbirds, 8-4, after Wasson had advanced to the championship game for the second straight year with a 3-0 decision over defending state titlist, Grand Junction.

Aurora will be minus its ace pitcher-outfielder, Don Young, who has since signed a professional contract with the St. Louis Cardinals. Young was a hitting star of the prep tournament and came on in relief against the T-Birds in the final game.

However, Aurora will have the services of most of the rest of that team including five others who were selected on the All-Tournament team. These were catcher Harry Sussman, second baseman Ken Kurtz, first baseman Bill Brill, outfielder Brian Moffett, and utility infielder Dan Kelly. In addition, they're expected to have pitcher Tim Scheibler, the winner over Wasson in the state championship game last month.

The Ent nine will have a fine two-handed punch in pitching with Tim Hamilton and Leroy Porterfield from the Wasson team. Hamilton, the probable starter in the first game this Saturday, compiled an 11-0 record this past spring with the T-Birds and has lost only one game in his three-year career. Porterfield had a 2-2 mark this past season and was also a three-year veteran.

In addition, Hamilton had a fancy .483 batting average and Porterfield swung the bat at a .400 clip so they probably will both alternate in the field when not on the mound.

Others off the Wasson team now playing for Ent are shortstop Darrell Greene, third baseman Mike Teague, catcher Butch Meller, and center fielder Mike Hinton. Teague paced this group with a .436 average for the season, Hinton had a .411 mean, Green was next with .409 and seven home runs in 21 games, and Meller was outstanding as a defensive catcher as well as hitter for a .279 average.

Joining these Wasson players are infielder Sam Gieck and outfielder Lloyd Crawford from Harrison High School, and Tom Johnston from Manitou Springs High. Gill indicated there was still openings on the team for anyone under 19 years old from those schools who would like to tryout for the squad. The team practices daily at 5:30 p.m. at Peterson Field.

With all league games scheduled as double headers, the Ent team will play 10 contests plus three more in the Longmont tournament and several more in weekday non-league action.

The Los Angeles Angels made 175 errors and were last in American League fielding percentages in 1962.

Former Yankee Turley Helps Bombers to Lead

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Yankees took a deep bow today in the direction of former teammate Bullet Bob Turley, a pitcher they dispatched to the Los Angeles Angels when his pop gun ran out of POP.

The 32-year-old right-hander gave the Yankees a boost into the American League's top spot Wednesday night with a one-hit 5-0 victory over the White Sox.

That gave the Angels a split of a twi-night doubleheader—Chicago's John Buzhardt hurled a three-hit 3-1 first game triumph—and dropped the White Sox .001 points behind New York. The Yankees reached the top rung with a 3-2, 10-inning triumph over sagging Baltimore.

Meanwhile, Cleveland's Indians rolled to their sixth consecutive victory with a costly 12-6 triumph over Detroit in which they lost outstanding rookie outfielder Vic Davilillo for at least four weeks with a broken right forearm.

In other games, Boston used the home run punch to down Washington 5-3 and Kansas City and Minnesota played richochet in splitting a doubleheader. The A's pounded 17 hits for a 12-4 victory, then the Twins lashed 13 for an 8-1 triumph.

Turley posted the 100th victory of his 12-year major league career. He struck out seven and walked four in bringing his record to 2-5. Leon Wagner helped him by going 4-for-4, including his 15th home run.

Buzhardt, 7-2, fell behind 1-0 in the second inning of the opener but went on to rrtire the Angels in order until the eighth. By then the White Sox had pulled ahead on Nellie Fox' run-scoring single in the second, Ron Hansen's sacrifice fl yin the third and Pet Ward's homer in the seventh.

The Yankees tied it in the eighth on Tom Tresh's double and Joe Pepitone's single, then won in the 10th when Brooks Robinson opened the door by muffing Bobby Richardson's grounder. Richardson moved around to score the clincher on a sacrifice, a walk and Roger aris' single. It was the Orioles' fifth straight loss and their 11th in 13 games.

Davalillo was hit by a Hank Aguirre pitch in the first inning and was replaced by Jerry Kindall, who started the Indians' winning three-run rally in the seventh inning with a double. A walk, two passed balls and singles by Joe Adcock and Willie Kirkland did the rest of the damage. The Tigers had built an early lead on homers by Al Kaline, Jake Wood and Dick McAuliffe.

The Red Sox scored all their runs on a three-run homer by Ed Bressoud, and solo shots by Carl Yastrzemski and Dick Stuart while Billy Monbouquette, 8-4, scattered eight Senator's hits. Jim King homered for Washington.

New Event In NCAA Track Meet

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI)—The six-mile run — a new event—will climax tonight's opening competition in the NCAA track and field championships at the university of New Mexico Stadium.

Twenty runners are entered in the grueling race, which is a substitute for the 10,000-meter run held during Olympic years. The six mile race is 396 yards shorter, and unlike other events on the three-night program had no qualifying standard.

Most of the first night's competition will be trials in the dash events as the NCAA weeds out the best of its 403 individual athletes who comprise 583 entries in the 42nd annual championships.

The meet was stretched over three nights for the first time this year, with the extra day affording more rest for runners during preliminaries. The night events offer relief from the summer New Mexico heat and windstorms of the day.

There are 111 teams represented in the meet, with the largest team entry the 20 athletes from defending champion University of Oregon.

"I GOTCHA!" — Missouri University's catcher John Sevcik, blocking the plate, starts his dive toward Grant Hawgood of Arizona University in the seventh inning of their College World Series game Wednesday night at Omaha. Hawgood attempted to score from second when Ron Theobold's smash back to the mound struck the pitcher's foot. Third baseman Dave Harvey recovered the ball and threw to the plate in time to nail Hawgood. Arizona remained undefeated in the tournament by licking Missouri, 6-4. (AP Wirephoto)

Arizona Pounds Missouri In College World Series

By JERRY GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

OMAHA (AP) — Alert Arizona proved with lusty hitting that Missouri's pitching staff isn't invincible—and it may be that some spy work was the turning point of the college world series.

The Wildcats climbed all over Missouri's heralded Jack Stroud Wednesday night, rocking him for two homers and handing him his first collegiate loss. The 6-4 victory over the nation's No. 1 ranked team left Arizona the only unbeaten club in the tournament.

The NCAA's double-elimination event enters its fourth round tonight with only Arizona sure of sticking around another day. The Wildcats play Texas after Missouri faces Southern California. Texas, Missouri and Southern California are 2-1 in the series.

The Longhorns ousted Penn State 6-4 in 10 innings Wednesday after blowing a 4-0 lead with two out in the ninth. Five straight walks in the 10th produced two runs for victorious Texas.

Southern California eliminated Florida State 4-3 gunning three Seminole runners down at the plate.

Stroud, only southpaw in Missouri's unusually strong college big four, was the pitcher the major league scouts were itching to see. The sophomore dazzled them through two hitless innings before Arizona suddenly started jolting him.

After two singles, Bob Maxwell slammed a 3-run homer and Ron Theobald followed with another drive over the left field fence.

Scouts sitting low in the stands behind home plate claimed Stroud was tipping off his pitches. They said his delivery was slightly different for a fast ball than a curve.

"Curve," said one as Stroud made his delivery to Maxwell.

Maxwell whacked the curve over the left field wall.

Most of the 10 hits Stroud allowed in his seven innings were hard shots by confident hitters dug in at the plate against the young left hander.

Frank Sancet, Arizona's coach, would say nothing about whether his club was doing some espionage against Stroud.

But Missouri's Hi Simmons doubted it.

"No, I don't think so, said Simmons. "Our pitcher just wasn't throwing hard."

But the scout sat there through Stroud's seven innings and was able to call about every pitch before it left his hand.

WEDNESDAY'S RESULTS
Third Round
Arizona 6, Missouri 4
Southern California 4, Florida State 3, Florida State eliminated
Texas 6, Penn State 4, 10 innings, Penn State eliminated
THURSDAY'S GAMES
Missouri vs. Southern California
Arizona vs. Texas

Jolly Plumbing Scores Upset Over Favorite Navajo Hogan

Sometimes it pays not to play.

That's what league-leading Bernardo's found out as they increased their margin atop the City Softball League standings Wednesday night altho idle.

Navajo Hogan, Bernardo's closest competitor so far this season, was whipped by Jolly Plumbing in one of the biggest upsets of the summer, 4-3, to give every club in the loop except Bernardo's at least two losses. In other City League play, Lorig's evened up its record at 2-2 with a 6-1 triumph over Budweiser.

Meanwhile in the Industrial League, Aircraft Mechanics dropped its first of the season with City Utilities coming from behind in the seventh inning to win, 6-5. And Denver Equipment kept in the running to top honors this year with a 15-2 slaughter of Clifton Precision.

That left Bernardo's in the City League and Telephone Co. in the Industrial both pacing their groups with 4-0 records. Tonight a limited slate is on hand with all play in the Industrial. Aircraft Mechanics will meet Burrough's in a 7 p.m. contest and City Utilities clashes with winless I.T.U. in the nightcap. Field No. 4 at Memorial Park will be used for YMCA-Church League games tonight.

Pitcher LeRoy Long singled home Don McInany with the winning run with two out in the last of the seventh to give Jolly Plumbing its 4-3 upset over the Hogans. Plumber Paul Finch had erased a 3-0 Hogan lead with an inside-the-park three-run homer in the fifth following singles by Archie Scott and Don Yeakel to ruin the shutout hurling of Hogans' Casey Rathbun.

The Navajo nine scored all three of its runs in the first two innings with left fielder Walt Englehardt accounting for the lone Hogan run in the second with a solo blast over the left field fence.

In the second game, Lorig's exploded for six runs in the fifth and sixth innings to dump Budweiser, 6-1. Bob Cinch tossed a six-hitter to stop the Brewers who went down to their third loss in four decisions. Lorig's is now tied with the Hogans for second at 2-2.

Lorig's knocked starter Al Viel off the mound with a four-run uprising in the fifth as the clothing crew sent eight men to the plate. Viel had thrown three-hit shutout ball thru the first four frames.

Dick Skidmore doubled home the winning tally in the last of the seventh to give City Utilities its win. His double followed two Aircraft errors which allowed Willis Roe and Bob Campbell to reach base.

Denver Equipment capitalized on walks and errors to score nine runs in the first inning and six more in the second to smother Clifton. The Equipment nine sent 13 men to the plate in the initial frame and 11 in the second to easily to take their third win in four outings. Clifton lost their second straight of the season.

British Open Exempt List

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (UPI)—Six Americans are among the 44 golfers who will not have to qualify for this year's British Open championship at the Royal Lytham and St. Anne's links, July 10-12.

The exempt list announced Wednesday night is headed by Arnold Palmer of Latrobe, Pa., winner of the last two tournaments, and fellow Yank Jack Nicklaus, the leading money-winner on the current U.S. pro tour.

The qualifying rounds for 76 other spots will be held on July 8-9.

O'Toole Gets 11th Win; Dodgers Regain Lead

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

That star strutting at the head of baseball's big parade is Jim O'Toole, who couldn't even make the rear ranks as a kid pitcher.

Cincinnati's prize southpaw, bounced out of an amateur league in his teens btcause of a scattergun arm and shunned by several teams in the majors after tryouts, has added another victory as the biggest winner in the big leagues.

Firing a three-hitter, O'Toole pitched the Reds over Pittsburgh 3-0 Wednesday night for his 11th triumph.

It was the 26-year-old left-hander's second shutout in a row and fifth of the season—and it gave Cincinnati a vital boost in the National League race. The Reds are in fifth place, but only 2½ games off the pace.

The Los Angeles Dodgers regained a slender lead with a 9-1 rout of Houston that put them .002 ppoints ahead of San Francisco and St. Louis. The Giants beat fourth-place Chicago 3-1 on Willie McCovey's two homers and Bob Bolin's strong pitching, while Philadelphia knocked the Cardinals out of first, 6-2.

In the other NL game, Lew Burdette, Milwaukees expendable right-hander, threw a three-hitter and Hank Aaron slugged in five runs in the Braves' 9-0 romp against the New York Mets.

O'Toole struck it rich with the pitching-poor Reds when he was signed to a $50,000 bonus six years ago. Now in his fifth full season with the club, he shows a current record of 11-3 and a earned run average of 2.07.

He again showed his control improvement in blanking the Pirates. He did not allow a single walk.

Frank Robinson keyed the Reds' decisive two-run fourth inning by doubling in Vada Pinson, stealig third and scoring on a force play. Pinson singled in the other run in the fifth. Earl Francis was the loser.

Maury Wills continued his spectacular batting for the Dodgers, rapping out three singles and a double against the Colts for 16 hits in his last 23 tries. Tommy Davis went 3-for-3 in the Dodgers' 13-hit assault, Ron Fairly knocked in three runs, and Dick Tracewski hit his first major league homer.

Lefty Johnny Podres was tagged for 10 Colt hits but struck out nine and did not allow a walk. He's now 4-5, while loser Don Nottebart, who hasn't won since his no-hitter against Philadelphia May 17, dropped to 5-4.

McCovey whacked his homers off Bob Buhl, with one on in the first inning and none on in the third. Bolin, ace reliever turned starter, limited the Cubs to four hits and struck out 14—highest for a Giant pitcher since the club moved west from Ne w York in 1958.

The Phils had three-run innings off Cardinals starter Ron Taylor and veteran reliever Bobby Shantz. Tony Gonzalez and Clay Dalrymple batted across two runs each for Philadelphia.

Art Mahaffey ended a personal six-game losing string with relief help from John Boozer and won his third against eight setbacks.

Burdette, 36-year-old Brave right-hander who is on the trading block, gave tht punchless Mets only three singles for his sixth victory. Aaron warmed up with a two-run single in the third inning that opened the scoring, then belted his 18th homer with two aboard in the fourth. Galen Cisco, 3-6 was the loser.

Braves Would Like to Unload Lew Burdette

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves are hurting at the gate and they'd like to unload veteran Lew Burdette and his hefty salary. However, the fidgety right-hander is putting the brass in somewhat of a bind.

Burdette laughed at trade talk in a pitcher's best manner Wednesday night as he allowed only three harmless singles in a 9-0 victory over the New York Mets.

"To heck with the trading business," the 36-year-old Burdette said. "I just want to pitch regularly."

The Braves asked waivers on Burdette only last month. The waivers were recalled when the St. Louis Cardinals expressed a willingness to accept fidgety Lew's reported salary of $50,000.

Burdette, whose 179 major league victories include six in 11 decisions this year, admitted that he couldn't "help but think a little about all the trade talk."

"You hear rumors every year, but this is the first time I think I've ever been really involved in serious discussion," he said. "I can do only one thing — go out there and do my best. I have a lot of pitching left and I can't let trade rumors rattle me."

Said Milwaukee Manager Bobby Bragan: "If he pitches like that, he has to be in the untouchable class."

U. S.-Russian Track Meet to Be Aired

NEW YORK (UPI)—The track and field meet between the United States and Russia from Moscow's Lenin Stadium on July 21 and 22 will be televised in the United States on videotape by the American Broadcasting Company. Highlights of the meet will be shown July 23.

A-State Coach Takes New Job

ALAMOSA, Colo. (UPI)— Successful Adams State College football coach Darrell E. Mudra, 32, announced Wednesday he was resigning to become director of athletics, professor of physical education, and head football coach at the North Dakota State University.

Mudra, who has guided teams to three Rocky Mountain Conference football championships in his four years here, compiled a record of 32 wins, four losses and one tie. The team last year won the Mineral Water Bowl Game at Excelsior Springs, Mo.

His successor has been named.

Denver Reported To Be at Top in Crime Class

DENVER (UPI) — An FBI report showed here that Denver headed its population class in the number of robberies, burglaries and auto thefts during 1962 and the first three months of 1963.

The city ranked from second to fifth in the murder, rape and assault classifications.

The report said that Denver had 7,248 burglaries last year, 1,181 higher than the next highest total among the eight cities of comparable size with Denver. Second was Kansas City, Mo., with 5,337.

Denver had 1,778 burglaries during the first three months of this year, followed by Atlanta with 1,419.

1962 robberies in Denver totaled 1,308, trailed by Kansas City again with 1,069. Robberies during January, February and March totaled 365, followed by Kansas City with 24.

In auto thefts, Denver showed 4,157 during 1962, and 999 for the first quarter of this year. Atlanta was second.

Denver had 38 murders last year for fourth place. Atlanta was first with 84. During the first quarter of 1963, Denver has had 12 murders; Atlanta 17.

MY ANSWER

by Billy Graham

© 1963 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: Do you really believe that there is a hell? I cannot somehow believe that there is one because the Bible teachers so clearly that God is a God of love, and I cannot understand how a God of love could send people to hell. —J. R.

ANSWER: Anyone who accepts the teaching of the Bible is confronted with the fact that there is a teaching concerning hell. The Bible does not locate this place, but it certainly does make it clear that it is a place of judgment. The truth is—Jesus Himself, who is the most perfect expression of unselfish love the world has ever seen, had more to say about "hell" than any other individual in the entire Bible. He spoke in Matthew 7:13 of the wide gate and the broad way that leads to destruction, and told that "many" would go in through that gate. He also said in Matthew 8:12 that wherever this place called hell might be, it is known as a place of "outer darkness" where there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

In the day of judgment Christ says that angels who are God's instrument of judgment are going to "sever the wicked from the just, and cast them into the furnace of fire, where there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth" (Matthew 13:51).

But all of these references to hell do not mean that God is not a God of love. Had He not sent His Son into the world to save sinners, we might then say that the presence of hell indicates that He is not a God of love. But He has done all that possibly can be done to deliver every sinner from hell. He has done all but deprive the individual of his freedom of choice. Every person who is in hell in this life or in the life to come is there by his own deliberate choice. In the words of Moses of old the truth can still be expresesd, "Choose you this day whom ye will serve."

QUESTION: I believe in tithing, but I also believe that God will hold us responsible for the way our tithe is spent. Should we give our tithe to the local church when it is spent on costly parsonages and high salaries? —R. M.

ANSWER: In the first place you don't "give" your tithe: you pay it. "The tithe is the Lord's," says the Bible.

You, and everyone else, should belong to a church you believe in, and the dispensing of the tithe should be left to those in authority. We are to give 'cheerfully', and not begrudgingly, trusting our brethren to do that which is right in the sight of the Lord.

I sense a bit of envy in the words, "Costly parsonages and high salaries." Remember, it is a credit to a church to provide adequately for those who lead them in spiritual matters—though it would be wrong for a minister to demand better conveniences and a higher salary than those whom he serves.

Keep in mind that if you don't like the policies of the church where you belong there may be other churches which conform more to your standards. No minister that I know would want to keep a member who is dissatisfied with his church's policies.

Salt Lake City Squeezes Past Denver

By TE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Spokane Indians aren't just knocking on the door. They're whacking away at it with one of the most dangerous bats in the Pacific Coast League.

The bat belongs to Al Ferrara, league runs-batted-in leader, who pounded three runs across the plate Wednsday night when the Indians routed the Seattle Rainiers 12-6.

The thuds were heard all the way to Portland, where the Tacoma Giants—present occupants of the Northern Division leader suite—were edged 4-3 by the Beavers. The decisions chopped the Giants' lead over the Indians to 2½ games.

Elsewhere, Dallas-Fort Worth improved its Southern Division lead when it outslugged San Diego 7-4, Hawaii topped Oklahoma City 7-5 and Salt Lake City squeezed by Denver 5-4.

Ferrara knocked in two of his runs with a single in Spokane's seven-run eighth inning. Red Graber also hit a two-run single in the eighth and Lib Julian singled twice in the same frame.

Portland got the edge on Tacoma with Jose Tartabull's one-run single with two out in the bottom of the ninth. Tacoma won the home run contest with bases-empty clouts by Jerry Robinson and Don Gile. Bill Kern homered for Portland.

Both the Padres and the Rangers had four home runs. It was the fifth loss in a row for San Diego.

Salt Lake smacked 12 hits, including five doubles, in downing the Bears. Denver took an early lead, but the Bees went ahead to stay with a three-run seventh.

Three 89er hurlers were rapped for 14 hits as the Islanders posted their 7-5 victory.

'Weaker' Sex Takes Over Golf's Spotlight

The month of July this year is expected to produce the best golf in the history of Colorado — at least from the side of the "weaker" sex. Two of the nation's top four tournaments will be held this summer in the Centennial state and distaff golfers from thruout the country will be competing.

The top two tournaments will be the Women's Western, slated for July 8-13 at the Broadmoor Course in Colorado Springs, and following right on its heels will be another of the gals' outstanding tournaments, the Women's Trans-Mississippi.

This summer the Trans-Miss will be held at the Pinehurst Country Club in Littleton, a suburb of Denver, on July 22 thru 27.

Entries have been pouring in for the Western Amateur at the Broadmoor, and also for the Broadmoor Women's Invitational, which is scheduled just the week before on the colorful hillside course near Cheyenne Mountain. With the Western following so closely, it's expected that many nationally-known golfers will enter both tournaments.

Officials of the Trans-Mississippi at Pinehurst have just announced requirements for entering that tournament, which should draw a field of 144 contestants representing every state in the Union.

Qualifications include the requirements that the entrant be a member of a golf club belonging to the Women's Trans-Mississippi Golf Association. The entrant must also have no more than a maximum handicap of 15, rated by the USGA as of May 1 this year.

The Trans-Miss has three divisions — Championship, Senior for women who will admit to being over 50, and Junior, for entrants 18 and under. Last year's winner was Jeannie Thompson of Tulsa and the runnerup was Ann Casey Johnston of Wichita, who competed on the U. S. team in the Curtis Cup Matches at the Broadmoor.

Registration for the Trans-Miss will close at 1 p.m. on Saturday, July 20. For additional information concerning registration in the Trans-Miss, golfers should contact Mrs. Edward Safford, 445 Christmas Tree Dr., Boulder, Colo.

Turley's One Hitter Tumbles Chicago From Atop AL

CHICAGO (AP)—Once a Yankee, always Yankee—as far as the Chicago White Sox were concerned today.

Bob Turley, once a 21-game winner for the Yankees, hurled a one-hitter at Comiskey Park Wednesday night to tumble the White Sox from first place in a twin bill split with the Los Angeles Angels.

Turley's masterpiece—he had a budding no-hitter spoiled by Pete Ward's clean single to center in the sixth inning—came in a 5-0 Los Angeles nightcap triumph after Johnny Buzhardt's three-hitter gave the Sox a 3-1 opening victory.

The split, coupled with New York's 3-2 10-inning decisions over Baltimore, nudged the Yankees one percentage point ahead of the White Sox, .577 to .576.

Turley, signed by the Angels this spring after he was conditionally purchased from the Yankees in October, achieved his 100th victory of his major league career with the one-hitter.

His only previous triumph this season against five defeats was a three-hit, 2-0 shutout of Minnesota on May 7.

Turley recalled this was "my third or fourth one-hitter."

Ward belted a "good, low slinder" for the only Sox hit Wednesday night, Turley said, adding: "He didn't meet the ball clean, or it would have been lofted higher and been caught."

Only One All-Star Game This Year

NEW YORK (AP) — In small circles around major league baseball dugouts, players, coaches and managers were discussing today how to single out the top players for starting berths in the 1963 All-Star baseball game at Cleveland, July 9.

The little knots began to form with notification Wednesday from the office of Commissioner Ford Frick that polling of the clubs for the All-Star classic would be held the week of June 21-27. Only one All-Star game will be played this year. For the past four years, two have been played.

The voting will determine the starting teams, with the exceptions of pitchers. The hurlers and the remainder of the 25-man squads will be picked by the managers, Al Dark of the National League and Ralph Houk of the American.

Women's Open Golf Tourney Set July 1-3

NEW YORK (UPI) — The 1965 Women's Open golf championship will be held at the Atlantic City Country Club at Northfield, N.J., July 1-3. This year's tourney is scheduled for the Kenwood Country Club in Cincinnati and the 1964 championship at the San Diego Country Club, Chula Vista, Calif.

Yankees Farm Hands Tally Win in International Loop

By United Press International

It was almost like the Yankees playing the Mets.

Many of the names were the same and only the uniforms were different as the Richmond Virginians edged the Buffalo Bisons 4-3 in 10 innings in an International League game Wednesday night.

Pedro Gonzalez, being groomed for a spot in the Yankee infield, and Don Buddin, also Yankee property, slammed home runs for the Virginians while former Mets Ted Schreiber and Marv Throneberry connected for Buffalo. Buddin's homer came in the 10th inning and accounted for the winning run.

On the pitching side, Tex Clevenger and Roland Sheldon, both of whom started the season in New York, worked for Richmond and Met armhands Steve Dillon, Ray Daviault, Babe Bierrer and Bill Hunter toiled for the Bisons. Sheldon gained his second straight victory after three defats and Hunter was the loser.

The Indianapolis Indians turned back the Columbus Jets 7-4 behind the combined pitching of Joe Shipley and Verle Tiefenthaler while Jacksonville at Syracuse, Atlanta at Rochester and Arkansas at Toronto all were postponed because of bad weather.

The standings:

Northern Division	W.	L.	Pct.	GB

British Bookies Give Clay Nod

LONDON (AP) — A British bookie analyzed the training form of Cassius Clay and British heavyweight champion Henry Cooper today and made the brash American a 1-5 favorite to win their fight at outdoor Wembley Stadium next Tuesday.

Charles James Woolgar said: "Boxing is unpredictable and Cooper could get in that left hook of his to shake Clay. He could knock out Clay with that one punch. But I must make Clay the favorite."

Thunderbird Classic

138-Man Field Shoots For $100,000 Purse

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Gary Player, one of the top favorites in the $100,000 Thunderbird Classic starting today, says too much importance is put on the dollar mark and not enough on the scorecard in bigtime golf.

"It's getting so players are judged not by how many tournaments they win or how well they play, but how much official money they collect," the articulate little South African said. "It is an unfair and inaccurate gauge.

"Why, a fellow could win four of the bigger tournaments, with first prizes of $25,000 each, and make $100,000. He might be the leading money winner although other players have competed in more tournaments and compiled a better scoring average.

"The only true gauge of a player's ability is the scoring.

Player, one of the game's current Big Three which also includes Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, tees off in the first round of the Thunderbird tournament over the 6,550-yard, par-70 Westchester Country Club course. He is paired with Palmer.

Nicklaus, the 23-year-old Masters and U.S. Open champion, goes off later with Bob Rosburg and Paul Runyan.

They are the big names in the 138-man field, which includes a trio of red-hot menaces in Julius Boros, winner of the Buick Open last weekend; Tony Lema, who has been dogging the footsteps of the big three, and steady Dow Finsterwald, playing at the peak of his game. Ben Hogan, now 50, is added dressing.

Nicklaus currently is leading the money list with earnings of $57,615, followed by Lema, $49,006; Boros, $43,325, and Player, $39,067.

Player, 27, leading money winner in 1961 is determined to win the U.S. Open, and he's convinced he'll do it — maybe this year, at Brookline Mass, next week.

"It's the last leg of my goal," he said. "I've won the Masters, British Open and PGA. I've finished second in the Open but I must win it. I like the Country Club at Brookline and I am playing very well. This may be my year."

Hobby of Magic Is Used by Clergymen

By BEN LAIME

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—There's magic in the Protestant ministry today—and it's helping the clerics' work.

During a recent convention of the Society of American Magicians, several Protestant clergymen explained how they are using their hobby of magic in religion.

The Rev. Robert C. Anderson, a captain in the Chaplain Corps of the U.S. Army stationed at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., said magic and religion are more compatible than most people realize.

He illustrated his point by "transforming" three separate silk handkerchiefs into one large, handsome scarf imprinted with a butterfly.

"This illusion," said Chaplain Anderson, "has helped me show individuals how they could change aimless, fragmented lives into lives of personal worth and of service to the community."

Maj. Wayne Lockhart of the Salvation Army, another of the magi-ministers, changed a black silk handkerchief into white in his magic red velvet bag.

"This is a simple, yet very instructive way to show a person how he can change his life for the good," Maj. Lockhart said. "This is a particularly popular trick in my prison visiting."

Other ministers who are members of the society said they use their magic to entertain hospital patients and in parish use for Sunday School sessions and church parties.

"Magic is particularly good for children," one minister said. "But you'd be surprised how old the children can be, church-goers or not."

Film Society to See 'Passionate Summer'

"Passionate Summer," A French dialog with English subtitles film, will be shown by the Film Society at its meeting at 8 p.m. Friday, at the Fine Arts Center. The showing is open to the public with admission at the door.

Raf Vallone stars in this tale of passion set in the mountains of southern France, where three French women live alone until a handsome Italian peasant comes to their farm. Each of the lonely women desires him, and secret love leads to jealousy and near tragedy in the isolated house. Uge Betti, who wrote the play from which this film was adapted, is considered in his native Italy to be second only to Pirandello.

Directed by Charles Brabant, photography by Sechan ("The Red Balloon" and "The Silent World"), "Passionate Summer," produced in 1956, has been called "the year's best foreign film" by the New York Daily Mirror.

A short, "Surprise Boogie," an abstract animation, will also be shown.

Dear Abby--
By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Darned Careless!

DEAR ABBY: There is a man in our crowd who is loaded with money, but we have never seen him without holes in the heels of his socks. He has many pairs of socks, but they "all" have holes in the heels. He's not careless about the rest of his attire. He wears tailor-made suits, and expensive shirts, but his holey socks spoil his appearance. Should we write his wife an anonymous letter telling her to do something about it? —ED'S FRIENDS

DEAR FRIENDS: If Ed has holes in "all" his socks, he knows they're there and doesn't care. Leave his wife alone. She apparently doesn't give a darn.

DEAR ABBY: I know you have had many screwball people write to you, but I assure you I am not one of them. I want to do something to benefit mankind and I can't think of anything better than to give my life for scientific research. If you know of any institution that wants a live, healthy body for a scientific experiment, please let me know. I hope you will not print my name because I have already shocked enough people with my ambition. I am dead serious. —HUNTSVILLE

DEAR HUNTSVILLE: You may be "dead" serious—but you are still very much alive. I know of "no" institution that would accept your generous offer.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is going to be an usher at a wedding soon. I know that an usher is expected to "look after" a bridesmaid, but where do I come in? We're out-of-towners, and I know no one on either side, so I'll have to go to the wedding alone. At the reception, am I supposed to sit and watch my husband dance with the bridesmaid all evening? Also, the night before the wedding there is a rehearsal supper party. I am not invited to that, but my husband will escort the bridesmaid. One of the other ushers is married, but "his" wife is a bridesmaid, so she'll be included in everything. Am I supposed to forget that I'm married during the wedding festivities, and let my husband run wild with his bridesmaid? —SIZLING

DEAR SIZLING: Your husband's role as a husband takes priority over that of an usher. And his role as a "man" should justify his asking the bride and groom where his wife comes in.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Herman": One Frenchman put it very well. He said, "There is no such thing as a 'pretty good' omelet".

Woman Kidnaper to Face Arraignment

DENVER (UPI)—A young Utah divorcee charged with kidnaping a teen-ager and forcing him to drive her 500 miles to Denver will be arraigned in U.S. District Court here June 21, it was reported Tuesday.

Mrs. Carol Jacobsen, 21-year-old mother of three children, was charged last Friday, the day after she walked into police headquarters here and allegedly confessed abducting Lyle W. Dyet, 18, at gunpoint. She was jailed after failing to post a $10,000 bond.

Police said Mrs. Jacobsen told them she robbed a service station near Salt Lake City. Afterwards, police said, Mrs. Jacobsen told them she forced Dyet, the attendant at the service station, to drive her away.

Mrs. Jacobsen reportedly told police she decided not to kill the teen-ager when they arrived at Denver. Instead, she said she decided to surrender to authorities.

Water from covered sources, such as a well or storage tanks, is safe for livestock in case of nuclear fallout.

HOW IT STARTED

When we are said to be "turned down" when we are not allowed to do something, it comes from an allusion to the old English custom of turning a glass upside down when no more drink is desired.

Facilities and School Teachers Are Demanded

LAMAR (UPI)— President William McDivitt of Otero Junior College in La Junta said Tuesday the state's most important problem facing Colorado colleges and universities was acquiring facilities and teachers.

McDivitt gave his opinions on was not getting correct programs for students.

Mcadivitt gave his opinions on higher education in the state at a grass roots meeting held here by Gov. John Love and other high-ranking state officials.

He said the push for more senior colleges and universities has been a push for more of the same type of education and increasing numbers of students with little regard to changing programs to meet the needs of a changing and demanding society.

"Parents," McDivitt said, "want the best for their children and quite obviously the best is the University of Colorado. Little does it matter that 6,000 students during a three-year period dropped from the university for one reason or another. Such waste in industry would cause some firms to close their doors," he said.

He also said the junior college program appeared to be the single best answer to diversifying programs in Colorado.

Green Mountain Falls News

By CAROLYN McADAMS — MU 7-9065

A special chartered bus left Green Mountain Falls at 6:15 a.m. Wednesday, June 5, to take those attending the graduation exercises at the Air Force Academy and to hear President John F. Kennedy address the some 503 graduates. Tickets had been issued the Brockhurst Boys Ranch and members of the Woodland Park Lions Club. Sixteen boys with their four counselors, headed by Mr. Frank Van Arsdale, made the trip. Others in the party were Mrs. Van Arsdale and family, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jooes and granddaughter Dena Hageman, Mr. and Mrs. Lucky Moore, Mrs. Lorraine Martin, Mrs. Helen Quinn, Mrs. Carolyn Houchin, Mr. and Mrs. Everet Sharpe, Mr. and Mrs. Dar Elder and nephew Mike Elder, Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Salisbury, Mrs. Doris Rerick and Mrs. Tina Warner. The bus passengers enjoyed a sack lunch at Thornton Park on the way back home.

At the last board meeting of the fiscal year, at the Brockhurst Boys Ranch, the Woodland Park Lions Club reported nine delegates attending the business meetings at the recent State Convention of Colorado Lions, held at the Broadmoor International Center, and 14 members present at the District banquet. Colorado boasts 58 Lions Clubs, with a membership of 7,500 and in our own District, 6-S, E., there are 32 clubs with just under 2,000 members.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Lynch hosted the June 5 dinner meeting of the Past Presidents Club of Lions and Lionesses held at the Cameo Room, Mediation Apartment Hotel, in Colorado Springs. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Dar Elder, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Garde, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bush, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harbour, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Quinn and Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Jackson.

The regular executive board meeting of the Ute Pass Community Association was held June 3, Mrs. Sallie Bush presiding. The annual vacation recreation activities have been scheduled to start June 26, with the first game night at 8 p.m. This will continue on every Wednesday night, the Friday evening picture nights will begin July 5 and the summer dances will start July 6, 13, 20, then skip July 27 for the annual Lions Carnival, with dances continuing every Saturday night thru August.

Twelve persons have enrolled in the eight-week course, "Advantages in Adult Education," in Security Analysis, conducted by Mr. Bill Edgar, resident manager of Peters Writer and Christensen, who will hold classes for those in the Ute Pass area at Herman's Girls Ranch, on the Rampart Range Road, out of Woodland Park. Ric Herman may be contacted for further information. The classes will be held every Wednesday night at 8 p.m.

Mr. Ronald White graduated June 7, with a Bachelor of Science degree at Fort Collins State University. Mrs. Ronald White; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene White, his parents and Elaine White, his sister, attended the graduating ceremony.

Mrs. Sallie Bush, teacher of the Junior High class, Church in the Wildwood, took members of her Sunday School class on a tour of the penitentiary in Canon City June 6. Mrs. Ruby Lee Thomson drove the second car, leaving at 10 a.m. and returning at 4:30 p.m. A sack lunch was enjoyed in Canon City Park. Those going on the trip were Terry, Linda and Betsy Thomson, Elaine White, Linda Houchin, Elizabeth Pole, Judy Lofland, Layne Van Arsdale and Mike Pickett.

Mrs. Ruth Roth, general chairman for the annual fair of the Women's Fellowship held a planning meeting, Thursday, June 6, in Fellowship Hall at 11 a.m. with chairmen of the various booths. Mrs. Maxine Haynes, will be in charge of the luncheon and dinner served during the day of the fair, scheduled for Wednesday, July 10, in the Community Building. Other chairmen present were Betty Reasonover, Carolyn McAdams, Florence Salisbury, Hermine Bucher, Laura Jones, Margaret Quinn, Doris Rerick, Lorraine Martin, Martha Gudereit, Lena Bartling, Anna Walters and Alice Palmer. A cook book of "Fellowship Favorite Recipes" has been published and is ready for sale this week.

Mayor John Haynes, of Green Mountain Falls has posted bulletins announcing water restrictions for residents of the town, with permission to water lawns and shrubs between 6-8 a.m. and 6-8 p.m. on alternate days, with none on the 31st of the month. Running hose for washing automobiles, walks and driveways is not permitted. This ruling conforms with that of the Colorado Springs utilities department.

At the bi-monthly meeting of the Town Council, June 3, it was voted to purchase a new steel mesh net for the tennis court. The shuffleboard court, ball diamond and playgrounds maintained by the town are being repaired and for summer use. The public swimming pool will open Saturday, June [illegible] continuing [illegible] days a week [illegible] and [illegible] swimmers [illegible] and [illegible] for [illegible] Pool [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] pool [illegible] Searcy, Ark., in "Razorback Rest". Mrs. Harold Wilber with Mrs. Ruth Wilber Kulik, of Denver, in their "Wildsore Hill Cabin" on Hondo Hill. Miss Gladys Irwin, of Wichita, with her sister, Mrs. Opal Tindle, of Oklahoma City, in Pine Rest. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Knight, of Border, Tex., in the Jack and Jill Hill cottage. Mrs. V. E. Bryan, Oklahoma City, occupying Shady Pines Cabin. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Taylor, of Great Bend, Kan., in "Weonit". Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farr of Bartlesville, Okla., in the "Miner's Cabin". Mr. and Mrs. Max Noble, of Wichita, have opened their Ha-Le' Mauna residence.

Cigarettes Produce Disease, Doc Says

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—The president-elect of the American Medical Association says there is no question in his mind that cigarette smoking is the greatest producer of preventable disease.

Dr. Edward R. Annis of Miami, Fla. emphasized in an interview with the Evening Bulletin Wednesday that he was speaking as an individual physician in warning against the health dangers of cigarette smoking.

But, he said he is "absolutely in favor" of a resolution which his own medical society is planning to present at next week's annual meeting of the AMA calling for a stepped up campaign of youth education concerning "respiratory and other diseases produced by cigarette smoking."

Annis was in Providence to address a luncheon sponsored by the Greater Providence Chamber of Commerce.

Movie Star Decides To Become Nun

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Delores Hart, who says her decision was not a hasty one, is giving up one of Hollywood's most promising careers to become a Roman Catholic nun.

The blonde actress, a 1948 convert to the Catholic faith, was quoted Wednesday as telling a friend: "I am not leaving anyone or anything behind. I am taking a full and grateful heart with me."

Miss Hart, 24, already has entered an unnamed Connecticut convent, her press representative disclosed.

HUGE KATYDIDS

There are giant katydids in the tropics. Some of these species reach a length of five or six inches, with their forewings 2½ inches wide and when they fly, they resemble small birds.

Denver Man Pays $30 Fine In Justice Court

A Denver man, James Robert Masters, 49, paid a $30 fine and costs in Justice of the Peace H. E. McShane's court Wednesday for driving a vehicle with no breakaway brake and parking on a grade without setting his brakes. The violation happened May 22 on U.S. Highway 85-87 and the officer was State Patrolman C. W. Hubbard.

A Canadian visitor, Norman E. Westergreen, 19, of Brant, Alberta, received a fine of $20 and costs for careless driving on Colorado Highway 25 Wednesday. Paul H. Cornell of the state patrol was the ticketing officer.

State Patrolman Lloyd M. Car- others cited Amie Irene Williams, 54, of 717 Manitou Av. as she failed to comply with the inspection law and had no valid operator's license when driving on 8th Street June 2. A $15 fine and costs was imposed.

Riding a bicycle on the wrong side of Acacia Drive June 8 cost Stuart Adair Gray, 15, of 7 Cragmor Village $6 and costs. Ken Smith of the state patrol issued the ticket.

Smith also ticketed Charles Albert McCoy, 72, of 3030 Wood Ave. and charged him with improper starting from the parked position. The violation happened on Acacia Drive June 8. He was fined $6 and costs.

Deputy Sheriff Jack Ames cited Richard M. Brewer, with having no operator's license. Brewer received the ticket June 1 in Security and paid a $6 fine with costs.

Mrs. Kennedy's Doctor Inspects Hospital

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy's personal physician made a quick trip to Cape Cod Wednesday to inspect maternity facilities at Cape Cod Hospital and the Otis Air Force Base Hospital.

Dr. John Walsh was accompanied by Dr. Janet Travel, the president's personal physician. Mrs. Kennedy is expecting her third child.

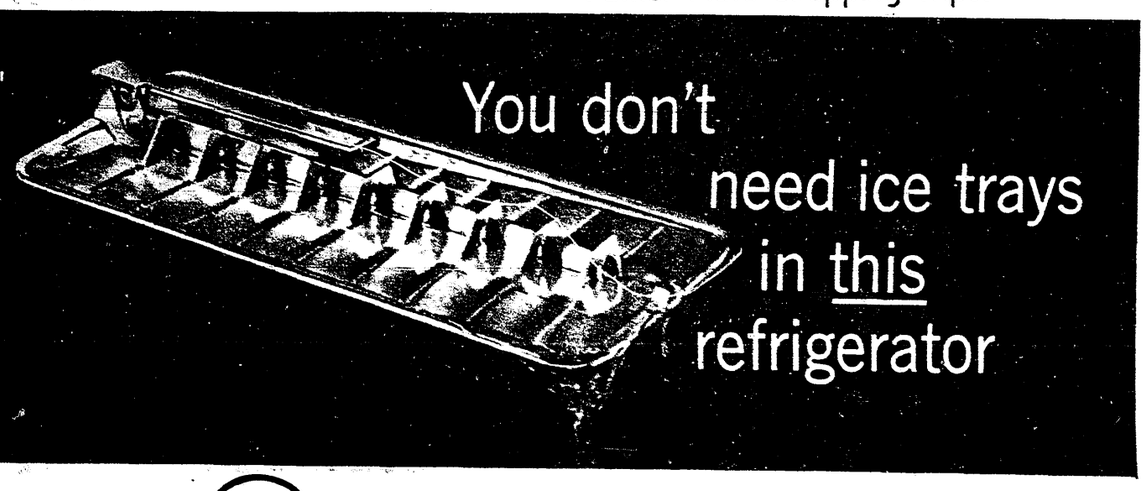

After visiting the two hospitals, Dr. Walsh and Dr. Travel returned immediately to Washington by plane.

Flat Areas Are Claimed for Mars

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet scientists reported Tuesday that a 62-million mile radar probe of Mars showed sizable flat areas on the planet's surface.

The news agency Tass said the probe was made last February. It said the radio waves took over 11 minutes to travel to Mars and back.

Tass said the results of the experiment were compared with earlier radar scannings of the planets Venus and Mercury.

NOT THAT HOT

KANSAS CITY, Mo (UPI)—The temperature reached 87 degrees Tuesday in Kansas City.

A police dispatcher said it wasn't so hot for this time of year and immediately sent a car to arrest a man reported mowing his lawn in the nude.

More Buddhist Demonstrations Are Predicted

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Buddhist demonstrations against the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem are expected to increase despite an appeal for calm by the embattled President.

Some of the Buddhist anger also is directed at the United States because American weapons, furnished for the war against Communist guerrillas, have been turned on Buddhists accusing the government of religious persecution.

Diem, a Roman Catholic, told the aroused South Vietnamese people Tuesday night he was "very sorry" about the torch suicide of a 73-year-old Buddhist monk in downtown Saigon.

Faced with one of the gravest crises in his eight-year rule, the 62-year-old president promised resumption today or negotiations on Buddhist demands for more religious freedom and social reforms.

He blamed extremists for arousing public opinion against his government with false propaganda. "I solemnly declare that, behind Buddhism in this country, there is the constitution—which means I myself," he said.

About 80 per cent of South Viet Nam's 15 million people are Buddhists, but the government is dominated by Diem's Catholic family.

Buddhist leaders, committed by their religion to non-violent action, threatened to call on lay followers to join in demonstrations "with all the violent consequences that probably would follow."

One monk threatened to disembowel himself publicly if Buddhist demands were not met.

Prayer services were scheduled at Buddhist pagodas throughout the country Sunday. It was feared these would produce more incidents.

The U.S. Embassy, trying to steer a neutral course, instructed American families to stay indoors.

The Buddhists appealed for help from the International Red Cross, the United Nations and President Kennedy.

The Buddhists demand equal status with the Catholic Church, permission to display their religious flags and indemnities for the dead and wounded in a clash May 8 that sparked the religious-political crisis.

Demonstrations and clashes with police and troops have occurred frequently in the weeks since.

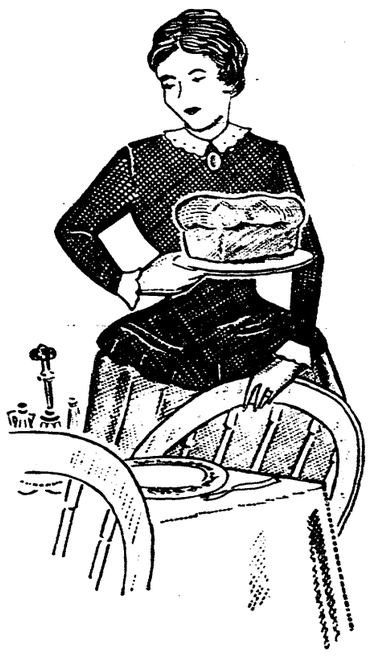

ZOO SCORES FIRST

DUNSTABLE, England (UPI)—Whipsnade Zoo has hatched European white storks for the first time — on top of a tall, imitation chimney.

Civil Rights Legislative Program Outlined by JFK

By HARRY KELLY

HINGTON (AP) — Presi- Kennedy has warned the that discrimination against es has lighted "fires of ation and discord" that en lives and the public

President outlined a broad itive program he will pro- to Congress next week. He it will be based on the sition "that race has no in American life or law." reat change is at hand, he and "our task, our obliga- is to make that revolution, change, peaceful and con- ive for all."

nedy appeared Tuesday eve- on radio and television in eside civil rights lecture to icans of both North and only hours after Alabama George C Wallace bowed to al pressure and stepped to let two Negro students ter at the previously all- University of Alabama

But this is not the case." nnedy, declaring that Amer- faces "a moral crisis as a try and as a people," said vill ask Congress to make a rights commitment "it has fully made in this century." e President said he will pro- legislation that would:

Prohibit stores, hotels, res- ants and theaters from dis- inating against Negroes.

Allow the federal government take a more active part in t suits aimed at desegregat- public schools

Afford greater protection for roes' right to vote.

cknowledging the new laws not enough, Kennedy said, ever, that in too many parts he country wrongs are inflict- on Negroes because they have remedies at law—and "unless Congress acts, their only edy is the street."

n Congress, leaders of both ties promised to put their ulders to the wheel.

I recognize that Congress has esponsibility in this field," said ate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen, "and there should be ne action in this session on ef- tive civil rights legislation. To s end I will devote my best orts."

enate Democratic Leader Mike nsfield predicted, "We'll have il rights legislation at this ses- n and it looks like we will be session for the remainder of year." House Speaker John McCormack, D-Mass., said the esident's speech "would have eat weight with the country as ell as Congress."

But from a southern Democrat me warnings of filibuster and olence.

"If the President tries to en- rce his legislative proposals I ink it will mean violence," said n. Allen J. Ellender, D-La.

Noting a statement by an offi- al of the Southern Christian eadership Conference that Ne- roes would stage civil disobedi- ice demonstrations in Washing- n if southern senators filibuster gainst civil rights legislation. llender said:

"The threat I just heard tonight hat the Negroes will be in the reets if there is a filibuster— hich there will be—will mean a t of bloodshed. I'm sorry this what is in store—more vio- nce, bloodshed without ques- ion."

In Birmingham, Ala., which as torn by racial strife last nonth, the Rev. Martin Luther ing Jr. disclosed a telegram he ent to Kennedy which praised the President's speech as "one of the nost eloquent, profound and un- equivocal pleas for justice and freedom of all men ever made by any president."

Sitting behind his desk and us-violence flared in Cambridge, Md., 85 miles east of the capital. Two white men were wounded by shotgun blasts as whites and Negroes skirmished. Bricks flew and fires broke out in three white business places.

Said Kennedy: "The fires of frustration and discord are burning in every city, north nd South, where legal remedies are not at hand. Redress is sought in the streets, in demonstrations, parades and protests which create tensions and threaten violence and threaten lives."

Kennedy said the crisis cannot be met by repressive police action, left to more demonstrations or quieted by token moves.

"It is time to act in the Congress, in your state and local legislative body and, above all, in all our daily lives," he said.

HEAVY AIR TRAFFIC

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (UPI)— The boys of the 137th Air National Guard Transport Company, in summer camp here, are literally up in the air over a private swimming pool club.

Club members have noticed heavy helicopter traffic above the pool area. The dressing rooms have no roofs.

Blast Wrecks Auto During Union Meeting

DENVER (AP) — An automobile station wagon parked outside a union hall was wrecked by an explosion Tuesday night as a meeting took place inside the building.

James Jordan, Denver fire investigator, said at least one stick of dynamite caused the blast and that wires were found leading from the car.

Some 50 members of Pipefitters Local 208 were showered with flying glass as three windows were blow out. Only Garrett Rush, the treasurer, suffered any injury. His arm was cut by glass. He was seated near a window.

The explosion occurred about 8:15 p.m. and shook a section of downtown Denver. The union hall is at W. 14th Avenue and Elati Street, only a block from the Rocky Mountain News building.

Tom Hambly, business manager of the local, said he was "completely amazed" at the explosion. He said the union was in no difficulties, either within its membership or with outsiders. Several years ago, Hambly said, a man planted several sticks of dynamite near the front of the building, but a fuse was cut and no explosion occurred. Hambly said the man is now dead.

PRESIDENTIAL MEET

DENVER (UPI)—Two Colorado labor leaders will attend a meeting with President Kennedy Thursday to discuss discrimination in employment. Herrick Roth, president of the AFL-CIO Colorado Labor Council, said he and Robert Holton, a labor council vice president and business manager of the Northern Colorado Building Construction Trades Council, would attend the meeting of labor leaders called by the President.

Hong Kong to Import Water From China

HONG KONG (AP)—The Hong Kong government decided today to import water from Communist China to relieve the British colony's severe drought.

A government spokesman said a number of tankers were being chartered to bring water from the Pearl River, about 40 miles from Hong Kong.

A seven-month drought, the worst in Hong Kong's history, has cut the water ration to four hours every four days.

Pentagon Can Become Confusing for Tourist

By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — I estimate that the Pentagon has been the target of 5,280 jokes, give or take the one about the lady tourist who rushed up to an assistant secretary and cried:

"Show me the way out of here quick! I'm about to have a baby!"

"You shouldn't have come in here in your condition," the assistant secretary admonished.

"I wasn't in this condition when I came in," she retorted.

The Pentagon, with its maze of rings, floors, corridors and bays, has been the subject of so much jocularity I didn't think it was possible for anyone to compose a new variation on the theme.

But the other day I got a call from a press agent who was plugging a movie called "The Great Escape," based on the mass breakout of Allied prisoners from a German POW camp during World War II.

He had with him C. Wallace Floody of Toronto, a former pilot with the Royal Canadian Air Force who had been a key figure in the breakout and who served as technical adviser for the film.

"I've got a great idea," the publicist told me. "Floody is supposed to be an expert in this field, so let's see if he can find his way out of the Pentagon.

"It won't sell," I replied. "It's been overdone. There are 5,280 jokes about people trying to find their way out of the Pentagon. Did you hear the one about the lady tourist who..."

A few minutes later the press agent called me back.

"Okay," he said, "if it's no good having him try to find his way out of the Pentagon, how about seeing if he can find his way in?"

"Max, baby, you're a genius," I said. "A man with your brains ought to be running the studio. Or better yet, running the Pentagon."

In less time than it takes a cab driver to locate the "river entrance"—he finally let us out at the "mall entrance"—we were waiting for Floody to lead us in.

Actually, it isn't too difficult to find your way into the Pentagon. All you have to do is follow the signs. The first signs we followed was marked "To Bays."

When we returned from Chesapeake Bay, we went back to the Pentagon and started over.

Another sign read "Stairs—Down Only." Presumably it is for the use of Pentagon officials who have been kicked upstairs.

Finally, we came to a corridor in which was posted a diagram of the Pentagon interior. It had a red arrow pointing to a spot that was labeled "You Are Here."

About five minutes later we saw another diagram that, was identical except that the label on the arrow said "What Are You Doing Back Here Again?"

As we were leaving the building, by way of Manila Bay, a funny thing happened. A lady tourist rushed up to us and cried: "Get me out of here quick! I'm about to have a baby!"

DR. POLING HONORED

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dr. Daniel A. Poling, noted minister and long-time editor of the Christian Herald, was named the 1963 Clergyman of the Year by the Religious Heritage of America, Inc.

COLLEGE RODEO BOOSTERS—Tickets for the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association's 1963 World's Championship finals slated June 20-23 at Littleton are now on sale at Columbia Savings and Loan, 131 E. Cliffs of Dover Being Sold by Profit Motive

DOVER, England (UPI) — The profit motive has reared its head over the white cliffs of Dover and the people here think it's "just not right."

It all began when the Dover Corporation, as the city government here is known, began receiving requests from the United States for small pieces of the famed chalk cliffs.

Chunk by chunk, the Corporation began chipping bits off this tight little island and sending them to the New World to adorn somebody's mantle.

But the chunks were so small and the cliffs are so big—rising to 300 feet in places and running for miles along the English Channel—that there was no immediate danger of running out.

Besides, the Corporation gave the chunks away free, charging only postage and donating any payment that people happened to send along to the Dover Old Peoples' Fund.

But then the "Admiral's Eye," a London gift and souvenir shop, began selling cliff chunks as big as a soccer ball for a half crown (35 cents).

"Commercialization at its very worst!" a Corporation spokesman thundered. "It just isn't the right sort of thing to take money for something that has sentimental value only."

"Well, we're just a commercial firm," answered Alex Lynes, owner of the "Admiral's Eye," so called because it's within sight of the Lord Nelson statute in Trafalgar Square.

"We wouldn't be in business for long if we gave this stuff away for free. We've got all other sorts of things. There are bottles of pure English country air, a vial of London fog—the real thing, mind you—and we've even got statues of Sir Winston Churchill that blows smoke as you put a match to their cigars."

Lynes said he gets his chalk chunks from a Dover customs inspector who picks them up on the beach as he goes to work.

Is this legal? The Dover Corporation said it was, although "we are considering a protest."

"Most of the chalk cliffs are owned by somebody," the spokesman said, "but there are chunks on the beach, chunks by the railroad line, chunks by the roadway, chunks all over the hills near Dover, chunks anywhere. Really anybody can come along and take away some chalk, if they really want to."

The spokesman said the Dover Corporation so far has a corner on one tourist market—English channel sea water.

"There was one man, a Mr. James Baxter in Renton, Wash., who wrote for a bottle of Channel water to dump into his swimming pool," the spokesman chuckled. "It got into the newspaper that Mr. Baxter wanted to fill his whole pool with the water and we've been getting requests ever since. Most of them come from America."

Military Men Want Strategy Policies, Plans

By COL. RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — High United States military officers feel that the Kennedy Administration's top civilians in national security affairs have been so busy dealing in day-to-day details of military policy that they haven't been making the broad strategic policy decisions civilians are supposed to make.

The critisism is leveled at both the President's advisers in the White House and Defense Secretary McNamara's aides in the Pentagon.

The uniformed officers say that the Kennedy - McNamara team works on each international crisis as it comes up. This they call "the flexible approach." But military men say they can't operate that way. They like to plan ahead, realizing it takes years to develop weapons systems, train officers, develop effective doctrines.

As a result, the military men say they are floundering. They don't know what to prepare for. They have no firm basis on which to develop new types of weapons. They have no answer when McNamara's advisers say a weapons system is not needed. They have a feeling the defense of the U.S. is "drifting."

Both the Truman and Eisenhower Administration prepared National Security Policy Papers which set out the over-all aims, principles and proposed reactions of U.S. defense. These top papers were accompanied by a host of subsidiary papers defining U.S. objectives and actions under differing sets of emergencies and Red aggressions. These papers served as guidelines for the military men whose job it was to make the practical working plans for defense.

The Kennedy Administration has not prepared such an overall National Security Policy Paper and associated papers. This failure is proving a severe handicap to the generals and admirals whose job it is to make practical plans for whatever wars and defense emergencies that may arise.

One high-placed Pentagon general with just such responsibility told me:

"I feel we are drifting. I don't feel I know what the policies are. How can we plan?"

A source close to McNamara counters:

"They can read McNamara's speeches, his budget statements and his classified memorandums."

These top military men do study these documents carefully in an attempt to figure out what the U.S. strategic policy is and how the U.S. plans to react under different circumstances.

"But we still can only guess at our strategy," says one high officer. Other military men concur, saying that what they are able to glean from speeches and classified papers leaves them in the dark about such basic questions as how and under what circumstances nuclear weapons will be used.

"I don't even know when we'd shift from conventional to nuclear weapons in the defense of Europe," says one highplaced military man.

These military men believe that thhe President and McNamara make some of these crucial decisions on a day-to-day basis in order to keep maneuverability or "options," in McNamara's favorite word. "But it certainly makes it difficult to program ahead," one officer says wearily.

Because the State Department would have an important role in formulating a National Security Policy Paper, I talked to a high-placed State Department official about the problem.

He also doesn't understand why there is no such paper. He said the delay in formulating such a document and its associated papers was not a result of State Department objections. He said he could understand the probelm the generals and admirals faced.

In answer, a McNamara civilian aide said there is a need to wait until Administration strategic policy concepts are better developed. He didn't known when that would be.

Military men emphasize what they consider a simple fact: if you are going to prepare for different kinds of wars and crises, you have to make your plans years in advance because military hardware and planning takes years to conceive and develop.

Because of the budget ceilings imposed by all administrations, including this one, mammoth quantities of every conceivable type of arms and equipment cannot be built. Ponderous organizations like the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines can't play by ear.

Take the war plans for the defense of Europe. If the Russians invaded Western Europe it is not clear to key military planners at what point the U.S. and NATO would shift from conventional weapons to nuclear weapons. But if this decision isn't made in advance, then military men say the defense of Western Europe could end in a debacle.

Getting an in-the-middle-of-battle decision by the U.S. president and of the other NATO heads of state might delay the shift in weapons for those crucial hours or minutes that would insure defeat.

That is, it would if that decision had not been formulated in advance by a long series of hard-headed policy meetings that would, in essence, formulate a National Security Policy Paper and its associated papers.

Hour-by-hour decision - making without an over-all National Security Policy Plan was the flaw in the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba. It was, at the same time, the method of operation in the later Cuban blockade.

Other very practical reasons exist for a National Security Policy Paper now.

There are within the Pentagon sharp differences on the military practicability of different strategy and tactics under different circumstances. Some of these sharp differences are between the military men and the civilians in the Pentagon and at the White House.

Right now, because key policy decisions haven't been made formally, there has been no resolution of these differences. They lie buried.

If the White House decides on a National Security Policy Paper and associated papers, then these honest differences will be argued through and resolved. If these differences continue to lie buried, and Mr. Kennedy and McNamara civilian aides make military policy decisions on the spur of the moment as emergencies arise, the voice of the experienced military men will not be heard in detail.

"You can work with a policy decision, even if you don't agree with it," says one officer. "But if you don't have a policy decision, what can you do — guess?"

Power Transmission Line Plan Disclosed

DENVER (UPI)—The Colorado-Ute Electric Association of Montrose, Colo., said Tuesday it also needs a power transmission line from Bayfield, Colo., to Shiprock, N.M., and asked permission to build one.

The request, submitted to the Colorado Public Utilities Commission, asked approval of a line duplicating one previously approved for Western Colorado Power Co., by the PUC. The private company's line will interconnect with the Public Service Co. of New Mexico.

Colorado-Ute, a Rural Electrification Administration cooperative, protested the PUC's approval of the private company's proposal, which was granted May 21.

The coop said Tuesday there were two reasons that it needed its own line:

—The company must be able to transmit power from Shiprock to Bayfield to comply with contracts previously recognized by the PUC.

—Colorado-Ute finds it necessary to "firm up the power supply to its southern members, particularly La Plata Electric Association and Empire Electric Association.

Senate Approval Seen for Atom Test Ban Treaty

By STANLEY MEISLER

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. Disarmament Director William C. Foster predicts a safe passage in the Senate for any nuclear test ban treaty signed by the Soviet Union and the West.

He does not agree with those who predict that a treaty would provoke the most bruising battle in the Senate since the proposal to join the League of Nations after World War I. Nor does he believe it would suffer the same dismal fate.

"It could be tough," Foster said in an interview, "but we could get a treaty through the Senate."

Foster, 66, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, will not take part in the U.S.-British-Soviet nuclear test ban treaty negotiations in Moscow next month. From his office here, he will back up the efforts of the American negotiators.

He would have a major role in selling any treaty to the Senate. Without the approval of a two-thirds majority, the treaty, like the League of Nations proposal almost 50 years ago, would die, unratified.

Despite his optimism, Foster said he had no illusions about the significance of a nuclear test ban treaty.

"The importance of a treaty has been exaggerated," he said. "It has symbolic value. Everyone feels that if we can't negotiate a test ban—when we are so close—then we can't negotiate any other part of the disarmament program.

"Fundamentally it might be possible to negotiate some other part of the disarmament program before a nuclear test ban," he continued, "but psychologically it's not possible. Yet, if we had a test ban, we still would be very far from disarmament and arms control."

Foster also saw an overemphasis in the current concern over the number of inspections in a treaty. The Russians have said they would allow no more than three inspections of possible underground tests. The Americans have said they would settle for no less than seven.

"The number of inspections is not as important as the fact that these inspections are part of a system," Foster said. "We want to know how long we can inspect, who does the inspecting, where do we inspect, and so on.

"Three inspections a year would be too little," he said. "But there's no magic in the number seven."

Foster gave his views before President Kennedy announced Monday that he, Soviet Premier Khrushchev and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan had agreed to have representatives meet for the Moscow negotiations.

The affable and articulate Foster has put in long years as a corporation and government executive—He was administrator of the Marshall Plan and deputy secretary of defense under President Harry S. Truman—and he speaks with ease.

Foster took issue with Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and others who feel that the U.S. Senate is the "big, black obstacle" to a test ban.

"Congress isn't the big, black obstacle to a treaty," Foster said with a smile. The Russians are.

"I don't agree with those who say the Senate would not ratify a treaty," he continued. "At the moment, you know, the situation isn't clear. We don't go to Congress and fight for a treaty. We don't have a treaty. The situation would be different if a treaty were signed. The President would give it his full support. That would make the critical difference, especially with those Congressmen who haven't made up their minds."

Foster believes the Russians sincerely want to end nuclear testing.

"They are logical people," he said. "They know the risks of continued testing. They know testing is expensive."

Foster does not expect the United States ever to negotiate a treaty that is fool-proof against cheating underground.

"We want a treaty that keeps the risks to a minimum," he said. "We want the risks from cheating to be far less on balance than the risks of continuing to test nuclear weapons.

"We are not going to sign a treaty without risks. Anyone who expects a treaty without risks doesn't understand the world we live in."

Hong Kong to Import Water From China

HONG KONG (AP)—The Hong Kong government decided today to import water from Communist China to relieve the British colony's severe drought.

A government spokesman said a number of tankers were being chartered to bring water from the Pearl River, about 40 miles from Hong Kong.

A seven-month drought, the worst in Hong Kong's history, has cut the water ration to four hours every four days.

Pentagon Can Become Confusing for Tourist

By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — I estimate that the Pentagon has been the target of 5,280 jokes, give or take the one about the lady tourist who rushed up to an assistant secretary and cried:

"Show me the way out of here quick! I'm about to have a baby!"

"You shouldn't have come in here in your condition," the assistant secretary admonished.

"I wasn't in this condition when I came in," she retorted.

The Pentagon, with its maze of rings, floors, corridors and bays, has been the subject of so much jocularity I didn't think it was possible for anyone to compose a new variation on the theme.

But the other day I got a call from a press agent who was plugging a movie called "The Great Escape," based on the mass breakout of Allied prisoners from a German POW camp during World War II.

He had with him C. Wallace Floody of Toronto, a former pilot with the Royal Canadian Air Force who had been a key figure in the breakout and who served as technical adviser for the film.

"I've got a great idea," the publicist told me. "Floody is supposed to be an expert in this field, so let's see if he can find his way out of the Pentagon.

"It won't sell," I replied. "It's been overdone. There are 5,280 jokes about people trying to find their way out of the Pentagon. Did you hear the one about the lady tourist who..."

A few minutes later the press agent called me back.

"Okay," he said, "if it's no good having him try to find his way out of the Pentagon, how about seeing if he can find his way in?"

"Max, baby, you're a genius," I said. "A man with your brains ought to be running the studio. Or better yet, running the Pentagon."

In less time than it takes a cab driver to locate the "river entrance"—he finally let us out at the "mall entrance"—we were waiting for Floody to lead us in.

Actually, it isn't too difficult to find your way into the Pentagon. All you have to do is follow the signs. The first signs we followed was marked "To Bays."

When we returned from Chesapeake Bay, we went back to the Pentagon and started over.

Another sign read "Stairs—Down Only." Presumably it is for the use of Pentagon officials who have been kicked upstairs.

Finally, we came to a corridor in which was posted a diagram of the Pentagon interior. It had a red arrow pointing to a spot that was labeled "You Are Here."

About five minutes later we saw another diagram that was identical except that the label on the arrow said "What Are You Doing Back Here Again?"

As we were leaving the building, by way of Manila Bay, a funny thing happened. A lady tourist rushed up to us and cried: "Get me out of here quick! I'm about to have a baby!"

Cliffs of Dover Being Sold by Profit Motive

DOVER, England (UPI) — The profit motive has reared its head over the white cliffs of Dover and the people here think it's "just not right."

It all began when the Dover Corporation, as the city government here is known, began receiving requests from the United States for small pieces of the famed chalk cliffs.

Chunk by chunk, the Corporation began chipping bits off this tight little island and sending them to the New World to adorn somebody's mantle.

But the chunks were so small and the cliffs are so big—rising to 300 feet in places and running for miles along the English Channel—that there was no immediate danger of running out.

Besides, the Corporation gave the chunks away free, charging only postage and donating any payment that people happened to send along to the Dover Old Peoples' Fund.

But then the "Admiral's Eye," a London gift and souvenir shop, began selling cliff chunks as big as a soccer ball for a half crown, 35 cents.

"Commercialization at its very worst!" a Corporation spokesman thundered. "It just isn't the right sort of thing to take money for something that has sentimental value only."

"Well, we're just a commercial firm," answered Alex Lynes, owner of the "Admiral's Eye," so called because it's within sight of the Lord Nelson statute in Trafalgar Square.

"We wouldn't be in business for long if we gave this stuff away for free. We've got all other sorts of things. There are bottles of pure English country air, a vial of London fog—the real thing, mind you—and we've even got statues of Sir Winston Churchill that blows smoke as you put a match to their cigars."

Lynes said he gets his chalk chunks from a Dover customs inspector who picks them up on the beach as he goes to work.

Is this legal? The Dover Corporation said it was, although "we are considering a protest."

"Most of the chalk cliffs are owned by somebody," the spokesman said, "but there are chunks on the beach, chunks by the railroad line, chunks by the roadway, chunks all over the hills near Dover, chunks anywhere. Really anybody can come along and take away some chalk, if they really want to."

The spokesman said the Dover Corporation so far has a corner on one tourist market—English channel sea water.

"There was one man, a Mr. James Baxter in Renton, Wash., who wrote for a bottle of Channel water to dump into his swimming pool," the spokesman chuckled. "It got into the newspaper that Mr. Baxter wanted to fill his whole pool with the water and we've been getting requests ever since. Most of them come from America."

Military Men Want Strategy Policies, Plans

By COL. RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — High United States military officers feel that the Kennedy Administration's top civilians in national security affairs have been so busy dealing in day-to-day details of military policy that they haven't been making the broad strategic policy decisions civilians are supposed to make.

The critisism is leveled at both the President's advisers in the White House and Defense Secretary McNamara's aides in the Pentagon.

The uniformed officers say that the Kennedy - McNamara team works on each international crisis as it comes up. This they call "the flexible approach." But military men say they can't operate that way. They like to plan ahead, realizing it takes years to develop weapons systems, train officers, develop effective doctrines.

As a result, the military men say they are floundering. They don't know what to prepare for. They have no firm basis on which to develop new types of weapons. They have no answer when McNamara's advisers say a weapons system is not needed. They have a feeling the defense of the U.S. is "drifting."

Both the Truman and Eisenhower Administration prepared National Security Policy Papers which set out the over-all aims, principles and proposed reactions of U.S. defense. These top papers were accompanied by a host of subsidiary papers defining U.S. objectives and actions under differing sets of emergencies and Red aggressions. These papers served as guidelines for the military men whose job it was to make the practical working plans for defense.

The Kennedy Administration has not prepared such an overall National Security Policy Paper and associated papers. This failure is proving a severe handicap to the generals and admirals whose job it is to make practical plans for whatever wars and defense emergencies that may arise.

One high-placed Pentagon general with just such responsibility told me:

"I feel we are drifting. I don't feel I know what the policies are. How can we plan?"

A source close to McNamara counters:

"They can read McNamara's speeches, his buaget statements and his classified memorandums."

These top military men do study these documents carefully in an attempt to figure out what the U.S. strategic policy is and how the U.S. plans to react under different circumstances.

"But we still can only guess at our strategy," says one high officer. Other military men concur, saying that what they are able to glean from speeches and classified papers leaves them in the dark about such basic questions as how and under what circumstances nuclear weapons will be used.

"I don't even know when we'd shift from conventional to nuclear weapons in the defense of Europe," says one highplaced military man.

These military men believe that thhe President and McNamara make some of these crucial decisions on a day-to-day basis in order to keep maneuverability or "options," in McNamara's favorite word. "But it certainly makes it difficult to program ahead," one officer says wearily.

Because the State Department would have an important role in formulating a National Security Policy Paper, I talked to a high-placed State Department official about the problem.

He also doesn't understand why there is no such paper. He said the delay in formulating such a document and its associated papers was not a result of State Department objections. He said he could understand the probelm the generals and admirals faced.

In answer, a McNamara civilian aide said there is a need to wait until Administration strategic policy concepts are better developed. He didn't known when that would be.

Military men emphasize what they consider a simple fact: if you are going to prepare for different kinds of wars and crises, you have to make your plans years in advance because military hardware and planning takes years to conceive and develop.

Because of the budget ceilings imposed by all administrations, including this one, mammoth quantities of every conceivable type of arms and equipment cannot be built. Ponderous organizations like the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines can't play by ear.

Take the war plans for the defense of Europe. If the Russians invaded Western Europe it is not clear to key military planners at what point the U.S. and NATO would shift from conventional weapons to nuclear weapons. But if this decision isn't made in advance, then military men say the defense of Western Europe could end in a debacle.

Getting an in-the-middle-of-battle decision by the U.S. president and of the other NATO heads of state might delay the shift in weapons for those crucial hours or minutes that would insure defeat.

That is, it would if that decision had not been formulated in advance by a long series of hard-headed policy meetings that would, in essence, formulate a National Security Policy Paper and its associated papers.

Hour-by-hour decision - making without an over-all National Security Policy Plan was the flaw in the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba. It was, at the same time, the method of operation in the later Cuban blockade.

Other very practical reasons exist for a National Security Policy Paper now.

There are within the Pentagon sharp differences on the military practicabilty of different strategy and tactics under different circumstances. Some of these sharp differences are between the military men and the civilians in the Pentagon and at the White House.

Right now, because key policy decisions haven't been made formally, there has been no resolution of these differences. They lie buried.

If the White House decides on a National Security Policy Paper and associated papers, then these honest differences will be argued through and resolved. If these differences continue to lie buried, and Mr. Kennedy and McNamara civilian aides make military policy decisions on the spur of the moment as emergencies arise, the voice of the experienced military men will not be heard in detail.

"You can work with a policy decision, even if you don't agree with it," says one officer. "But if you don't have a policy decision, what can you do — guess?"

Power Transmission Line Plan Disclosed

DENVER (UPI)—The Colorado-Ute Electric Association of Montrose, Colo., said Tuesday it also needs a power transmission line from Bayfield, Colo., to Shiprock, N.M., and asked permission to build one.

The request, submitted to the Colorado Public Utilities Commission, asked approval of a line duplicating one previously approved for Western Colorado Power Co., by the PUC. The private company's line will interconnect with the Public Service Co. of New Mexico.

Colorado-Ute, a Rural Electrification Administration cooperative, protested the PUC's approval of the private company's proposal, which was granted May 21.

The coop said Tuesday there were two reasons that it needed its own line:

—The company must be able to transmit power from Shiprock to Bayfield to comply with contracts previously recognized by the PUC.

—Colorado-Ute finds it necessary to "firm up the power supply to its southern members, particularly La Plata Electric Association and Empire Electric Association."

Possibilities for Pope's Election Are Discussed

By JAMES M. LONG

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The next Pope almost certainly will be an Italian, probably will not be a member of the entrenched Vatican Curia, and likely will be between 63 and 73 years old.

But whether he will be one of the so-called progressives following the road opened by Pope John XXIII, or one of the conservatives who oppose such a course will be the big question before the conclave of cardinals opening here next Wednesday. He might be a moderate belonging to neither group.

Fixed church rules prohibit anything like campaigning in the days between the death of one Pope and the election of another.

But there is speculation about the outcome on every tongue, in every newspaper, and even among the highest church circles in this capital of Catholicism.

The main guesses are these:

The most likely choices are Giovanni Cardinal Urbani, who succeeded Pope John as patriarch of Venice, and Giacomo Cardinal Lecaro, archbishop of Bologna. Urbani is 63, youngest of the favorites. Lercaro is 71. Both are progressives but neither is regarded as among the more militant of the liberals.

Widely considered to follow as possible choices are Carlo Cardinal Confalonieri, and Giovanni Battista Cardinal Montini, archbishop of Milan.

Confalonieri, 69, a moderate between the progressive and conservative groups, might be chosen for just that reason, in compromise. But he is a member of the Vatican Curia, and Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, who became Pope Pius XII, was the only Curia cardinal elevated to the papacy after 1831.

Montini, 65, is a progressive, a former Vatican pro-secretary of state, and a man who even at the last conclave, when he was not yet a cardinal, was regarded as a strong possibility for the papacy.

Next three most prominently mentioned are Paolo Cardinal Marella, Alfonso Cardinal Castaldo and Francesco Cardinal Roberti. Marella, 68, is archpriest of St. Peter's Basilica and, like Confalonieri, a moderate. Casaldo, 72, archbishop of Naples, and Roberti, 73, a legal expert of the Curia, both lean slightly to the conservative side.

The election of a non-Italian is regarded as highly unlikely. The last non-Italian Pope was the Dutch Adrian VI, elected in 1522. No American cardinal is regarded as having a chance.

If a non-Italian is elected, the most likely prospects are said to be:

1. Eugene Cardinal Tisserant, long time French member of the Curia. He is 79 and dean of the College of Cardinals. He has been suggested as a prospect if a deadlock develops between progressives and conservatives.

2. Gregory Peter Cardinal Agagnian, 67-year-old Armenian prefect of the Congregation for Propagation of the Faith, who hopes, as Pope John did, for reunion with the separated Eastern churches.

3. Leo Jozef Cardinal Suenens, 58, archbishop of Malines-Brussels, an outstanding progressive.

4. Franziskus Cardinal Koenig, 57-year-old archbishop of Vienna, a language expert, progressive, and Pope John's envoy for preliminary negotiations with Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

Pope Pius XII increased percentage of non-Italians in the College of Cardinals until the foreigners were in majority. Pope John XXIII continued this. There are now 53 foreign cardinals from 30 countries and 29 cardinals from Italy.

Probably there always have been differing currents of opinion among the cardinals. But these never came into the open so clearly as last fall, during the two months of vigorous debate in the now suspended Ecumenical Council over the future course of the Church.

Most of the cardinals are regarded as moderates. The conservatives on one side and the progressives on the other are each smaller groups. Most members of the Roman Curia are conservatives.

Behind the locked doors of the secret conclave, these groups may find it hard to reconcile their views.

The final choice for 262nd supreme pontiff of Roman Catholicism could well be determined by which way the moderates cast their majority of ballots.

DRIVER FINED

DENVER (UPI)—The driver of a vehicle which fatally injured the mother of Denver mayoral candidate Thomas Currigan was fined $51 in Municipal Court Tuesday. Silas Wilkins, 20, of Denver, was charged with careless driving and failure to exercise due caution to a pedestrian in the death of Mrs. Mary F. Currigan, 68. Mrs. Currigan, struck as she crossed a northeast Denver avenue, died a day later in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Nation's Water Supply Big Scientific Problem

By LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — You turn the tap, fill the tumbler with the cool, clear, colorless liquid and drink it off.

You're refreshed. But unless you've ever really suffered from lack of water, you probably won't give it a second thought.

Like the air we breathe, water is one of life's necessities that is most apt to be taken for granted.

Yet it poses one of the greatest challenges facing a world constantly growing in population — that there always will be enough water to sustain life.

Here in the United States the problem varies with location. So do the measures taken to meet it. Let's take a look first at one region that over the years has suffered acutely from lack of water — the southern half of the Great Plains.

For several years now, some meteorologists have been predicting another severe drought cycle will strike that area about 1970.

Archaeologists say droughts on the Great Plains in centuries past have lasted any where from 2 or 3 years to 40 years.

In our own time, we remember the drought of the early 1930s that created the Dust Bowl and the pathetic migration of the Okies to California.

There was another such drought in the same region in the mid-1950s. But that time no Dust Bowl was created. Farmers and agricultural scientists had learned much since the 1930s.

They had learned, for instance, two methods of "dry farming." One is a deep plowing method with heavy tractors to bring up stable clods and tap moisture unreachable by older cultivation habits.

The other eliminates plowing altogether; the surface of the soil is cut merely in narrow slits for seed. By this method, the soil is never without some herbiage cover to keep it from blowing away.

Farmers also learned you can't hope for a cash crop of wheat, cotton or sorghum every year on these lands. The dry years are inevitable, so it pays to plant only cover crops such as Sudan grass when drought is predicted.

But these dry farming and rotation techniques are expensive, they require large farms. Gradually the small farmer is being forced out of the Great Plains that no longer have irrigation water available and that actually are running out of water altogether at the rate they are using it.

The High Plains of Texas are one such section — the most dramatic area of water depletion in the country. This region of 22 million acres extending southward from the Oklahoma Panhandle and eastward from New Mexico is using up 10 times as much water each year as soaks into the ground from rainfall.

The people of the High Plains greatly increased their pumping of water from the ground for irrigation in the 1950s. The depletion is so great that in some parts of the region, the soil is drying out and sinking.

In fact, desertation has started on a small scale in the High Plains. Although scientists, water experts and agricultural experts are well aware of the peril in the High Plains, many people who live there do not seem to be.

They not only continue to pump too much water for irrigation, but some of the towns even try to bring in industries that are big consumers of water.

According to papers published in the Journal of the American Waterworks Association and various scientific journals, the people of the High Plains — and of some other areas in the United States with similar conditions — must face up to the reality.

They must accept the facts that their regions cannot support any more irrigated farming, not even as much as they have now, and that they cannot support industries that consume water.

But that doesn't mean these hopelessly water-short areas need be depopulated. They still can support a small population, small agriculture, and manufacturing that doesn't consume water.

According to hydrologist William L. Broadhurst of Lubbock, Tex., a great deal already is being done to capture more of the rainfall in the High Plains and store it underground by means of "recharge wells."

Broadhurst recounts the experiments of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District to recapture a greater percentage of the estimated annual runoff of 14 million acre feet of surface water by means of these wells.

He says much of this surface water — rain water — collects in natural depressions called playa lakes. These lakes are shallow and evaporation from them is extremely rapid. What is worse, they have impervious bottoms of clay and colloidal soils which don't allow the water to sink into the water-bearing subsoil.

The "recharge well," a technique also used in other parts of the country, literally consists of a well dug from the bottom of the playa lake into the sands below, so the lake will drain into the sands rapidly after a big rain.

The technique works, but in the High Plains it is not easy. There are many problems, not the least of which is the danger of clogging up the waterbearing sands below with clay and colloidal material from the playa lake bed.

More than 100 of these experimental recharge wells have been dug in the High Plains.

But a great deal more along this line and along other water conservation lines must be done if the High Plains are to remain habitable.

Spanish is the official language of Paraguay, but since most of the population is of Guarani Indian origin, Guarani is widely spoken.

Automation Expected By President of Guild

DENVER (UPI) — William J. Farson, executive vice president of the American Newspaper Guild, AFL-CIO, said here Tuesday automation will provide more jobs in the long run, and its progress will not be fought by labor.

Farson, of Washington, D.C., said the Guild and the International Typographical Union would not "fight progress." Farson was here for meetings with Denver Guild members.

He predicted automation in printing and reporting within 10 years.

Cheyenne Firm Hits School Contract

CASPER (AP) — A Cheyenne contracting firm has protested the bid of a Casper and Colorado Springs firm for construction of the new Kelly Walsh High School in Casper.

B. H. Baker Co. was the apparent low bidder at $1,951,164 on construction of the school building June 7. Reiman-Wuerth Co. was slightly higher with its bid.

An attorney for Reiman-Wuerth told school officials Baker should not have received the normal 5 per cent cost preference given Wyoming firms since it has its main offices in Colorado Springs. A Baker spokesman said the firm is two corporations, one operating in each state.

The school board said it might rule by Friday in the contract award dispute.

Increased Revenue Is Collected in Tax

DENVER (AP) — Colorado residents paid more than $1,213,000,000 in federal taxes during the 11 months ending May 31.

V. Lee Phillips, district director of the Internal Revenue Service, said this was approximately $58.5 million more than in the same 1961-62 period.

DEDICATES SCHOOL

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (UPI) —Emperor Haile Selassie dedicated a Soviet-built technical school for 1,000 students Tuesday at Bahr Dar. He said the school would help Ethiopia attain self-sufficiency.

Desalting Sea Water Said to Be Still Costly

By LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPD — The interest of the American public in national water conservation is apt to center on desalting sea water, experts say.

That's because it's the most dramatic aspect and the one that holds out alluring prospects of dividends for investors in any company that develops a very cheap and practical process.

And, for many areas, desalting sea water and brackish water is the only possible way of creating new fresh water supplies big enough to support a growing population or support vital industries.

Moreover, the scientific and engineering progress made in water desalting since World War II already is substantial.

But, on a national scale, desalting never will be important, according to the American Waterworks Association and many scientists and economists.

These experts do not believe desalted sea water ever will be cheap enough for irrigated agriculture except for small scale truck farming in very special situations.

Getting the cost of desalting water down to compare favorably with the cost of pumping fresh water from deep wells would not make the desalted water economically feasible for general use, the experts say.

The water still would have to be transported much too far in most cases. The cost of piping and the losses in transit soon would pile up too high.

All except a few sections of the country are within reach of as yet unused reserves of fresh water. And better methods of conserving fresh water supplies offer a greater net increase in available fresh water in most areas than does desalting.

It still costs several times as much to desalt water by the cheapest process as to pump fresh water from deep wells. And, in addition to the transport cost, there is the problem of disposing of the salts extracted from the sea water.

Where there is no heavy transport cost and no fresh water alternative is available, though, desalting pays off. Buckeye, Ariz., for example, has a desalting plant for brackish water turning out 650,000 gallons a day, 50 cents per 1,000 gallons, and the folks think it's reasonable. Costs of $1 to $1.25 a thousand gallons for desalting sea water at San Diego and Freeport, Tex., are considered feasible by industries using the water. It is planned to increase capacities of these government demonstration plants from 1 million to 10 million gallons a day. That will cut the cost to about 65 cents a thousand gallons.

But the adoption of conservation practices by industries that use large amounts of water increases fresh water supplies much more and at vastly lower cost than desalting ever could do, because of the transport costs.

The scale of these savings is impressive. Professor Abel Wolman of Johns Hopkins University told a water conference at Atlantic City in 1960 about progress up to that time.

The steel industry managed to cut its use of water from 55,000 gallons for every ton of steel produced to around 2,000 gallons. The general paper industry uses 3,000 to 4,000 gallons of water per ton of paper against 7,000 to 10,000 formerly, and the kraft pulp industry cut its use from 45,000 to 8,000 gallons per ton of pulp. The cannery industry has halved its water use.

The Department of Agriculture claims many irrigation methods are wasteful and is getting farmers to change some of these methods. It says savings of up to 50 million acre feet a year ultimately are possible by more efficient irrigation.

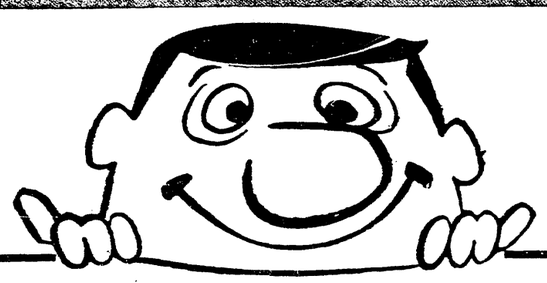

And scientists say cleaning lakes and streams of useless water plants, which consume much water, can save 6 million more acre feet a year.

Reducing reservoir evaporation is another important way to save fresh water. The evaporation loss from reservoirs in the 17 western states alone is set at 15.6 million acre feet a year. A scientific task force said last year that much can be done in this respect.

Reducing the problem to money, one water district estimated it could save $35 million in evaporation losses over the 45-year term of the bonds floated to build a reservoir by choosing a smaller site where the reservoir would be deeper and present less surface to the sun.

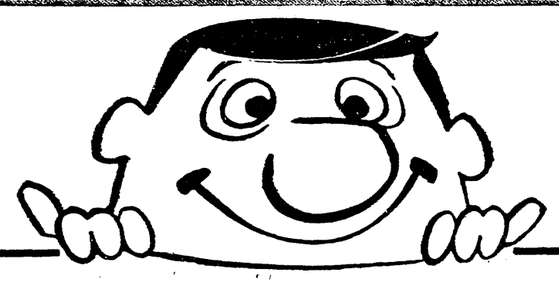

In addition to choosing reservoir sites less subject to evaporation, engineers say much water can be saved by the use of monomolecular and octadecanol, harmless water film chemicals that inhibit evaporation completely when sprayed on the surface of the water. The feasibility of using these chemicals is not sure, however.

How to Keep Well

EMOTIONAL ASPECTS OF AUTOMATION

Modern assembly line work and automation are harder on the nervous system than on the body. Most of the physical health hazards of the old-time factory have been removed including those arising from dust, accidents, and contact with toxic products. It is surprising how well we have adapted to the industrial revolution that began less than 200 years ago. Will we be equally successful in the new phase of this revolution?

Repetitive work is not new in that the farmers, pottery workers, weavers, and many others labored along this line long before power was introduced. But the craftsman derived satisfaction from creating something that he could see and understand. This is in contrast to the modern assembly line worker who never sees the fruits of his labor except in a shop or showroom. This applies also to clerks who feed figures to complicated accounting systems without the slightest idea of the end results.

On the other hand, there is satisfaction in repetitive work that requires considerable but limited skill. Others have learned to tolerate their job so long as it does not intrude no daydreams or hobbies, sports, and personal relationships. Unskilled assembly line jobs also mean companionship and the monotony is broken by the constant chitchat of workers, often in disgraceful language. But it helps to let off steam and pass the time.

The nervous system suffers more when companionship is prevented by noise or by marked incompatibility. This is not the fault of the machine age because complicated machines require skilled maintenance. Automation has little or no ill effects on physical well-being except that it decreases the amount of exercise; activity helps protect against heart attacks. Inactivity encourages obesity and excessive smoking.

The emotional effects are likely to be more pronounced. At its worst, automation could mean watching the machine without even the satisfaction of using the hands in a simple, repetitive task. As time goes by, the machinery will become bigger and the workers fewer, so that boredom and lack of companionship will increase. Smoewhere along the lnie, these social problems may be solved.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Inflamed Vein

C. J. writes: My husband has had varicose veins for years. They never gave him any trouble until he developed phlebitis. The doctor wants to strip the affected vein when the phlebitis is better. Do you think this is necessary?

Reply

Let him cross this bridge when the phlebitis subsides completely. Surgery may not be needed if inflammation has obstructed the vein so completely it disappears spontaneously.

Irritation From Tobacco

F. H. writes: Could excessive smoking cause bloodshot eyes?

Reply

Not as a rule. The smoke may irritate the eyes, depending upon the way the individual holds his cigar or cigaret. Sitting for a long time in a smoke-filled room may have the same effect.

Hair Loss In Women

R. M. writes: Is it true that with the administration of female sex hormones, a woman's thinning hair can be restored to normal?

Reply

I doubt if the method will be successful because a deficiency of certain sex hormones is not the only cause of balding in women.

Alcohol and Congestion

G. B. writes: Does the use of alcohol aggravate nasal congestion and bronchial cough?

Reply

Yes, except when used only in small amounts.

Today's Health Hint

Never neglect a chronic cough.

URGES BAN ON TESTS

LONDON (UPI) — Anglican Canon John Collins, head of the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament (CND), called on France and the Soviet Union Tuesday night to match President Kennedy's announced suspension of atmospheric nuclear tests.

In a cable to Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, Collins said: We are pressing our own government and the government of France to make a similar declaration."

Discouragement Is Reported in Rio de Janeiro

By EDGAR MILLER

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) —It's easy to get discouraged in Brazil these days.

It's hard to be optimistic while you wait for hours in lines to buy food which daily costs more.

It's difficult to get excited about economic recovery plans when your salary buys less and less each month.

"What we need is a good dictatorship," says laborer Joao da Silva, 30, a father of three who makes about $30 a month. He says many of his neighbors and coworkers feel the same way. They want leadership.

Joao isn't worried about losing his democratic freedoms and he isn't particularly interested in communism. He is interested in how he's going to feed and clothe his family.

"The way it is now, the president can't just up and do what needs to be done," says Joao. "He has to ask Congress and a big fight gets started and it never gets done."

The Brazilian government's efforts to solve this nation's financial problems have been hampered by continuing internal political and economic pressures, unrest in the armed forces and a slow-moving Congress.

Despite the ambitious aims of the three-year economic recovery plan, the cost of living in the first five months of 1963 has shot up 25.5 per cent, according to preliminary unofficial figures of the semi-official Getulio Vargas Foundation, compared with a 14.3 per cent increase for the same period last year.

The price climb leveled off in April and May to about 4 per cent after hitting a peak of 9.7 per cent in March.

The problem for the low-income worker is that the big increases recently have been in areas of basic necessity such as food, clothing and medicine. Clothing last month took a 14.1 per cent jump.

On the positive side, Finance Minister Francisco Santiago Dantas, the strong man of President Joao Goulart's Cabinet, says a new $60-million credit released by the International Monetary Fund will take care of Brazil's balance of payments problems for the remainder of the year.

Dantas and other Brazilian economists interpret the credit as a demonstration of confidence in Brazil's efforts to combat inflation and achieve stabilization.

Goulart meanwhile has informed a labor union group that he opposes any attempts to put strike pressure on Congress to speed up action on reform legislation.

The leftist-dominated unions want to call a general strike to hasten congressional action on agrarian reform.

Despite the gloomy outlook at the moment, there are long-range signs of great promise for South America's largest nation.

Brazil's steel industry is becoming an important economic factor. New mills are constantly increasing steel production.

Sao Paulo's industry appears to be coming out of a slight recession.

A highway has been opened linking Bahia in the poverty-stricken northeast with the industrial south. Another highway linking the capital, Brasilia, with Belem in the north is nearing completion.

Brazil has often been called the "sleeping giant of the Americas." The optimistic see the nation's current struggles as the first tossings of the giant as it awakens. The darkness they believe is the dark before the dawn.

Looking At Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER

© 1963 By the Chicago Tribune

JACK WARNER MAKES PITCH FOR HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, —Jack Warner put on a pitch for our town in a speech after introducing Audrey Hepburn, Rex Harrison, Sterling Holloway, Gladys Cooper, George Cukor, Cecil Beaton, Andre Previn, Hermes Pan, and Harry Stradling Sr. to the press at a luncheon served by Dave Chasen at his studio.

"Many people thought I should make 'My Fair Lady' in in England," said Warner. "My answer was 'Why?' I started here, my studio's been very successful. We have the finest actors, writers, and technicians in the world and they're happier when they stay home. Years ago we made two successful sea pictures without going to sea. We built the ships on a sound stage and put them on rockers. We're building Covent Garden on a sound stage. I abhor these migrates who make their pile here, then make a couple of pictures abroad and start knocking the town where they made their name and fortune.

I applaud Jack Warner. If we had more like him, Hollywood would never have lost its magic. Now it's coming back.

Afterwards Cecil Beaton took me to the wardrobe department to see some costumes and hats he's designed for "My Fair Lady." They're slightly sensational. I lost my mind over the headgear, but it's going to take tall girls with marvelous balance to wear 'em. The Happiness on the faces of those lady workers warmed the cockles of this old heart. Hooray for Hollywood.

A small world. When Donna Douglas of The Beverly Hillbillies toured Japan last week, one of her hosts was Michi Sohma. When Michi was an exchange student at Santa Monica City college several years ago he lived at my home for four years. He's a fine boy, now works for the Sanyo electric company which sponsors the Hillbillies in Japan.

Steve Boyd, hearing about my new car, wrote from Madrid: "What a hotbed of English bums we all are! He drives a Rolls, too. Soon it will be chic to own an American car. I must rush now to Manzanares. I hate to sail off Omar Sharif today—mustn't be late."

Many officials at Twentieth are unhappy over Walter Wanger's "Cleo" diary in a national mag. I asked several there what they thought of the story. One said: "Let's call him Mr. X——— and Tell Wanger is the most wonderful man in the world. He's the only one connected with the picture—according to him — who didn't make a single mistake."

Judy Garland's been posing for Rene Bouchet. He did seven portraits of her for a mag—will gift he with one, which she'll hang in the new Brentwood house she's bought. Instead of her name on the door of the new $10,000 dressing room CMS provided for her, Judy's door reads "The Legend."

Actors in "Take Her, She's Mine" are living up to the title. Romances are blossoming. Monica Moran, Thelma Ritter's daughter, is going steady with Singer Byron Moss. Jenny Maxwell, who was in "Blue Denim," and Jack Wrather Jr., whose marriage to Natalie Wood's sister, Lana, lasted a couple of minutes, were almost thataway. He gave Jenny a friendship ring, but when he suggested an engagement ring she handed the other back and declared he was too possessive. The new French heartthrob, Philippe Forquet, is seeing only beautiful Sharon Tate. In fact she's on the set most of the time. She was quite an item with Dick Beymer in Rome. It ended when he went to the Actors Studio in New York.

MAN DROWNS

WINDSOR (UPI)—Gerald Rutz 20 of Fort Collins, Colo., drowned Tuesday in Windsor Lake. Rutz the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Rutz of Nesseland, S.D. was swimming with Ted Webb 20 of Fort Collins, when the accident occurred. Webb told Weld County Sheriff Bill Welsh Rutz apparently stepped into a deep hole while wading.

Greek Premier Quits; Objects To State Visit

By PHILIP DOPOULOS

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—A government crisis gripped Greece today as a result of King Paul's insistence that he and Queen Frederika make a scheduled state visit to Britain next month.

Premier Constantine Caramanlis resigned Tuesday because the king rejected his advice to postpone or call off the trip. Caramanlis feared a repetition of the leftist demonstrations which plagued the queen during a private visit to London in April.

The king now must decide whether to name a new government or to dissolve Parliament and call a national election within 45 days.

A new government could only come from Caramanlis' National Radical Union party, which has a 60-seat majority in Parliament. The party's high command advocated new elections, with the king naming a caretaker Cabinet to supervise the voting.

The situation was packed with paradox.

Caramanlis, a staunch friend of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, found himself out of office because he opposed a royal visit to Britain, a NATO ally.

King Paul, a staunch friend of Caramanlis, insisted he and the queen would make their trip to avoid a blow at the NATO alliance—even if it meant dumping Caramanlis.

Opposition elements in the Greek Parliament — who are friends of neither Caramanlis, the royal house, nor NATO—got a windfall.

For the past year the opposition has been sniping at the royal family as a roundabout way of attacking the government. The royal way of life, their palaces and their personal budgets have been under fire. Caramanlis and his Cabinet stood solidly behind the royal house.

The 57-year-old premier had headed the government since 1955, a record for Greece, and his party won national elections in 1956, 1958 and 1961. The king said he accepted Caramanlis' resignation with "great regret."

But King Paul said that refusing the invitation from Queen Elizabeth II after it had been accepted might be "a blow to the friendship and mutual confidence which exists within the NATO alliance."

The king's communique said Greece must not ignore the regret felt by most Britons over the April incident nor could it spurn the British government's apologies and assurances that such demonstrations would not be allowed to recur.

In April Queen Frederika was jostled by demonstrators who claimed Greece still held political prisoners from the 1947-49 Communist civil war. On one occasion she and her daughter Princess Irene had to take refuge in a private home.

Greece was swept by a wave of feeling against Britain, its recent adversary in the Cyprus dispute. The opposition brought censure motions against the Caramanlis government. The government survived the vote after a week of showdown debate. Caramanlis insisted that there were no political prisoners in Greece, that prisoners from the civil war were guilty of common crimes or acts against the state.

Board of Health Approves State Hospital Plan

DENVER (UPI)—A long range hospital plan which takes into account estimates of needs for another 1,700 hospital beds was approved Monday by the Colorado State Board of Health.

The plan serves as a guide for distribution of federal Hill-Burton funds for the fiscal year beginning July 1. It was approved last week by the State Advisory Hospital Council.

State Health Director Dr. Roy L. Cleere told the board "the greatest need for the immediate future in Colorado is for remodeling and renovation of existing hospitals and facilities to meet the changing needs and emphasis in medical care."

Last year, Colorado received $2 million in federal funds for the current fiscal year which ends this month. Congress has not yet set the 1963-64 fiscal figure for each state.

The state plan, for the first time proposes extensive facilities for treatment of mental retardation. The plan proposed 120 beds for this purpose.

A 60-bed facility was proposed for an unspecified metropolitan area and a 60-bed facility for a [illegible]

Cascade News

By CAROLYN McADAMS
MU 7-9065

Mrs. Herbert Esgar, Pikes Peak Road, Cascade, will be hostess at her home Monday, June 17, for the regular meeting of the Women's Fellowship, Church in the Wildwood, for 1:30 dessert. The meeting, which is scheduled for the third Tuesday each month, has been moved up one day in order to secure Miss Lillian Picken, one of our most illustrious missionaries recently retiring from 45 years' service in India. Members and guests are cordially invited to the meeting.

Next Sunday, June 16, will begin the summer schedule at the Church in the Wildwood, different from previous years. Worship services in the sanctuary will be held 9:30 and 10:55 a.m., with a Children's Church in upstairs Fellowship Hall at 9:30 a.m. for all children kindergarten age through junior high with Pat Flynn of Manitou Springs the director. Miss Elaine White of Green Mountain Falls will be organist. Adult Bible Class will be taught by Miss Mary Haymaker in the Rose Room in the basement. The Little White House annex will be for the nursery and pre-school classes.

Mrs. Helen Dugdale, chairman of the Missions, Social Action and Fellowship Board, Church in the Wildwood, reported sending $50 to Migrant Ministry, $10 to help provide a chaplain at Boy Scout Camp, with final plans to complete the CHEF pledge, and will assist the Women's Fellowship in providing thank offering boxes for all of the church homes.

Harold Stumbough, choir director, presented guest soloists Helene Phelps (piano) and David Fray (organ), students at Cheyenne Mountain Junior High School at the June 9 church worship service. Mrs. Mary Baltzer, organist has returned after two months vacation.

Harold Stumbough, serving as chairman of the nominating committee for the Colorado Springs Choral Society, was elected treasurer by a vote of the board members. Among eight new board members elected was Mrs. Mary Baltzer, for a two year term. Stumbough was a board member last year.

Visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stumbough for a week was his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Desmond, of Springfield, Ill.

Tom Dugdale arrived home Saturday from Fort Collins, State University, where he attended his freshman year, majoring in business administration. He will return next fall as a junior student after assisting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dugdale, in the Swiss Miss Shop this summer.

Farley Reasonover, a patient in Penrose Hospital for the last two weeks, has returned to his home for convalescence.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Didlo attended the graduation of their son James Didlo, June 4, at State University, Tempe, Ariz. The graduation program and the diploma issued James were engraved, "With Distinction." Young Didlo's major was clinical psychology. He is presently employed with the U. S. Department of Health out of Phoenix. Mrs. Jon Didlo and infant son Johnny are visiting in Cascade while Jon Didlo is attending the AFB in Amarillo, until July.

Mrs. Francis Walter Jr., and children Cindy and Greg, of Kirksville, Mo., are visiting her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Max Warner, for a two weeks' vacation. Mr. Walter will arrive this week to join his family for a reunion. Richard Kepler Burkburnett, Tex., grandson of the Warners, with his roommate Joe Ewen, from Fort Worth, are occupying the lower lever apartment at the Warners residence this summer and are employed at the North Pole during their vacation. Both young men are students at North Texas State University.

One and a half tons of rainbow trout arrived last week from Hatcheas Trout Farm, Henderson, Colo., to restock the Jim Jackson Lake. The Jackson lake is one of the several spots for good fishing in Ute Pass. Anyone is welcome to try his luck by paying a fee for the number of pounds of fish caught.

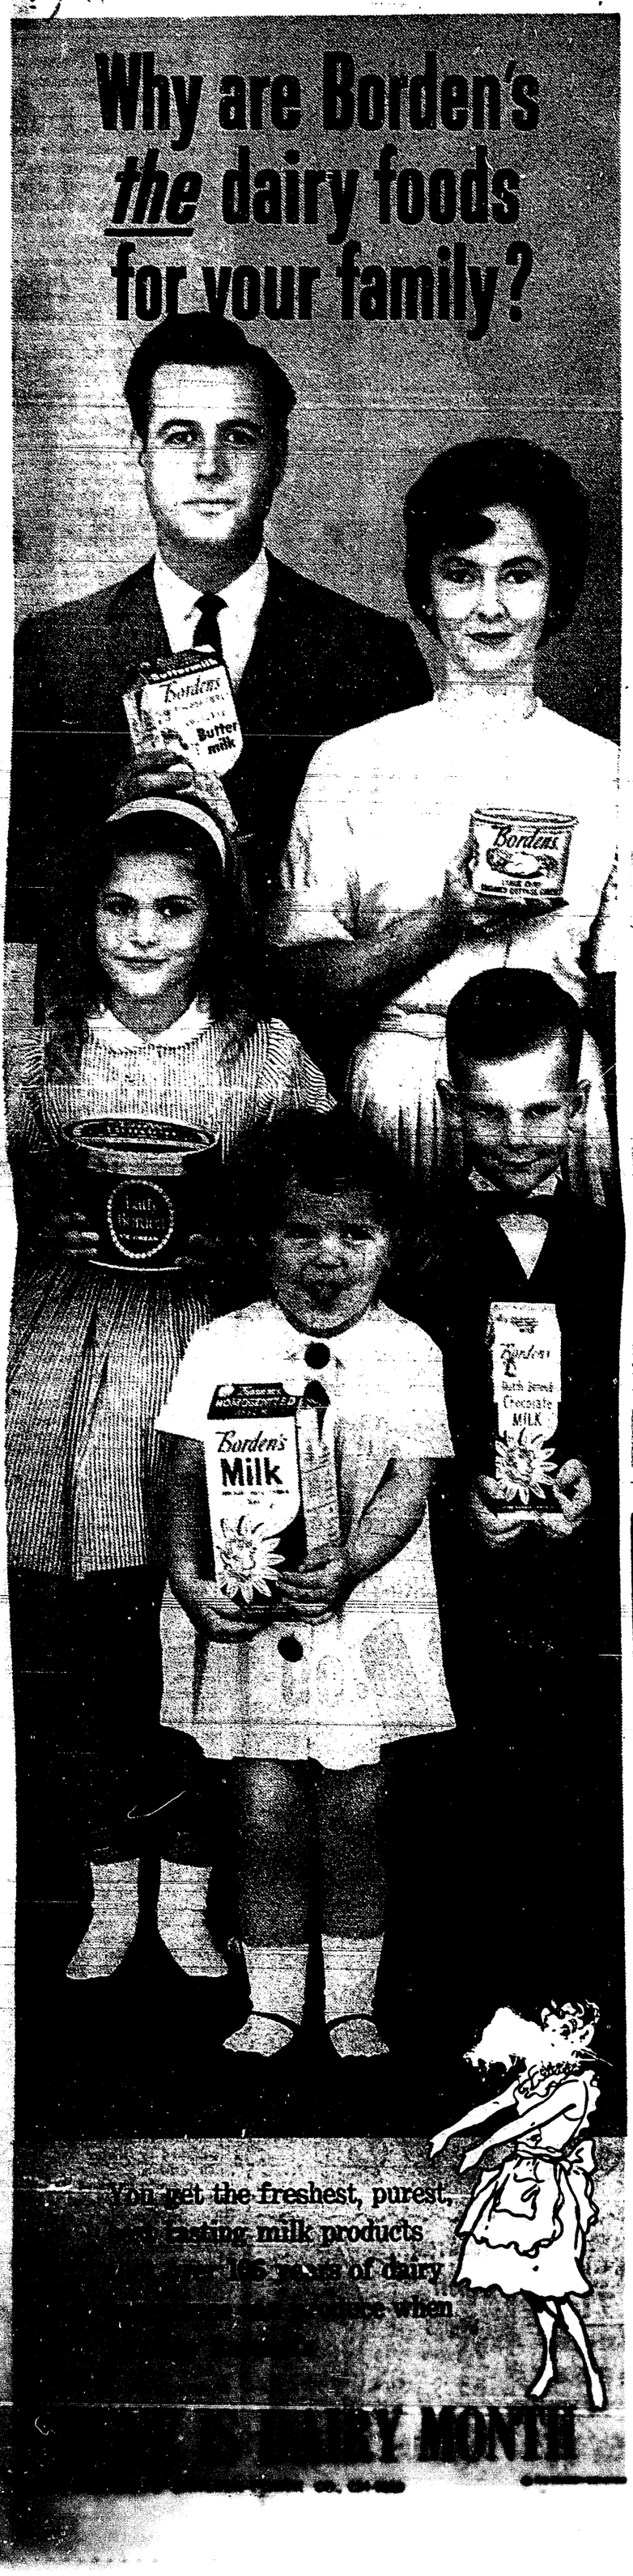

BIBLE MIRRORS PRESENT

NEW YORK (AP)—Juvenile delinquency was a problem in Biblical times much as it is today, Edith Deen says in a new book, "Family Living in the Bible," published by Harber and Row. She writes:

"Sons who disgraced their parents, fathers who failed to train their children wisely, daughters-in-law who made life bitter for their husbands' families, a headstrong daughter who ran into trouble, a son who boldly married a girl against his parents' wishes—all caused problems between parents and children in Biblical times."

The spacious boulevards, parks, the Opera House and part of the Louvre in Paris were the work of Baron Georges Eugene Haussmann. Many designs of this city planner were attacked by his contemporaries.

JFK's Atom Ban Talks Fail to Stir Dixiecrats

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) —President Kennedy's announcement of a Moscow conference on a nuclear test ban stirred new friction with Republicans and apparently fell short in rallying key Senate support.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois expressed indignation that the President had made his announcement of the meeting and of the cessation of atmospheric tests Monday without any advance consultation with the Republicans.

"We Republicans are expected to play the bipartisan game on foreign policy," Dirksen said in an interview. "Yet when some decision of this sort is made we are not consulted in advance. We are expected to go along without even knowing what the President is proposing."

Dirksen objected to holding the meeting of representatives of the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union in Moscow. He said it ought to be on neutral ground.

The Republican leader also said he wants to know whether reports are true that the United States will be represented at the session, expected to be held in July, "by someone outside of the government."

Administration sources have indicated that John J. McCloy, a Republican who served as Kennedy's disarmament adviser, and Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman, who has been involved in many negotiations with the Russians, are among those considered for the post.

Dirksen demanded to know in the Senate if the meeting will become one of "concession and more concession to Khrushchev to achieve some kind of test ban treaty."

Dirksen's criticism reflected an uneasiness on the part of many senators that the United States might be trapped in some agreement that would not provide foolproof inspections of what the Russians were doing.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Democratic leader, said glowingly that the President had "rededicated the nation to peace as a realistic and imperative goal."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a possible rival for Kennedy in the 1964 presidential election, said the President is "dead wrong" in agreeing to the conference and in suspending atmospheric tests in the meantime.

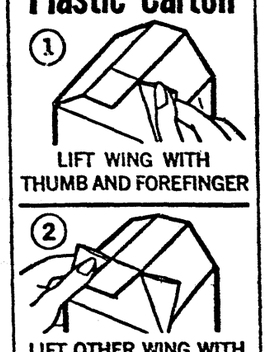

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., a member of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, expressed hope the conference would prove useful, but he made it clear he is not enthusiastic about halting atmospheric tests without any agreement.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, a GOP spokesman on atomic matters, said that if the Moscow meeting brings further offers of compromise with the Russians, it would be "a very great mistake." He said the Soviets hadn't made any concessions.

Liquidation of Oil Properties Firm Announced

DALLAS (AP) — Directors of Producing Properties, Inc., approved plans Monday for liquidating the firm though transactions involving a $52 million total.

They recommended to stockholders sale in three major groups of properties acquired by producing properties, once said to be among the fastest growing independent oil companies in the nation.

The first, to Reserve Oil and Gas Co. of San Francisco, would cover properties in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, New Mexico, Louisiana, Wyoming, Montana, Colorado and Illinois. It would be subject to a reservation of a production payment to be sold to Elbee Ventures Inc.

Money received by producing properties from sale of these properties, plus existing production payments, would total $24 million, said R. J. Bradley, board chairman and chief executive officer.

Bradley said names of the purchasers in the other two groups would be made public later. He indicated the other sales, plus outstanding production payments, would aggregate $28 million.

If stockholders approve and the sales are consummated, Bradley estimated the common stock will liquidate at $7.25 to $7.50 a share and the first distribution can be expected in early fall.

There are 2,805,000 common shares outstanding. This would mean a total cash distribution to the common stockholders of approximately $21 million.

On the over-the-counter market the common sold from $6.625 to $7.25 Monday.

"It's just a suggestion, of course, and if you follow it, I won't find it necessary to make it an order."

Merv Griffin To Have New Show on TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — After all the sound and fury, Merv Griffin is coming back to NBC in the fall as host on a new morning game show.

There's a bit of irony in Tuesday's NBC announcement, for Griffin quit an NBC morning game show about a year ago in order to do "The Merv Griffin Show" in the afternoon on the network. Its cancellation three months ago for low ratings caused more anguish and nosy hand-wringing than any other single event of the television season.

Griffin's new show—which his production company will package—is called "Shopping Spree" and will be one of two new shows which will be added to the network's solid three-hour block of games shows starting at 10 a.m.

NBC lost "The Price Is Right" to ABC, starting in the fall. And it will drop, as expected, "Play your Hunch," which has been starring Robert Q Lewis since Griffin quit the show.

"Shopping Spree" and another word game, "Missing Links" will replace them. It is probable that Robert Q will move over to "Missing Links" as host.

Griffin will spend the summer serving as host on CBS' "Talent Scouts," on Tuesday night and playing in summer stock. He opened Monday night in "The Moon Is Blue" at Bucks County Playhouse.

Impending motherhood has raised hob with Carol Burnett's theater and television plans. Carol, now Mrs. Joe Hamilton, expects her first child after the first of the year so her planned Broadway musical, hand-tailored by Betty Comeden and Adolph Greene, has been postponed until spring.

This, in turn, has fouled up CBS plans for a Carol Burnett Television series for the 1964-65 season.

Carol started rehearsals for "Calamity Jane" in Dallas Tuesday, and after playing the show there, returns to New York for two weeks to adapt the show to television. It will be taped July 10 for use as a special next season. She also expects to make another CBS special in England during August.

CAPITOL STUFF

By RICHARD MCGOWAN

WASHINGTON — When a travel-weary, 17th century-clad band of 224 Old Believers, members of the Russian Orthodox Faith, arrived in New York two weeks ago climaxing a 300-year pilgrimage for religious freedom few people realized the political implications.

But the stirrings in Congress over letting in this group, fleeing persecution since the days of Peter the Great, is enough to make one wonder about that magnificant inscription on a symbol of freedom to millions of the world's orphans — the Statue of Liberty.

"Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free, the wretched refuse of your teeming shore. Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to come, I lift my lamp beside the golden door."

And yet there was such a flap in Congress over admitting these refugees from poverty and terror that the doors of freedom were almost slamed in their forlorn faces.

It was Attorney General Robert Kennedy, already embroiled in trying to gain equal rights and freedom for this nation's Negro citizens, who championed the cause of these hardy, gaily-garbed peasants who fled to Turkey in the 17th century to seek freedom of worship.

Their clearance to enter the country under special asylum was fought for and obtained by Kennedy. The State Department also took a hand and provided transportation costs under a special allocation to the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration.

Opposition was led by Rep. M. Charles A. Feighan (D-Ohio), a member of the joint committee on immigration and nationality policy.

Feighan ranted recently against the admission of the Old Believers, charging that they got permission by "dressed-up gobbledygook" put out by the State Department. He insisted that the refugees still maintained "an allegiance to a foreign power, namely the Soviet Union."

But Kennedy held firm, and 224 men in embroidered Russian Blouses, women in flaming peasant skirts, tired grandmothers in ragged babushkas and squalling babes in arms were finally welcomed to the land of freedom at Idlewild Airport.

The repercussions have only begun. Feighan is still fuming and promises hearings to consider revising the immigration law to previse a "chain reaction" invasion by other Old Believer colonies.

To counter any such move and also to remove long standing deficiencies, the administration, it was learned, is now studying various proposals to revamp our outdated immigration laws. President Kennedy during the campaign referred to immigration as a "top priority" issue. Now that the flap is out in the open, the administration is finally making a move.

But they may be beat to the punch by Rep. John V. Lindsay (R-N.Y.) who assisted in drafting former President Eisenhower's immigration messages. He is expected to come out with his own bill shortly.

The general lines of present American policy were laid down in the years just after 1918. Prior to World War I, all laws restricting immigration into the U. S. were qualitative in character, excluding only those persons who failed to pass certain minumal health and literacy tests. Thus the quota law of 1921 and more especially the Johnson-Reed Immigration Act of 1924 represented a drastic change in American policy.

The Johnson-Reed Act limited the total number of immigrants who could enter the United States in any one year to 150,000 and also established the national-origins quota system. This system provided that the annual quota for any one nationality should bear the same ratio to 150,000 as the number of inhabitants of the U. S. in 1920 of that nationality bore to the total number of inhabitants in the U. S. in 1920.

The purpose was to freeze the then-existing national structure of the American population. It went further and defined "inhabitant of the U. S. in 1920" so as to exclude Descendants of slave immigrants," almost the entire Negro population.

Lindsay writing under his pen in the current edition of Advance, a Republican periodical charged that the Johnson-Reed Act, "with its built-in bias against Southern and Eastern Europeans and non-whites from Asia and Africa, remains to this day the basic American immigration statute."

The act, of course, has since been modified. The most significant change occurred in June, 1952, with the passage, over President Truman's veto, of the Immigration and Nationality Act, more commonly known as the McCarran-Walter Act.

While it generally retained the features of earlier statues, the act did make slight adjustments in the ban against Asian and Pacific peoples, eliminated discrimination between the sexes, gave quota preferences to skilled aliens and broadened the grounds for excluding subversives and persons affiliated with Communist organizations.

As Lindsay points out, American immigration policy cannot solve the problems of world overpopulation. But he adds something should be done to meet unexpected refugee developments such as the Hungarian revolution.

Lindsay reported plans to introduce legislation to move away from the piecemeal approaches of the past. It would define "refugee" as any alien who because of persecution or fear of persecution on account of race, religion or political opinion has fled or shall flee from any Communist territory or from any country of the Middle East.

But more important, it would empower the President in emergencies to parole into the U. S. 10,000 refugees who, after an unspecified period of time would become eligible for permanent residence.

As Sen. Kenneth Keating (R-N.Y.) said recently rapping partisan politics on a reform issue:

"It is rather an issue of the heart, or reasserting our faith in an America which welcomes those of foreign birth as potential citizens and valued contributors to our nation's future."

Commie Nations Conduct Own Opinion Polls

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Taking a leaf from the American book, Communist nations have started conducting their own public opinion polls. Sometimes they don't like what they find out, the U.S. Information Agency reports.

Communist pollsters have sampled public opinion in Poland, Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union, the USIA said in a report on its own research activities submitted to a House Appropriationn subcommittee and made public today.

Poll reports published in Communist newspapers usually are not complete enough to permit accurate judgments about the findings, the agency said, but they do "tell us something about what people are thinking behind the Iron Curtain, where USIA has an important audience."

The agency cited a report on a 1961 poll of Yugoslav students, conducted by the Zagreb Union of Communists, which indicated that "a large percentage of students had serious doubts about the validity of Marxist ideology."

"The poll reports also said that despite long indoctrination efforts, Yugoslav young people still are oriented largely toward private and personal pursuits in life," the USIA said. "The newspaper report of the poll indicated that authorities were not at all pleased with answers the students gave."

The agency also told of these findings of its own studies:

—Opinions of Castro-style communism among rural workers in Latin America "ranged downward from cool neutrality to strong rejection." Such workers favored land reform instituted by their governments, a seven-nation study showed.

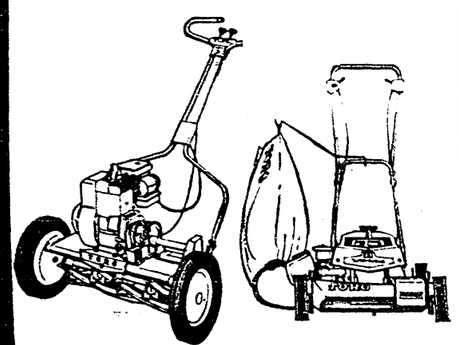

—"Among the urban discontented in Latin America, however, Communist ideas find more fertile ground. The main reservoirs of support for land and property expropriation and Castroism were the poor and those middle-income persons who were both dissatisfied with conditions and interested in politics."

—Student surveys in the Near and Far East, Africa and Latin America indicated that "a majority professed to dislike communism as a system, but in each country they always ranked socialism highest."

There are about 36 million women drivers in the United States—nearly one out of every three licensed car operators.

Actor Crawford Appreciates His New Sight

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Having known what it is to live in a world of darkness, Broderick Crawford knows how great is the blessing of sight.

Last December the Academy Award-winning actor was blinded in the right eye.

"I was making a picture in Spain called 'The Castilians,'" he said. "We were doing a sword fight and the director called the end of the scene. What with the language barrier, the Spanish kept on fighting and one of them hit me on the right side of my face, right next to the eye."

The blow caused a hemorrhage that blanked out vision in the eye. Hopeful that it was a temporary condition, Crawford finished the film and came home.

Doctors here told him he had suffered a traumatic cataract; the eye was beginning to glass over with the milky look of cataract victims. He submitted to surgery and for three days lay still, his eyes covered with tight bandages.

"That was the toughest part of all," he recalled. "You don't realize how helpless you are without your sight. I had to be fed like a baby."

When the bandages were finally removed, Crawford experienced the shock of re-entering the world of light. He found he was dazzled by the brilliance.

"The operation removed the film that ordinarily coats your eyes," he explained. "It's a remarkable thing. When I look at things with my left eye alone, they seem of normal color and shading. But when I look at them with my right, the colors stand out brilliantly."

Crawford made a fast recovery. Within six weeks, he was back at work, acting with Ed Begley and Jack Kelly in a drama for the debut of Kraft Mystery Theater on NBC June 19.

The actor has since been fitted with glasses which bring the right eye up to 20-20 while blurring the left one so the right eye will exercise properly. He is also trying out some new contact lenses.

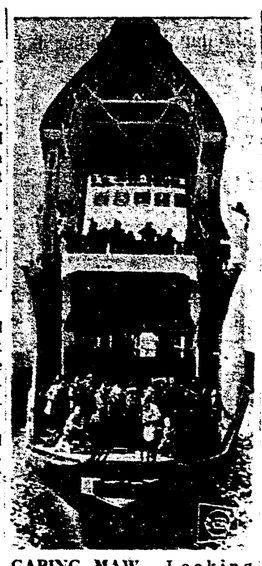

"It was quite a scare," said Crawford, who doesn't scare easily. "After I lost the sight of the right eye, I worried constantly about losing the other one. I guess it was only natural."

Iraq Prepares Armed Action Against Kurds

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP)—The Iraqi government prepared today to launch full-scale military action against Kurdish rebels in oil-rich northern Iraq as the Kurdish leaders defied a 24-hour surrender ultimatum.

"This means war," a Kurdish spokesman said after the government issued its ultimatum Monday and accused the Kurds of showing bad faith during negotiations for the autonomy they had been fighting for.

Iceland which became independent in 1944 formerly was a Danish colony.

GAPING MAW — Looking more like a hippopotamus opening its mouth than a German ferry, the Theodor Heuss docks on the Danish side of a new route between Germany and Denmark.

IN AND OUT

DENVER (UPI)—The Game and Fish Department finished with its use of a building in downtown Denver and moved out to new headquarters recently. So, State Planning Director William M. Williams announced Tuesday the state was using part of the space vacated. Williams said about 50 parking spaces available around the old building were being leased to state employes for $8 a month.

Convicts Help Two Victims Of Hemophilia

NEW YORK (AP)—This is the story of two boys and 76 convicts. The boys are brothers—Mike and Pete Meurer—2 and 4.

The two youngsters developed hemophilia at birth, a disease which prevents the blood from clotting, often causing its victims to bleed to death from a scratch.

Mike bumped his head on his crib last week and was rushed to Miamondes Hospital in Brooklyn where he was given blood transfusions.

Soon after, Pete struck his leg against a chair. He was taken to the same hospital for transfusions.

Thomas McCarthy, serving time in Queens County House of Detention on a weapons charge, read about the boys and how they each require about 100 pints of blood a year just to stay alive.

He asked fellow inmates to donate blood for the boys.

Then he wrote a letter to the boys' parents.

"We are getting together, 76 of us out here, and are donating a pint of blood apiece to help Michael and Peter. We are praying for you. Best regards to Mike and Pete."

Pete was told about the letter today and smiled. Mike died Monday before it came.

Prison authorities said the Red Cross blood bank will collect the blood and deliver it to the hospital for Pete.

McCarthy summed up his reason for starting the prison blood drive simply: "I have a couple of kids of my own."

NO SEAL OF APPROVAL HERE — This elephant seal, once an almost extinct specie, roars at photographer who invaded the seal's private beach on Ano Nuevo island, a wildlife preserve just south of San Francisco. Elephant seals were slaughtered in such vast numbers by oil hunters many years ago that they almost disappeared. Now they are making a comeback. (AP Wirephoto)

Local Women Will Attend Convention

The 44th annual convention of the Colorado State Federation of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs will be held on the campus of Colorado State University, Ft. Collins, on June 14, 15, and 16. Delegates attending from this area will be Mrs. Harriet Beals, Mrs. Lorraine Martin, Mrs. Johnie Fonte, Mrs. Naomi Fredricks, Capt. Joyce O'Claire, Miss Dorothy Onken, Miss Kay Bruce, Miss Evelyn Mayer, and Miss Helene Scheehan.

The theme of this year's convention is "leadership — a dimension in Democracy."

Dr. Minnie C. Miles, president of the National Federation will attend and conduct several workshops. Dr. Miles is an associate professor of commerce and business administration at the University of Alabama. She holds a Master's degree in business administration from Northwestern and a doctorate from Purdue University. Her work has been published in the "journal of applied psychology."

Where Your Dollar Goes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Department of Commerce says 10.2 cents of every dollar spent by the public goes for clothing, accessories and jewelry.

Food is the single biggest expenditure, claiming 21 cents out of every dollar. The department says 6.2 cents goes for medical care, 6.1 cents for recreation, 3 cents for alcoholic beverages, 6.2 cents for tobacco products, and 1.5 cents for religious and welfare activities.

A corn kernel is about four times as large as the average weed seed and can be planted deeper than normal in coarse mixtures-filled seedbeds, reports the University of Illinois.

Fishy

Rock lobster thermidor is delicious. Parboil six frozen rock lobster tails in boiling salted water for 3 minutes. Drain and remove meat, reserving shells. Add 1 cup of sour cream and ¼ teaspoon of salt to 1 well-beaten egg in a saucepan. Make a smooth paste of 1 tablespoon each of herb vinegar and flour. Add paste to sauce and stir over low heat to thicken. Do not boil. Add lobster and heat well. Fill shells with sauced lobster, sprinkle generously with grated cheddar cheese and broil until cheese bubbles. Serves 6

Ever heat cooked corned beef in a barbecue sauce and serve over bread or rolls for open sandwiches?

Hypertension

BALTIMORE (UPI) — If salt seems to lack its usual gusto, you may be a candidate for hypertensive disease.

Dr. Norman Fallis and associates at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine report that persons with elevated blood pressure do not seem to be able to taste salt as well as those with normal blood peessure.

Ω OMEGA Seamaster CALENDAR WATCH

HERE is one of the most modern of timepieces! 2 watches in 1... a wristwatch of utmost precision... and, a perpetual calendar. The self-winding Seamaster calendar model tells the exact time and the exact date...automatically ...without old-fashioned hand winding. Your everyday wrist motion is the only source of power needed to keep it running... always "on time" and "on date". You change the date manually only 5 times a year (in months with less than 31 days). Otherwise, just set your Omega and forget it. The handsome Seamaster DeVille case is water and shock resistant... and, surprisingly thin. We recommend the Seamaster to the man who puts perfection above price.

Winds itself while you wear it— needs no external power

Seamaster Calendar watches from $150. Other Omega Seamasters from $89.50 to $350. F.T.I.

HEY, DAGWOOD!

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—It took three people to carry the custom-made sandwich which publicized the Pacific Northwest Restaurant Convention and Exhibition held here.

The eight - foot - long loaf of French bread was loaded with eight pounds of lunch meat—42 different kinds. A local bakery produced several of the loaves, longest it had ever baked. Retail cost of the sandwiches, made up for delivery to news media people, was estimated at $30 each.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Here is a trick for making fruit and berry pies:

Fix all your fruit for one or more pies as usual . . . using fresh berries (black berries, etc.), adding sugar and your favorite seasoning.

Line a pie tin with waxed paper. Fill the pan with the pie filling and freeze.

Later . . . "remove" the frozen berries from the pie pan and store in the freezer, after wrapping, and use this pie pan again and again.

Now . . . when you want a pie, make your crust as usual and line the pan with the dough, remove paper from the frozen pie filling and just slip the frozen pie filling in. Cover the top with crust and bake!

No thawing out and adding sugar, etc., later. I even did apples like this last year, and found it worked fine. —Mrs. Ellen Norris

Mrs. Norris I think you're the greatest. Sure millions of women will love you! Especially now that the fruit and berry season is here. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Those summer white shoes get dirty so fast, especially when you are on your way to an appointment and want to look your best.

I always carry a piece of white chalk in my change purse and use it for a quick touch-up . . . it does wonders, especially on cloth or suede shoes. —Mrs. Leonard E. Whitlon

Dear Heloise:

Before leaving on a vacation, I water my house plants thoroughly and place the smaller pots in a plastic bag and fasten the top tight.

For large planters, I lay a plastic cleaner's bag around the plant and pull it up over the top and fasten tightly. When we get home, weeks later, my plants are always still very moist and I don't have to get anyone to come in and water them for me.

When I clean my oven with ammonia . . . thanks to you . . . I put my broiler pan and baking pans in the oven, too. That's the way I like to do things ... all in one fell swoop. —Diane Nestler

I suggest these plants be left in the bathtub or sink. Just in case . . . We don't want "rings" on our tables, etc. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

When your curtains blow against the screen (which rots curtains) I have found that if you will place a thumb tack on each side of the window frame and take a piece of thread . . . stringing it from one side of the frame to the other and winding it from tack to tack . . . it solves all your problems. This little piece of thread will keep the curtain from rubbing against the screen!

This not only saves the curtain but prevents it from getting soiled. Screens are dirty and full of dust. —T. S.

Dear Heloise:

If your summer wicker handbag has an elastic cord which is used as a fastener for the top and this gets broken or wears out, one can buy rayon elastic cord for about fifteen cents at any dime store. I bought the heaviest type they had.

This can be used to replace the worn-out cord on your straw bag. It's the one way I have ever found to repair my fastener and save buying a new handbag. —Mrs. Helen Manning

Dear Heloise:

For those who would like to dress up their old swimming caps . . . here's an easy and inexpensive way to do it.

Buy nylon lace, any width and color that you would like, and gather it on your sewing machine or by hand.

Buy some waterproof glue and glue the gathered lace on your swimming cap in rows starting at the outer edge and working toward the center and top of the cap. It's individual!

To give it an even more feminine look, add a perky bow or flower on the top of the cap and you have a new cap for summer swimming. —Glenda Stock

Pass	1 ♠	2 ♡	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠

South brought in an aggressively bid game contract today by maneuvering his opponent into a corner from which there was no escape.

When South opened the bidding with one diamond, West was confronted with an immediate problem. His hand was worth 16 points and merited aggressive action. A mere overcall to two clubs, however, might result in the loss of a profitable contract in spades if partner happened to have support for that suit so, despite the singleton heart, West chose to make a take-out double. North redoubled and, when this was passed back to West, he rescued himself to one spade, holding the club suit in reserve.

North now showed his heart suit and South rebid two no-trump. At this point it might have been a good idea for North to merely repeat his hearts in order to warn partner that his redouble was based essentially on distributional values. North chose, however, to carry on to three no-trump.

West opened the king of spades, ignoring his longer suit in favor of the more solid holding. Declarer won the trick with the ace and promptly led the ten of hearts. West was in with the lone ace and continued to establish his suit by playing the queen and then the ten of spades.

South attempted to run the hearts. When West discarded a club, however, it was revealed that East held a stopper in hearts. If South continued with the establishment of that suit it would provide the opponents with their setting trick. So after cashing the queen of hearts on which both the declarer and West threw clubs, South took a diamond finesse. When the jack held the trick, declarer cashed the ace and king stripping West of his remaining red cards.

A low club was led toward the dummy. West saw that, if he played low, dummy's king of clubs would win the trick and that a spade return would throw him into the lead forcing him to concede the game fulfilling trick to declarer's still guarded queen of clubs. West went up with the ace of clubs intending to throw the lead back to the North hand after he cashed his high spade. Declarer countered this move, however, by throwing North's king of clubs under the ace. West was effectively endplayed and South took the last two tricks with the queen and ten of clubs.

Woodland Park News

By ROSE M. DAVIS
687-9014

The 16th annual Ute Trail Stampede, sponsored by the Woodland Park Saddle Club, will be held July 19-21, at 1:30 each afternoon.

The rodeo is on the Rodeo Cowboys Association Circuit and each year draws top cowboys of the nation. Stock again will be furnished by Walt Alsbaugh of Alamosa.

The opening will be marked with the usual grand entry prade at 1:30 p.m., Friday, July 19.

The annual Stampede Parade will begin Saturday, July 20, at 10:30 a.m.

A Cowboys' Ball is scheduled for July 4. At this time the Stampede queen will be crowned with a sparkling white western hat.

The Saddle Club is financing the new building of steel structure on the rodeo grounds, just west of the grandstand. It will be available to community groups for dances and other activities.

The Woodland Park PTA will sponsor the Rodeo Dance, July 20.

The PTA is sponsoring a poster contest for the rodeo dance. Cash awards will be given for the most original and colorful posters. They will be judged in different age groups.

Information on the posters should include, "Rodeo Dance, Sat., July 20, 9 p.m." The place is indefinite pending the completion of the new Saddle Club House. Each contestant should put his name and age on his poster. Deadline for entrance is July 2. Posters are to be left at Mar-Rae's. Marge Kratzer and Jean Ernsperger will be judges. All school age youngsters are eligible to enter the contest. Posters should be not less than 12 by 15 inches in size.

A class in basic security analysis of stocks, bonds and investments started June 12 at the Herman Girls Ranch on Rampart Range Road. The course will continue for eight weeks. William Edgar, resident manager of Peters, Writers and Christensen, Inc., of Colorado Springs, is teaching the class. Tuition is $25 per couple or $15 single. All materials are furnished. For further information call Ric Herman, 687-9053.

The summer library located in the eighth grade room of the school is open on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Story hours are held each Wednesday at 10 a.m. The first story last Wednesday for the youngest age group was attended by 29 boys and girls. Mrs. Fenton Vest read to the children. Next Wednesday the story hour will be for the 6th, 7th and 8th grade level. This Wednesday was for the 3rd, 4th and 5th grade pupils. Several volunteers are helping take care of the library. Many books are being checked out and read.

Snowflake Chapter No. 153, Order of the Eastern Star, will have a special meeting in the high school gym. June 15 at 7:30 p.m. The Fairplay Past Matrons Club of Liberty Chapter No. 108 will present an initiation ceremony, as was performed in 1867. The officers of Snowflake Chapter and guests of Liberty Chapter have a potluck dinner in the school cafeteria at 5:30 p.m. All members of the Eastern Star are invited to attend the "Old Time Rocking Chair Initiation."

The Woodland Park PTA executive board met Wednesday night at the Lucian Jamison home. Several business matters were taken care of, mainly concerning the PTA sponsored rodeo dance July 20. Present for the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Jamison, Mrs. Richard Carvill, Mrs. Fay Roberts, Mrs. Dale Parker, Mrs. Monte Nichols and Mrs. Glen Davis.

First Baptist Church was the host church for the monthly Pikes Peak Association Workers meeting Tuesday evening. The executive board and association WMU meeting was held before supper. The group ate at the VFW Hall at 6:30. Speakers for the 7:30 meeting were pastors of three churches, Paul Cawthon, "The Doctrine of Sin". Wayne Williams, "The Doctrine of Atonement," and James KcKee, "The Doctrine of the New Birth."

Men of the Baptist Brotherhood worked on the church grounds Saturday, putting in five loads of dirt on the front lawn and planting grass.

The Baptist Church held its regular monthly business meeting Wednesday night.

The Assembly of God Ladies Council met Tuesday with Mrs. Lena Bost in Chipita Park. The lesson was taken from the 8th Chapter of Romans. Members present were Mrs. Dan Starr, Mrs. Claude Shaw, Mrs. Donna Heinch, Mrs. Lois Bachman and Mrs. Frank Derby.

Guest speaker of the Assembly of God Church Sunday was the Rev. Smith of Littleton.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Starr and Lorraine Sater visited Mr. and Mrs. Bob Sater at Ramah Sunday.

Cleopatra Not Great, Film Critics Declare

LONDON (AP) —British film critics who flew to New York for the press preview of the film Cleopatra reported today they saw a great movie which just failed to live up to its high price tag.

The Telegraph said, "It seems it will not go down in history as the greatest film ever made. When the curtain was rung down after four hours of pageantry, high drama and passionate love scenes, the press preview audience gave a few perfunctory claps."

The Mail said: "The dominant figure is not Elizabeth Taylor. It is Rex Harrison. His Caesar is a masterful performance."

The Express said it believed the film makers' $40-million gamble will succeed.

The Evening News critic said the film lacked suspense.

Wheat Combines In Kansas Shift Into High Gear

GREAT BEND, Kan. (UPI)—Wheat combines shifted into high gear in Kansas today, reaping what may be the 16th largest wheat crop in the state's history.

Farmers, who were heavy hit by winter kill, army worms and badly-timed drought, were cheered by the harvest. It may be the fifth largest yield per acre in Kansas.

With continued warm, dry weather—the harvest was expected to spread over most of the state by the week's end. Already test cuttings had been made as far north as Brown County, adjoining the Nebraska border.

Elevator operators indicated that quality was generally good.

The federal government has estimated the crop in Kansas at 177,387,000 bushels. Production was expected to average 21 bushels per acre. Last year the harvest produced 211,171,000 or 23.5 bushels an acre.

Rain failed to materialize this past winter and spring, but late rains had delayed some cutting. If the crop equals the government prediction and some farmers were dubious, it would be the smallest since 1957.

Atlanta Swimming Pool Is Integrated

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Some white children left but others stayed when young Negroes showed up today at the desegregated opening of the city's 12 public swimming pools.

One white woman walked up to a policeman and said, "Does the lifeguard have to save them if they drown? I wouldn't."

At Candler Park in East Atlanta only about 20 white children showed up compared with a normal turnout of 200. No Negroes were present there for the pool opening.

Corregidor Island Rehabilitation Urged

CHEYENNE (UPI)— Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., is calling here for a national subscription drive to rehabilitate Corregidor Island, which he said he found overgrown with jungle on a recent inspection mission to the island fortress.

McGee, speaking to the Wyoming state convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary, said the island should be rehabilitated as a permanent memorial to those who fought and died in its defense in World War II.

"Quite literally, the jungle has reconquered this historic island," McGee told the VFW women.

Bataan and Corregidor should stand forever, McGee said, "as a memorial to those valiant men who fought when nothing was left them but courage in defense of their country and freedom."

McGee proposed that a public subscription be conducted in this country and the Philippines to raise money to clear the jungle from the island and allow public access to the battlegrounds.

"I propose to leave the scars of war intact to remind us and people everywhere of the sacrifices made in defense of liberty by the American and Filipino soldiers on Corregidor and Bataan," McGee said.

The senator recently was appointed by President Kennedy to the Corregidor-Bataan Memorial Commission.

Prospect Lake Conoco's Grand Opening Saturday

Riz Abanto and Joe Buan, new leasees of the Prospect Lake Conoco Service Station, 305 S. Hancock Ave., will hold a grand opening Saturday, featuring a pound of Bar-S bacon with each 10 gallons or more of gasoline, baloons for the kiddies and soft drinks for adults.

Customers also will register for a transistor radio and a four-piece set of china, to be given away at 10 p.m. Saturday.

Prospect Lake Conoco will give Gold Bond stamps with purchases.

Both Abanto and Buan are natives of the Philippines and are U. S. Army veterans.

Abanto has been a Colorado Springs resident since 1958, and was stationed at Ft. Carson with the 9th Infantry Division, the Ft. Carson Headquarters unit and the 2nd Missile Command. He was discharged from the service last February as a lieutenant colonel.

Born in the Philippines, he came to the states when he was 13 and lived in San Andres, Calif. He was graduated in 1939 from the University of California at Berkeley.

Mr. and Mrs. Abanto have a son and three daughters. The family lives at 2206 N. Bennett St.

Buan was born in Manila and has been in the United States since 1951. He attended National University in the Philippines.

Buan joined the United States Army in 1942, and was captured by the Japanese when they invaded his native land. He was among those that made the Bataan death march, and while held prisoner at Camp O'Donnell in 1942, he escaped and joined guerrilla forces.

Buan served as a guerrilla until American forces invaded the northern end of the Philippines, when he rejoined the U. S. Army.

Working with the Army Air Force Security Courier Service in Yokohama, he was among the first to volunteer for service in Korea when war broke out there. Buan went to Korea during the first week of the conflict and served 14 months before being repatriated.

From 1957 to 1961, he was stationed at Ft. Carson, and after being discharged from the service at Ft. Riley, Kan., as a sergeant first class returned to Colorado Springs to make his home.

13th Victim Reported In Utah Truck Crash

ESCALANTE, Utah (AP)—Marvin E. Porschatis, 29, Salt Lake City, Wednesday night became the 13th victim of a truck crash that killed five other adults and seven Boy Scouts.

Forty-six were on the stake truck Monday afternoon when it rolled backwards down a steep grade, then tipped over into a ravine southeast of here near Hole-in-the-Rock.

Porschatis suffered a skull fracture. He never regained consciousness.

Fines Assessed in Denver Auto Mishap

DENVER (AP) — Fine totaling $51 have been assessed against the driver of an automobile which fatally injured Mrs. Mary F. Currigan, mother of Tom Currigan, Denver auditor and candidate for mayor.

The driver, Silas Wilkins, 20, pleaded guilty in municipal court to careless driving and failure to exercise due care for a pedestrian.

The 68-year-old Mrs. Currigan was struck as she crossed a street May 19.

South Africa Blasts Rugby Football Game

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Take what baseball is to America, cricket to England, golf to Scotland. Add them up and you have what rugby football is to South Africa.

An outspoken critic is K. A. Schrecker, senior lecturer in physical education at Pretoria University, who says rugby will be an evil for as long as it enjoys the "morbid admiration" it does in South Africa.

Schrecker believes generally rugby has a harmful effect on behavior. He wants a commission to inquire into its side effects. One aim should be, he says, "To establish how many motorists convicted of reckless driving are active or retired rugby players."

Most ornamental trees and shrubs do not require extensive annual pruning. Only the removal of dead and scaly branches is advised in most cases.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our Hus- band and Daddy, Nils J. Stohl who passed away two years ago today, June 13, 1961.

We loved him. Ah no tongue can tell how much we loved him and how well. God loved him too, and thought it best to take him home with him to rest.

The flowers we place upon your grave may wither and decay, but love for you will never fade away.

Sadly missed by his Wife, Leone Daughters & Son, Leonore & family Nilseene & family Ervin

SYMPATHY SAY IT WITH FLOWERS Joe Loveless

Canadians Oppose German Atom Force

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson claimed here "it is no secret" that one big aim of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's new defense approach is to keep Germany from becoming a nuclear power.

In a defense speech in the House of Commons Pearson said he did not feel that Canada would participate in the "new look" force of nuclear-armed planes and surface ships.

But he spoke highly of United States' aims in pressing for the unified NATO strike force, which was approved in principle by the alliance's foreign and defense ministers at their spring meeting here last month.

Dixiecrats Now More Afraid in Filibuster Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Southern senators are ready to filibuster against President Kennedy's civil rights program, but for the first time in years they are afraid they may fail.

A southern senator said he could not think of any civil rights legislation "the President will send to us" which southerners would not have to launch a filibuster against.

The civil rights legislation is expected to go to Congress this week.

Indications were increasing that the administration may get the necessary two-thirds vote to kill a filibuster.

Informed sources agree it will depend upon the amount of personal leadership President Kennedy puts into the effort, including consultations with GOP leadership as well as Democrats, and the scope of his proposals.

Republicans already have warned that if he applies a broad rather than limited use of the interstate commerce clause to integrate public accommodations his GOP support will dwindle.

Some other Republicans, and all southerners, also find unpalatable the plan to let the attorney general file civil suits for Negroes in school desegregation cases.

But the agreement this week by GOP senators that they will support "further appropriate" civil rights legislation gave the administration's carefully plotted legislative movement a needed lift.

FARM SURPLUS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's hoard of grain and other farm produce continues to swell. Agriculture Department figures show value of stockpiles at the end of Januaryrose $600 million to a record $8.5 billion. The previous peak was $8.2 billion in March 1959.

Gregory Peck Given Foreign Film Award

ROME (AP) — Gregory Peck, Geraldine Page and Darryl F. Zanuck were foreign winners Tuesday night of 1963 David of Donatello awards, among Italy's top film prizes.

Italian winners were Gina Lollobrigida, Silvana Mangano, Vittorio Gassman and Vittorio de Sica.

The miniature golden reproductions of Donatello's statue will be presented July 27 to Peck as the best foreign actor for "To Kill a Mocking Bird," to Miss Page as best foreign actress for "Sweet Bird of Youth," and to Zanuck for "The Longest Day," named the best foreign film.

Accoustical Ceiling Compromise Found

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board today endorsed a compromise agreement between two unions as the proper solution to a dispute over installation of acoustical ceilings in Colorado.

By a 3-2 vote, the NLRB held installation of suspended ceilings —apart from finish material — Should be assigned to lathers, rather than carpenters who had been hired to do the work in the Bear Creek school near Denver and at the Colorado State Mental Health Center at Fort Logan.

The board made the decision in compliance with a 1961 Supreme Court decision directing it to decide jurisdictional dispute cases.

Chairman Frank W. McCulloch and members John H. Fanning and Gerald A. Brown signed the majority report. Members Philip Ray Rodgers and Boyd Leedom favored giving the work to the carpenters.

The agreement upheld by the NLRB was one negotiated on a statewide basis by representatives of carpenters and lathers internationals to avoid jurisdictional strife.

The NLRB said the Carpenters Local 55, of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, AFL-CIO, had taken part in negotiating the agreement and should abide by it.

Longest Dog Sled Team Seen in Idaho

KETCHUM, Idaho (UPI)—The operator of a small dog kennel and pet store here says he has the longest dog sled team in the world.

It is so long, in fact, that Robert Black talks to his lead dog through a battery-operated radio system.

Black also boasts something unique in the dog world.

Mrs. Black combs his dog team and turns the combings into "sammy wool," or an odorless angora-like wool that can be used to make sweaters.

What kind of a team is this?

The dogs are known as Samoyeds, a strain Black says has never been crossbred and consequently are direct descendants from a breed of the earliest dog known.

His 21 - dog team, averaging about 45 pounds each in weight, can pull a load equal to about three-quarters of a ton. He uses the 70-foot long team hauling passengers from the nearby Sun Valley parking lot to Dollar or Baldy Mountains.

Dollar is a small skiing hump near by the resort's parking lot, but big Baldy is a number of miles away.

The Blacks came to Ketchum last November and operated the dog sled around town. During a parade here Black discovered the need for the battery-operated radio. He said noise from the parade drowned his orders before they reached the lead dog.

Mrs. Black combs the dogs in the spring when they are shedding. The females are combed right after they wean their pups.

She gathers the wool, washes and spins it, then can knit it or crochet it into whatever articles are desired. The items—and one of the most popular are baby boots—are sold in the Black's pet shop.

The kennel has 29 Samoyeds, all registered with the American Kennel Club. There are 64 dogs in all, including Scotties and West Highland Whites.

The 21-dog sled team was featured last year in the Apple Blossom parade in Washington and the Seattle, Wash., Grand Seafair parade.

Steel Industry May Consider Vacation Plan

NEW YORK (AP)—The Iron Age said today a steel industry wage settlement now in the making will include an extended vacation plan proportionate to one in the can industry.

Under a 1962 pact with the United Steelworkers Union, can manufacturers granted 13 weeks vacation every five years to employes with 15 years seniority.

The metalworking weekly said steel industry bargainers, working through a joint management-union human relations research committee, have been close to agreement for possibly six weeks.

"The human relations approach is being blamed in varying degrees—and by both sides—for inability to come to an agreement earlier," the magazine said.

"—According to sources within the bargaining groups, when talks reached the negotiation stage they continued to be conducted under rules designed for exploration and study, not final agreement," the Iron Age said.

"Because of this machinery, there had been no attempt to fill in the fine print of the extended vacation plan or any other section.

"Until the whole framework is assembled, no portion is considered firm."

Replay of Prep Finals Set in Legion's Opener

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

It won't change the record books as far as the 1963 state championship, but there undoubtedly will be more at stake than the outcome of just another game when the American Legion Junior Baseball program opens this Saturday at Peterson Field's diamond.

Paired in the opener are the same teams that battled for the Class AAA high school title only a few weeks ago in Greeley. State runnerup Wasson High's players will be representing Ent AFB as the lone regional Legion "A" squad, and the prep champions from Aurora will be the first visitors in this summer's schedule.

The game was originally slated for this Sunday, but both teams have agreed to play the double header on Saturday instead. The first contest is set for 5 p.m. on the Peterson Field layout, east of Colorado Springs just off Highway 24.

Other games on the Legion schedule call for Sunday games so far, altho Ent coach Bob Gill has indicated some of these may be changed to Saturday, also. The Ent team will play in the Jefferson County League of suburban Denver in that there are no other teams in this area in the American Legion program.

The rest of the schedue has Ent playing host to Wheat Ridge, June 23; an eight-team tournament at Longmont, June 29-31; a road twin bill at Arvada, July 7; home games against Lakewood, July 14; and the league finale at Littleton, July 21. Gill said his Ent team probably will play several non-league games on weekdays with other Legion teams from thruout the state, but no schedule for these contests has been worked out as yet.

The state finals for Legion ball are scheduled for Pueblo, Aug. 9-11. This year the Ent team will qualify for the finals no matter how they finish in the Jefferson County League because the state berths are allotted by district and Ent is the only regional representative.

The season's opener this Saturday is expected to be one of the best of the summer, since these teams are essentially the same that finished 1-2 in the state finals.

The majority of the Ent players come from Wasson's South Central League champions and the same is true for the Aurora crew, which won the diadem in the Jeff-Co League. The state finals saw Aurora nip the Thunderbirds, 8-4, after Wasson had advanced to the championship game for the second straight year with a 3-0 decision over defending state titlist, Grand Junction.

Aurora will be minus its ace pitcher-outfielder, Don Young, who has since signed a professional contract with the St. Louis Cardinals. Young was a hitting star of the prep tournament and came on in relief against the T-Birds in the final game.

However, Aurora will have the services of most of the rest of that team including five others who were selected on the All-Tournament team. These were catcher Harry Sussman, second baseman Ken Kurtz, first baseman Bill Brill, outfielder Brian Moffett, and utility infielder Dan Kelly. In addition, they're expected to have pitcher Tim Scheibler, the winner over Wasson in the state championship game last month.

The Ent nine will have a fine two-handed punch in pitching with Tim Hamilton and Leroy Porterfield from the Wasson team. Hamilton, the probable starter in the first game this Saturday, compiled an 11-0 record this past spring with the T-Birds and has lost only one game in his three-year career. Porterfield had a 2-2 mark this past season and was also a three-year veteran.

In addition, Hamilton had a fancy .483 batting average and Porterfield swung the bat at a .400 clip so they probably will both alternate in the field when not on the mound.

Others off the Wasson team now playing for Ent are shortstop Darrell Greene, third baseman Mike Teague, catcher Butch Meller, and center fielder Mike Hinton. Teague paced this group with a .436 average for the season, Hinton had a .411 mean, Green was next with .409 and seven home runs in 21 games, and Meller was outstanding as a defensive catcher as well as hitter for a .270 average.

Joining these Wasson players are infielder Sam Gieck and outfielder Lloyd Crawford from Harrison High School, and Tom Johnston from Manitou Springs High. Gill indicated there was still openings on the team for anyone under 19 years old from those schools who would like to tryout for the squad. The team practices daily at 5:30 p.m. at Peterson Field.

With all league games scheduled as double headers, the Ent team will play 10 contests plus three more in the Longmont tournament and several more in weekday non-league action.

Former Yankee Turley Helps Bombers to Lead

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Yankees took a deep bow today in the direction of former teammate Bullet Bob Turley, a pitcher they dispatched to the Los Angeles Angels when his pop gun ran out of POP.

The 32-year-old right-hander gave the Yankees a boost into the American League's top spot Wednesday night with a one-hit 5-0 victory over the White Sox.

That gave the Angels a split of a twi-night doubleheader—Chicago's John Buzhardt hurled a three-hit 3-1 first game triumph—and dropped the White Sox .001 points behind New York. The Yankees reached the top rung with a 3-2, 10-inning triumph over sagging Baltimore.

Meanwhile, Cleveland's Indians rolled to their sixth consecutive victory with a costly 12-6 triumph over Detroit in which they lost outstanding rookie outfielder Vic Davilillo for at least four weeks with a broken right forearm.

In other games, Boston used the home run punch to down Washington 5-3 and Kansas City and Minnesota played richochet in splitting a doubleheader. The A's pounded 17 hits for a 12-4 victory, then the Twins lashed 13 for an 8-1 triumph.

Turley posted the 100th victory of his 12-year major league career. He struck out seven and walked four in bringing his record to 2-5. Leon Wagner helped him by going 4-for-4, including his 15th home run.

Buzhardt, 7-2, fell behind 1-0 in the second inning of the opener but went on to rrtire the Angels in order until the eighth. By then the White Sox had pulled ahead on Nellie Fox' run-scoring single in the second, Ron Hansen's sacrifice fl yin the third and Pet Ward's homer in the seventh.

The Yankees tied it in the eighth on Tom Tresh's double and Joe Pepitone's single, then won in the 10th when Brooks Robinson opened the door by muffing Bobby Richardson's grounder. Richardson moved around to score the clincher on a sacrifice, a walk and Roger aris' single. It was the Orioles' fifth straight loss and their 11th in 13 games.

Davalillo was hit by a Hank Aguirre pitch in the first inning and was replaced by Jerry Kindall, who started the Indians' winning three-run rally in the seventh inning with a double. A walk, two passed balls and singles by Joe Adcock and Willie Kirkland did the rest of the damage. The Tigers had built an early lead on homers by Al Kaline, Jake Wood and Dick McAuliffe.

The Red Sox scored all their runs on a three-run homer by Ed Bressoud, and solo shots by Carl Yastrzemski and Dick Stuart while Billy Monbouquette, 8-4, scattered eight Senator's hits. Jim King homered for Washington.

New Event In NCAA Track Meet

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI)—The six-mile run — a new event—will climax tonight's opening competition in the NCAA track and field championships at the university of New Mexico Stadium.

Twenty runners are entered in the grueling race, which is a substitute for the 10,000-meter run held during Olympic years. The six mile race is 396 yards shorter, and unlike other events on the three-night program had no qualifying standard.

Most of the first night's competition will be trials in the dash events as the NCAA weeds out the best of its 403 individual athletes who comprise 583 entries in the 42nd annual championships.

The meet was stretched over three nights for the first time this year, with the extra day affording more rest for runners during preliminaries. The night events offer relief from the summer New Mexico heat and windstorms of the day.

There are 111 teams represented in the meet, with the largest team entry the 20 athletes from defending champion University of Oregon.

Pueblo Dog Results

PUEBLO — T.V. Roc N Roll from the George S. Murphey Kennel of Phoenix broke second, took the lead at the first turn and went on to a one and a half length victory in the featured race at Pueblo Greyhound Park Wednesday night.

Cecil Wilson's John Kay, making his first start of the meet, broke first and receded to second, holding the runner-up spot the rest of the way.

Dogs racing from the No. 4 box figures in six of the 10 quinielas with four first and two second.

"I GOTCHA!" — Missouri University's catcher John Sevcik, blocking the plate, starts his dive toward Grant Hawgood of Arizona University in the seventh inning of their College World Series game Wednesday night at Omaha. Hawgood attempted to score from second when Ron Theobold's smash back to the mound struck the pitcher's foot. Third baseman Dave Harvey recovered the ball and threw to the plate in time to nail Hawgood. Arizona remained undefeated in the tournament by licking Missouri, 6-4. (AP Wirephoto)

Arizona Pounds Missouri In College World Series

By JERRY GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

OMAHA (AP) — Alert Arizona proved with lusty hitting that Missouri's pitching staff isn't invincible—and it may be that some spy work was the turning point of the college world series.

The Wildcats climbed all over Missouri's heralded Jack Stroud Wednesday night, rocking him for two homers and handing him his first collegiate loss. The 6-4 victory over the nation's No. 1 ranked team left Arizona the only unbeaten club in the tournament.

The NCAA's double-elimination event enters its fourth round tonight with only Arizona sure of sticking around another day. The Wildcats play Texas after Missouri faces Southern California. Texas, Missouri and Southern California are 2-1 in the series.

The Longhorns ousted Penn State 6-4 in 10 innings Wednesday after blowing a 4-0 lead with two out in the ninth. Five straight walks in the 10th produced two runs for victorious Texas.

Southern California eliminated Florida State 4-3 gunning three Seminole runners down at the plate.

Stroud, only southpaw in Missouri's unusually strong college big four, was the pitcher the major league scouts were itching to see. The sophomore dazzled them through two hitless innings before Arizona suddenly started jolting him.

After two singles, Bob Maxwell slammed a 3-run homer and Ron Theobald followed with another drive over the left field fence.

Scouts sitting low in the stands behind home plate claimed Stroud was tipping off his pitches. They said his delivery was slightly different for a fast ball than a curve.

"Curve," said one as Stroud made his delivery to Maxwell.

Maxwell whacked the curve over the left field wall.

Most of the 10 hits Stroud allowed in his seven innings were hard shots by confident hitters dug in at the plate against the young left hander.

Frank Sancet, Arizona's coach, would say nothing about whether his club was doing some espionage against Stroud.

But Missouri's Hi Simmons doubted it.

"No, I don't think so, said Simmons. "Our pitcher just wasn't throwing hard."

But the scout sat there through Stroud's seven innings and was able to call about every pitch before it left his hand.

WEDNESDAY'S RESULTS
Third Round
Arizona 6, Missouri 4
Southern California 4, Florida State 3, Florida State eliminated
Texas 6, Penn State 4, 10 innings, Penn State eliminated
THURSDAY'S GAMES
Missouri vs. Southern California
Arizona vs. Texas

Jolly Plumbing Scores Upset Over Favorite Navajo Hogan

Sometimes it pays not to play. That's what league-leading Bernardo's found out as they increased their margin atop the City Softball League standings Wednesday night altho idle.

Navajo Hogan, Bernardo's closest competitor so far this season, was whipped by Jolly Plumbing in one of the biggest upsets of the summer, 4-3, to give every club in the loop except Bernardo's at least two losses. In other City League play, Lorig's evened up its record at 2-2 with a 6-1 triumph over Budweiser.

Meanwhile in the Industrial League, Aircraft Mechanics dropped its first of the season with City Utilities coming from behind in the seventh inning to win, 6-5. And Denver Equipment kept in the running to top honors this year with a 15-2 slaughter of Clifton Precision.

That left Bernardo's in the City League and Telephone Co. in the Industrial both pacing their groups with 4-0 records. Tonight a limited slate is on hand with all play in the Industrial. Aircraft Mechanics will meet Burrough's in a 7 p.m. contest and City Utilities clashes with winless I.T.U. in the nightcap. Field No. 4 at Memorial Park will be used for YMCA-Church League games tonight.

Pitcher LeRoy Long singled home Don McInany with the winning run with two out in the last of the seventh to give Jolly Plumbing its 4-3 upset over the Hogans. Plumber Paul Finch had erased a 3-0 Hogan lead with an inside-the-park three-run homer in the fifth following singles by Archie Scott and Don Yeakel to ruin the shutout hurling of Hogans' Casey Rathbun.

The Navajo nine scored all three of its runs in the first two innings with left fielder Walt Englehardt accounting for the lone Hogan run in the second with a solo blast over the left field fence.

In the second game, Lorig's exploded for six runs in the fifth and ninth innings to dump Budweiser 6-1. Bob Gieck tossed a six-hitter to stop the Brewers who went down to their third loss in four decisions. Lorig's is now tied with the Hogans for second at 2-2.

Lorig's knocked starter Al Viel off the mound with a four-run uprising in the fifth as the clothing crew sent eight men to the plate. Viel had thrown three-hit shutout ball thru the first four frames.

Dick Skidmore doubled home the winning tally in the last of the seventh to give City Utilities its win. His double followed two Aircraft errors which allowed Willis Roe and Bob Campbell to reach base.

Denver Equipment capitalized on walks and errors to score nine runs in the first inning and six more in the second to smother Clifton. The Equipment nine sent 13 men to the plate in the initial frame and 11 in the second to easily to take their third win in four outings. Clifton lost their second straight of the season.

British Open Exempt List

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (UPI)—Six Americans are among the 44 golfers who will not have to qualify for this year's British Open championship at the Royal Lytham and St. Anne's links, July 10-12.

The exempt list announced Wednesday night is headed by Arnold Palmer of Latrobe, Pa., winner of the last two tournaments, and follow Yank Jack Nicklaus, the leading money-winner on the current U.S. pro tour.

The qualifying rounds for the other spots will be held on July 4-5.

O'Toole Gets 11th Win; Dodgers Regain Lead

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

That star strutting at the head of baseball's big parade is Jim O'Toole, who couldn't even make the rear ranks as a kid pitcher.

Cincinnati's prize southpaw, bounced out of an amateur league in his teens btcause of a scattergun arm and shunned by several teams in the majors after tryouts, has added another victory as the biggest winner in the big leagues.

Firing a three-hitter, O'Toole pitched the Reds over Pittsburgh 3-0 Wednesday night for his 11th triumph.

It was the 26-year-old left-hander's second shutout in a row and fifth of the season—and it gave Cincinnati a vital boost in the National League race. The Reds are in fifth place, but only 2½ games off the pace.

The Los Angeles Dodgers regained a slender lead with a 9-1 rout of Houston that put them .002 ppoints ahead of San Francisco and St. Louis. The Giants beat fourth-place Chicago 3-1 on Willie McCovey's two homers and Bob Bolin's strong pitching, while Philadelphia knocked the Cardinals out of first, 6-2.

In the other NL game, Lew Burdette, Milwaukees expendable right-hander, threw a three-hitter and Hank Aaron slugged in five runs in the Braves' 9-0 romp against the New York Mets.

O'Toole struck it rich with the pitching-poor Reds when he was signed to a $50,000 bonus six years ago. Now in his fifth full season with the club, he shows a current record of 11-3 and a earned run average of 2.07.

He again showed his control improvement in blanking the Pirates. He did not allow a single walk.

Frank Robinson keyed the Reds' decisive two-run fourth inning by doubling in Vada Pinson, stealig third and scoring on a force play. Pinson singled in the other run in the fifth. Earl Francis was the loser.

Maury Wills continued his spectacular batting for the Dodgers, rapping out three singles and a double against the Colts for 16 hits in his last 23 tries. Tommy Davis went 3-for-3 in the Dodgers' 13-hit assault, Ron Fairly knocked in three runs, and Dick Tracewski hit his first major league homer.

Lefty Johnny Podres was tagged for 10 Colt hits but struck out nine and did not allow a walk. He's now 4-5, while loser Don Nottebart, who hasn't won since his no-hitter against Philadelphia May 17, dropped to 5-4.

McCovey whacked his homers off Bob Buhl, with one on in the first inning and none on in the third. Bolin, ace reliever turned starter, limited the Cubs to four hits and struck out 14—highest for a Giant pitcher since the club moved west from New York in 1958.

The Phils had three-run innings off Cardinals starter Ron Taylor and veteran reliever Bobby Shantz. Tony Gonzalez and Clay Dalrymple batted across two runs each for Philadelphia.

Art Mahaffey ended a personal six-game losing string with relief help from John Boozer and won his third against eight setbacks.

Burdette, 36-year-old Brave right-hander who is on the trading block, gave tht punchless Mets only three singles for his sixth victory. Aaron warmed up with a two-run single in the third inning that opened the scoring, then belted his 18th homer with two aboard in the fourth. Galen Cisco, 3-6 was the loser.

Braves Would Like to Unload Lew Burdette

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves are hurting at the gate and they'd like to unload veteran Lew Burdette and his hefty salary. However, the fidgety right-hander is putting the brass in somewhat of a bind.

Burdette laughed at trade talk in a pitcher's best manner Wednesday night as he allowed only three harmless singles in a 9-0 victory over the New York Mets.

"To heck with the trading business," the 36-year-old Burdette said. "I just want to pitch regularly."

The Braves asked waivers on Burdette only last month. The waivers were recalled when the St. Louis Cardinals expressed a willingness to accept fidgety Lew's reported salary of $50,000.

Burdette, whose 179 major league victories include six in 11 decisions this year, admitted that he couldn't "help but think a little about all the trade talk."

"You hear rumors every year, but this is the first time I think I've ever been really involved in serious discussion," he said. "I can do only one thing — go out there and do my best. I have a lot of pitching left and I can't let trade rumors rattle me."

Said Milwaukee Manager Bobby Bragan: "If he pitches like that, he has to be in the untouchable class."

U. S.-Russian Track Meet to Be Aired

NEW YORK (UPI)—The track and field meet between the United States and Russia from Moscow's Lenin Stadium on July 21 and 22 will be televised in the United States on videotape by the American Broadcasting Company. Highlights of the meet will be shown July 23.

The Los Angeles Angels made 175 errors and were last in American League fielding percentages in 1962.

A-State Coach Takes New Job

ALAMOSA, Colo. (UPI)— Successful Adams State College football coach Darrell E. Mudra, 32, announced Wednesday he was resigning to become director of athletics, professor of physical education and head football coach at the North Dakota State University.

Mudra, who has guided teams to three Rocky Mountain Conference football championships in his four years here, compiled a record of 32 wins, four losses and one tie. The team last year won the Missouri Water Bowl Game at Excelsior Springs, Mo.

His successor has been named.

Salt Lake City Squeezes Past Denver

By TE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Spokane Indians aren't just knocking on the door. They're whacking away at it with one of the most dangerous bats in the Pacific Coast League.

The bat belongs to Al Ferrara, league runs-batted-in leader, who pounded three runs across the plate Wednsday night when the Indians routed the Seattle Rainiers 12-6.

The thuds were heard all the way to Portland, where the Tacoma Giants—present occupants of the Northern Division leader suite—were edged 4-3 by the Beavers. The decisions chopped the Giants' lead over the Indians to 2½ games.

Elsewhere, Dallas-Fort Worth improved its Southern Division lead when it outslugged San Diego 7-4, Hawaii topped Oklahoma City 7-5 and Salt Lake City squeezed by Denver 5-4.

Ferrara knocked in two of his runs with a single in Spokane's seven-run eighth inning. Red Graber also hit a two-run single in the eighth and Lib Julian singled twice in the same frame.

Portland got the edge on Tacoma with Jose Tartabull's one-run single with two out in the bottom of the ninth. Tacoma won the home run contest with bases-empty clouts by Jerry Robinson and Don Gile. Bill Kern homered for Portland.

Both the Padres and the Rangers had four home runs. It was the fifth loss in a row for San Diego.

Salt Lake smacked 12 hits, including five doubles, in downing the Bears. Denver took an early lead, but the Bees went ahead to stay with a three-run seventh.

Three 89er hurlers were rapped for 14 hits as the Islanders posted their 7-5 victory.

WILLIE DIDN'T MAKE IT—San Francisco left fielder Willie McCovey, who homered twice Wednesday night against the Chicago Cubs to drive in three runs, is cut down at the plate by Cubs catcher Dick Bertell in the fifth inning. McCovey was trying to score on teammate Willie Mays' double to left. McCovey blasted his 12th and 13th homers of the season Wednesday at Candlestick Park as the Giants beat the Cubs, 3-1. Turley's One Hitter Tumbles Chicago From Atop AL

CHICAGO (AP)—Once a Yankee, always Yankee—as far as the Chicago White Sox were concerned today.

Bob Turley, once a 21-game winner for the Yankees, hurled a one-hitter at Comiskey Park Wednesday night to tumble the White Sox from first place in a twin bill split with the Los Angeles Angels.

Turley's masterpiece—he had a budding no-hitter spoiled by Pete Ward's clean single to center in the sixth inning—came in a 5-0 Los Angeles nightcap triumph after Johnny Buzhardt's three-hitter gave the Sox a 3-1 opening victory.

The split, coupled with New York's 3-2 10-inning decisions over Baltimore, nudged the Yankees one percentage point ahead of the White Sox, .577 to .576.

Turley, signed by the Angels this spring after he was conditionally purchased from the Yankees in October, achieved his 100th victory of his major league career with the one-hitter.

His only previous triumph this season against five defeats was a three-hit, 2-0 shutout of Minnesota on May 7.

Turley recalled this was "my third or fourth one-hitter."

Ward belted a "good, low slinder" for the only Sox hit Wednesday night. Turley said, adding: "He didn't meet the ball clean, or it would have been lofted higher and been caught."

Only One All-Star Game This Year

NEW YORK (AP) — In small circles around major league baseball dugouts, players, coaches and managers were discussing today how to single out the top players for starting berths in the 1963 All-Star baseball game at Cleveland, July 9.

The little knots began to form with notification Wednesday from the office of Commissioner Ford Frick that polling of the clubs for the All-Star classic would be held the week of June 21-27. Only one All-Star game will be played this year. For the past four years, two have been played.

The voting will determine the starting teams, with the exceptions of pitchers. The hurlers and the remainder of the 25-man squads will be picked by the managers, Al Dark of the National League and Ralph Houk of the American.

Women's Open Golf Tourney Set July 1-3

NEW YORK (UPI) — The 1965 Women's Open golf championship will be held at the Atlantic City Country Club at Northfield, N.J., July 1-3. This year's tourney is scheduled for the Kenwood Country Club in Cincinnati and the 1964 championship at the San Diego Country Club, Chula Vista, Calif.

'Weaker' Sex Takes Over Golf's Spotlight

The month of July this year is expected to produce the best golf in the history of Colorado — at least from the side of the "weaker" sex. Two of the nation's top four tournaments will be held this summer in the Centennial state and distaff golfers from thruout the country will be competing.

The top two tournaments will be the Women's Western, slated for July 8-13 at the Broadmoor Course in Colorado Springs, and following right on its heels will be another of the gals' outstanding tournaments, the Women's Trans-Mississippi.

This summer the Trans-Miss will be held at the Pinehurst Country Club in Littleton, a suburb of Denver, on July 22 thru 27.

Entries have been pouring in for the Western Amateur at the Broadmoor, and also for the Broadmoor Women's Invitational, which is scheduled just the week before on the colorful hillside course near Cheyenne Mountain. With the Western following so closely, it's expected that many nationally-known golfers will enter both tournaments.

Officials of the Trans-Mississippi at Pinehurst have just announced requirements for entering that tournament, which should draw a field of 144 contestants representing every state in the Union.

Qualifications include the requirements that the entrant be a member of a golf club belonging to the Women's Trans-Mississippi Golf Association. The entrant must also have no more than a maximum handicap of 15, rated by the USGA as of May 1 this year.

The Trans-Miss has three divisions — Championship, Senior for women who will admit to being over 50, and Junior, for entrants 18 and under. Last year's winner was Jeannie Thompson of Tulsa and the runnerup was Ann Casey Johnston of Wichita, who competed on the U. S. team in the Curtis Cup Matches at the Broadmoor.

Registration for the Trans-Miss will close at 1 p.m. on Saturday, July 20. For additional information concerning registration in the Trans-Miss, golfers should contact Mrs. Edward Safford, 445 Christmas Tree Dr., Boulder, Colo.

Yankees Farm Hands Tally Win in International Loop

By United Press International

It was almost like the Yankees playing the Mets.

Many of the names were the same and only the uniforms were different as the Richmond Virginians edged the Buffalo Bisons 4-3 in 10 innings in an International League game Wednesday night.

Pedro Gonzalez, being groomed for a spot in the Yankee infield, and Don Buddin, also Yankee property, slammed home runs for the Virginians while former Mets Ted Schreiber and Marv Throneberry connected for Buffalo. Buddin's homer came in the 10th inning and accounted for the winning run.

On the pitching side, Tex Clevenger and Roland Sheldon, both of whom started the season in New York, worked for Richmond and Met armhands Steve Dillon, Ray Daviault, Babe Bierrer and Bill Hunter toiled for the Bisons. Sheldon gained his second straight victory after three defats and Hunter was the loser.

The Indianapolis Indians turned back the Columbus Jets 7-4 behind the combined pitching of Joe Shipley and Verle Tiefenthaler while Jacksonville at Syracuse, Atlanta at Rochester and Arkansas at Toronto all were postponed because of bad weather.

The standings:

Northern Division	W.	L.	Pct.	GB
Syracuse	33	23	.589	...
Buffalo	33	27	.550	2
Rochester	32	28	.533	3

Hobby of Magic Is Used by Clergymen

By BEN LAIME

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—There's magic in the Protestant ministry today—and it's helping the clerics' work.

During a recent convention of the Society of American Magicians, several Protestant clergymen explained how they are using their hobby of magic in religion.

The Rev. Robert C. Anderson, a captain in the Chaplain Corps of the U.S. Army stationed at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., said magic and religion are more compatible than most people realize.

He illustrated his point by "transforming" three separate silk handkerchiefs into one large, handsome scarf imprinted with a butterfly.

"This illusion," said Chaplain Anderson, "has helped me show individuals how they could change aimless, fragmented lives into lives of personal worth and of service to the community."

Maj. Wayne Lockhart of the Salvation Army, another of the magi-ministers, changed a black silk handkerchief into white in his magic red velvet bag.

"This is a simple, yet very instructive way to show a person how he can change his life for the good," Maj. Lockhart said. "This is a particularly popular trick in my prison visiting."

Other ministers who are members of the society said they use their magic to entertain hospital patients and in parish use for Sunday School sessions and church parties.

"Magic is particularly good for children," one minister said. "But you'd be surprised how old the children can be, church-goers or not."

Film Society to See 'Passionate Summer'

"Passionate Summer," A French dialog with English subtitles film, will be shown by the Film Society at its meeting at 8 p.m. Friday, at the Fine Arts Center. The showing is open to the public with admission at the door.

Raf Vallone stars in this tale of passion set in the mountains of southern France, where three French women live alone until a handsome Italian peasant comes to their farm. Each of the lonely women desires him, and secret love leads to jealousy and near tragedy in the isolated house. Uge Betti, who wrote the play from which this film was adapted, is considered in his native Italy to be second only to Pirandello.

Directed by Charles Brabant, photography by Sechan ("The Red Balloon" and "The Silent World"), "Passionate Summer," produced in 1956, has been called "the year's best foreign film" by the New York Daily Mirror.

A short, "Surprise Boogie," an abstract animation, will also be shown.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Darned Careless!

DEAR ABBY: There is a man in our crowd who is loaded with money, but we have never seen him without holes in the heels of his socks. He has many pairs of socks, but they "all" have holes in the heels. He's not careless about the rest of his attire. He wears tailor-made suits, and expensive shirts, but his holey socks spoil his appearance. Should we write his wife an anonymous letter telling her to do something about it? —ED'S FRIENDS

DEAR FRIENDS: If Ed has holes in "all" his socks, he knows they're there and doesn't care. Leave his wife alone. She apparently doesn't give a darn.

DEAR ABBY: I know you have had many screwball people write to you, but I assure you I am not one of them. I want to do something to benefit mankind and I can't think of anything better than to give my life for scientific research. If you know of any institution that wants a live, healthy body for a scientific experiment, please let me know. I hope you will not print my name because I have already shocked enough people with my ambition. I am dead serious. —HUNTSVILLE

DEAR HUNTSVILLE: You may be "dead" serious—but you are still very much alive. I know of "no" institution that would accept your generous offer.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is going to be an usher at a wedding soon. I know that an usher is expected to "look after" a bridesmaid, but where do I come in? We're out-of-towners, and I know no one on either side, so I'll have to go to the wedding alone. At the reception, am I supposed to sit and watch my husband dance with the bridesmaid all evening? Also, the night before the wedding there is a rehearsal supper party. I am not invited to that, but my husband will escort the bridesmaid. One of the other ushers is married, but "his" wife is a bridesmaid, so she'll be included in everything. Am I supposed to forget that I'm married during the wedding festivities, and let my husband run wild with his bridesmaid? —SIZZLING

DEAR SIZZLING: Your husband's role as a husband takes priority over that of an usher. And his role as a "man" should justify his asking the bride and groom where his wife comes in.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Herman": One Frenchman put it very well. He said, "There is no such thing as a 'pretty good' omelet".

For a personal, unpublished answer to your letter, write to "Abby", Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Don't put off writing letters. Send one dollar to Abby for her booklet, "How To Write Letters For All Occasions."

Cooper Diary Gives Vivid Account of Space Voyage

By JOHN BARBOUR

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — As you'd expect of a quiet man thrust suddenly into the focus of the world's eye, Astronaut L. Gordon Cooper Jr. told of his space adventure best to himself and his diary.

That diary — tape recordings he made on his 22 rapid-fire days and nights in space — was released today by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

It is a graphic account of a man alone in his space cabin on what has become the last flight of the pioneer Mercury spacecraft—and probably the last long-term flight of an American for almost two years.

There is no assurance that the transcript is complete. Parts of the transcription were garbled. Parts may have been deleted for security reasons. And once the troubles that endangered the Cooper flight showed up he apparently gave up his private tape recording.

Conspicuous by its absence is any description of the remarkable details Major Cooper said he saw of a truck, a train and other signs of life in the high Himalayas, including part of Red China.

But aside from that, Cooper—in the privacy of his space cabin—seems finally relaxed and alone with the heavens, despite an apparent initial overawareness he was being tape recorded. Let the diary tell it:

"Well (clears throat) first night side and I have a bright blue band. A thick, diffused band of blue color — the sun is spread out very widely. It's settling now. And there it goes. A very bright blue band all the way around the earth."

A minute later, brought back to the reality of weightlessness by a piece of floating debris, he says, "Captured another washer. That's my second one."

With less than an hour in space, Cooper reported to his diary:

"And I have the haze layer that Wally (Schirra, a fellow astronaut) was talking about. I can see the stars down in it. And it is — up and around the earth —to a number of degrees... I can see the stars above it. I can see the stars down in it:

"I have seen several lightning flashes on the ground now. I see them on the earth now.

"And there is Orion, Betelguese. What a beautiful night to night."

Cooper was constantly pulled out of his soliloquy by radio contact from the ground as he came within range of stations under his flight path. But then he returned to his diary:

"Ha-ha. And now at this time . . . I'm observing John's (Glenn's) fireflies. Drifting away from me. I can observe them, appear to be departing from the spacecraft and drifting out to the rear. I then can see some of them a considerable distance to the rear. . .

"Sun is coming up behind me. I'm beginning to get the glow on the clouds. (pause) Fireflies appear to be white, very whitish with almost a green, like real fireflies. (pause) The clouds on the earth below are changing color, are getting quite light. (pause)

"And (clears throat) I am now on the day side. The sun is not yet quite up, and I am observing stars. The earth is light below me and the sun is still behind me. The sky looks dark above me, and I can see stars very distinctly."

The changes on the earth below contrasted sharply with the steady predictable world of space. One minute Cooper was reporting:

"Coming in over the coast of Africa. It's very clear here. No clouds. No haze. I'll try and snap (some pictures) of the Atlas Mountains. . . It's very dry, very clear over Africa. We're drifting window down, ideal attitude."

Half an hour later — over the south Indian Ocean — Cooper reported:

"I am now drifting on the night side. I have the moon in sight. I'm upside down. I'm observing lightning flashes from considerable-size thunderstorms that are below me. These create static in the radio every time the lightning flashes down there."

Earlier, he said, "people wonder if it's hard to sleep up here. I just drifted off for about three or four minutes on a quick little nap. Sleep here just like you do anywhere else."

As the diary rolls on, Cooper seems to be getting more accustomed to the wonders of passing days and nights, fireflies and haze layers and begins to think aloud about them.

"Sunrise—and the sun is in behind me. . . to the rear of me. With Saturn along by it—and I'm getting John's fireflies again, coming off the spacecraft. And you could almost align them (the direction the spacecraft is pointing, right or left) by the fire-flies. They drift away to the rear. . . of the flight path."

He was later to pinpoint the source of the fireflies—tiny icicles from the small jets that enable him to control spacecraft position.

The diary continues: "Lightning flashes on the ground, down on earth, that is. Terrible cloud cover. Venus and Jupiter. . . Jupiter on the left hand of the window. . and I'm beginning to get brilliant blue of sun rising in the East."

He had searched for the flashing beacon he had released from his orbiting spacecraft. But he hadn't been able to find it. Then the flashing beacon. . . The light in sight. It is below me. It is quite a brownish, reddish brown and considerable altitude above the ground. Every time I fire a pitch down thruster, I get a shower of these little fireflies. The light is flashing now. It is the light. It's quite bright, quite discernable."

Later, he said, "I have the flashing light in sight again. Extremely weak, very weak, I tell you. Just barely discernable. I would estimate it to be somewhere in the order of 18 to 20 miles away. It is out, and the water is very bright below. It's quite a lovely moonlight night."

After his early experiments he turned to taking pictures for "the (words omitted) people."

He also had troubles: "I'm eating a pot roast of beef. I've had considerable difficulty getting the water in it (dehydrated food in a plastic envelope) from this water device on the McDonnell water tank. I spilled water all over my hands, and all over the cockpit here trying to get some of it. I have succeeded in getting about half of it dampened and am proceeding to eat.

"I am washing my face with a damp rag now. Certainly feels good. . .

"It is rather a strange feeling to be able to place objects out into the—into the cabin and let go of them and they'll stay in relatively their same position. This is worrisome as well as an odd sensation, handy sometime, but ah."

The only close-up description of land in the diary is this one:

"I'm right over Africa. (time passes) I can see roads, and rivers, and some small towns, down here on the ground. Small villages or towns, can almost make out the individual houses."

On his 13th orbit, he found some time for personal (notes):

"One comment on the various sleep periods that I've had, nearly everytime that I have awakened, I found that I have been so soundly asleep I don't even know where I am—awake.

"Have a note to be added in for head-shrinkers. Enjoy the full drifting flights most of all, where you really have the feeling of freedom, and you aren't worried about the systems fouling up.

"You (clears throat) have everything turned off, and just drifting along lazily, however, I haven't encountered any of this so-called split-off phenomena. Still note that I am thinking very much about returning to earth at the proper time and safely."

Few Hours Sleep Not Enough, Doctor Says

TORONTO (AP) — A Toronto psychiatrist says the person who claims to get along on only a few hours sleep nightly is fooling himself. He gets his sleep during his apparently waking hours.

Prof. John W. Lovett-Doust explained Thursday at the annual meeting of the Canadian Psychiatric Association that the person who spends a relatively short time in bed at night picks up the missing sleep during the day every time his mind wanders.

"Day-dreaming is sleep," he said.
